Grant bound over on murder charge

James Grant, 21, of 108 Luther St. was bound over to appear Oct. 9 in Scott County Circuit Court following a preliminary hearing Tuesday in Scott County Magistrate Court before Judge Lloyd G. Briggs. Grant faces a first-degree murder charge in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Roberta Johnson, 67, of 811 Ruth St., who was found dead in her home July 8.

Investigation of the slaying indicated the victim had been beaten, stabbed, strangled and raped.

At the end of the four-hour hearing and testimony from eight witnesses, the defense agreed that the state had shown that a probable crime had been committed, but claimed there was no evidence to place the defendant at the scene of the crime when it allegedly took place.

In announcing the decision to bind Grant over to Circuit Court, Judge Briggs commented, "All the evidence is circumstantial in nature, but is consistent with guilt."

Bond to guarantee Grant's appearance in Circuit Court was set at $30,000, and he remained in custody.

Scott County Coroner E. E. "Gene" Nunnelee and Dr. Robert Ahlvin, pathologist at Missouri Delta Community Hospital, the first witnesses called to the stand by Prosecuting Attorney James E. Moore III, described the condition of Mrs. Johnson's body when it was found the morning of July 8.

Nunnelee said there was a head wound from the center of the forehead down to the jaw and "it was evident several of the teeth were missing, and tissue of the jaw was beaten to a pulp." He also described four puncture wounds – stab wounds, he said – in the area of the chest.

One went through the heart and one punctured the lung. The head injury or either of the stab wounds was capable of causing death, Nunnelee said.

Dr. Ahlvin performed the autopsy. He said the head wounds could have been sufficient to cause death, but that the probable actual cause of death was the stab wound to the heart.

He testified that it was his guess, based on his training and experience, that Mrs. Johnson received the blows to the face first. He said he believed the stab in the heart to be the lethal blow because there was little bleeding around it.

The time between the head injuries and the stabbings would have to have been fairly close together, Dr. Ahlvin said under cross-examination, since the head injuries alone would have been lethal in time.

Nunnelee pronounced her dead at the scene about 9:50 a.m. July 8. No time of death was stated, but it was observed

Cason asks Bond to include rebate issue in special session

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Senate President pro tem William Cason has again asked Gov. Christopher S. Bond to include in the upcoming special session of the Missouri Legislature a chance to exempt the federal income tax rebates from state income taxes.

"If you will include this matter for consideration, I think I can assure you of its expeditious passage," the Clinton Democrat said in a letter sent to the governor today.

Cason, a candidate for the party's gubernatorial nomination, has called for the rebate question to be included in the special session before. He said the rebate could be exempted without changing any of the state's tax forms, and he has drawn up a rebate exemption bill for possible submission in the session, scheduled to begin next Monday.

Under Cason's proposed bill, the federal rebate would be eliminated as taxable state income.

The Indian Summer session has been called to give the legislature time to re-enact the one-half cent sales tax for mass transportation in St. Louis and Kansas City.

Bond has rejected the idea of the tax rebate's being included in the special session, saying that if the General Assembly wanted to exempt the rebate, it should have done so last April during the regular session. He also said Missouri could not do without the $4 million which would be lost by the state not taxing the rebate.

"He says it would cost the state $4 million to do away with the state tax but he fails to point out that the rebate represents a windfall for our hard-pressed taxpayers, even though a small one," Cason said.

Harry Otto, Revenue Department income tax bureau manager, said state income tax forms have not yet been printed and that draft copies do not have a special line for inclusion of the federal rebate as income. He said that as on the 1975 forms, the 1974 forms, there's a place to add federal income tax originally deducted.

Missouri taxpayers will just about break even on state taxes through the rebate taxation and federal income tax breaks, Otto said.

Changes in the federal income tax law for computing 1975 taxes have increased the standard federal deduction percentage from 15 to 16 per cent, and have increased the standard deduction limit for single person from $1,300 to $2,300, and from $2,000 to $2,600 for married couples.

Otto said that since the Missouri state income tax standard deduction is the amount used as the federal deduction, state income tax will be somewhat decreased.

Adults learn at own pace

Area adults are investing $30 each per semester to learn valuable skills at their own pace in the Sikeston Public Schools adult basic education program.

The school system — one of six in the state to receive $11,000 in equipment and supplies furnished by the Missouri Department of Education — utilizes five teachers and one aide, as well as slides, tapes and film loops to instruct students.

The instruction is mechanical; student are expected to spend only as much time in class as they want between 2 and 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Learning objectives are set by the student themselves -- they work at their own pace until they are satisfied that they know the material.

The program includes courses

2 killed, 2 hurt

A two-year old Naylor boy and an Oak Ridge man were killed and two persons received minor injuries in three area traffic accidents Tuesday, the highway patrol announced today.

The fatalities raised the death toll on Southeast Missouri roads this year to 84, compared to 85 at the same period last year.

Kerry Dean Wagner, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wagner of Naylor Route One, was struck by a school bus at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday on a gravel road near his home 12 miles southwest of Poplar Bluff.

The child died shortly after arrival at Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

His body was taken to Parent Funeral Home in Naylor.

The patrol said the accident occurred when the child ran in front of a southbound school bus moments after the driver, Patricia Rush, 35, of Harviell Route One, had let some children off the bus.

The other fatal accident occurred at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday .1 mile west of Oak Ridge on route E in Cape Girardeau County.

Kirby Grantham, 50, of Oak Ridge was dead on arrival at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau. His body was taken to McCombs Funeral Home in Jackson.

The patrol said the accident occurred when Grantham lost control of his eastbound jeep on a curve. The vehicle ran off the road, then came back onto the road and struck a westbound pickup truck driven by David Lawrence Myers, 23, of Oak Ridge. The Grantham vehicle then ran off the right side of the road and overturned several times, throwing him out in the process.

At 10:15 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 160 three miles east of Doniphan, Leslie F. Fairchild, 31, and his wife, Alma Jean Fairchild, 25, of Poplar Bluff received minor injuries in a one-vehicle accident and were treated at Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when Fairchild lost control of his eastbound pickup truck, which ran off the highway into a ditch. The Fairchilds were both thrown from the vehicle.

6 thefts reported locally

Two citizens band radios were among several items reported stolen in the past two days in Sikeston.

Police said Robert Blackman of Charleston, reported that a citizen band radio, valued at $139.95 was stolen from his car sometime between noon Monday and Tuesday afternoon while the car was parked in the parking lot on the north side of National Lock factory. The right front door had apparently been pried open.

Mike Pobst, 808 Mary St., reported to police that a citizens band radio was taken from his car while it was parked in front of his residence sometime Monday or Tuesday. The radio was valued at $150.

A tape case valued at $15 and tapes valued at $180 were reportedly stolen between 11:30 p.m. Monday and 11 a.m. Tuesday from a car parked at 308 Dona St. The tapes and case were owned by Ricky Tidwell of that address, who reported the theft.

Between $25 and $30 in change and bills was stolen from Lambert Cafe Monday or Tuesday. Earl Lambert of 427 Edmondson St., owner of the cafe, reported to police that two rolls of pennies, two rolls of nickles, two rolls of dimes and some bills of unknown denomination were stolen from a drawer at the cafe.

Entry was apparently gained through a door on the southwest side of the building where a hole had been made in the window.

Thieves apparently had tried without success to enter a door on the northwest side. The screen to that door had been cut, a hole put in the glass, and the lock torn out of the door. The nightlock also showed signs of an unsuccessful attempt to tear it from the door.

Puxico mayor resigns

PUXICO—Mayor J. Roy Smith has submitted his resignation effective Oct. 10. The resignation was accepted by the City Council Tuesday night.

Smith said the reason for the move is because he has two many other personal obligations to attend to and that serving as mayor takes away time from his personal business.

Another person could have more time to attend to city business and do a better job, he said.

Eddie Sifford, president pro tem of the council, will be in charge until the next election on April 12, 1976.

Smith has been mayor for eight years, but had considered not running for the office in the last election.

He ran because he was closely involved with trying to get a doctor to locate in the city. If not for that, Smith said, he would not have run the last time.

Efforts to get a doctor in the city have failed. The plan was to finance a clinic with a sales tax, but after the tax was approved by voters it was discovered the tax money could not be used for that purpose.

Plant breeder, Dr. J. G. Shannon of Portageville, explains the effects of lodging on soybean plants during a field day tour of about 900 area area farmers of the Delta Center in Portageville. Lodging is the term used to describe the condition of a plant which grows a normal strain, but has very little fruit. Lodging and the soybean cyst nematode are the two major problems facing Southeast Missouri farmers this year.

SeMo farmers troubled with nematode, lodging

PORTAGEVILLE — Southeast Missouri farmers are experiencing two major problems with their soybean crops this year – cyst nematode and loding. About 900 Bootheel farmers toured the Delta Research Center Tuesday to observe results of experiments for solutions to these problems.

Farmers were told that progress is being made in developing a variety of soybeans that is resistant to race 4 of the cyst nematode. One plant strain, 73 T-15-4, will yield 23 bushels per acre, compared to 6.3 bushels per acre of the Forrest vareiy variety in the presence of race 4.

Dr. J.. G. Shannon, plant breeder at the center, pointed out that one of the big losses farmers have in the absence of the race 3 and 4 nematode is lodging.

Lodging is a term used to describe the condition of a plant which grows a normal stem, but has very little fruit. It is caused by lack of air, spacing of the plant and poor growth conditions.

Farmers can suffer 20 per cent loss in one year, such as is occurring this year, Dr.Shannon noted. He added that contrary to the thinking of farmers, delayed planting tends to cause lodging. He cautioned farmers not to overplant recommended seed per foot and to plant a variety with good lodging resistance.

Ron Sheeley, entomology research specialist, at the center demonstrated to the farmers losses sustained by sorghum midge. He encouraged farmers to use milo as a rotation crop to soybeans and to cut losses caused by midge by planting early, seed bed preparation, seed rate and use of insecticides.

Charles F. Cromwell Jr., superintendent of the center, welcomed the visitors and explained that the experiments are carried out on three research farms, the Margaret Marsh farm located one-half mile south of Portageville, the Matilda Cavanaugh farm near East Prairie, and Dewitt Lee farm, five miles east of Portageville. Experiments are also carried out on cooperator locations near Noranda, Malden, East Prairie, Sikeston, Dexter, Bertrand, Pascola and other locations.

To promote Missouri overseas

Spainhower seeks private funds

State Treasurer James I. Spainhower has suggested the formation of a drive to raise funds from the private sector for use in financing an overseas office to represent Missouri in the international market.

In Sikeston today for a regional meeting of the Missouri Bankers Association at the Sikeston High School Field House, Spainhower said the state legislature has already approved the establishment of such an office but for several years has failed to appropriate funds to activate the legislation.

"My plan," Spainhower said, "is to seek pledges from the business, financial, agricultural and industrial sectors of Missouri which would be honored on a matching basis following a legislative appropriation for an overseas office."

Last year the Missouri Legislature did not approve Gov. Christopher S. Bond's budget request of $80,000 for the office. Spainhower says he has written to the governor urging him to request $40,000 in his upcoming budget which, if the treasurer's plan is successful, would be matched by $40,000 from the private sector.

Spainhower says he has asked the Missouri Bankers Association to coordinate the effort to raise the funds throughout the state. He says he has also solicited the assistance of key groups such as the Missouri Chamber of Commerce, Missouri State Savings and Loan Association, Missouri Farm Bureau, the Missouri organization of the National Farmers Organization, Missouri Farmers Association, The United Labor Council of Missouri, Associated Industries of Missoiuri and several other interested groups.

He encouraged the Missouri Bankers Association to call a meeting of such parties to actively begin the pledge drive in Missoiuri.

Spainhower says many major Missouri industries and banks, as well as numerous other states, have seen the wisdom of such activity and have offices to solicit the overseas markets.

"The state of Missouri," he said, "should follow their wise example and do what it can to attract plants and business outlets for overseas firms in Missouri. In a time of high unemployment we need to do all we can to encourage the creation of new job opportunities for Missourians."

Under Spainhower's plan, Missouri's private sector would be asked to make its pledge for three years, with a goal of $40,000 each year.

In a letter to the governor, Spainhower offered his assistance to help secure passage in the General Assembly of the state appropriation of $40,000. He also

2 killed, 2 hurt

A two-year old Naylor boy and an Oak Ridge man were killed and two persons received minor injuries in three area traffic accidents Tuesday, the highway patrol announced today.

The fatalities raised the death toll on Southeast Missouri roads this year to 84, compared to 85 at the same period last year.

Kerry Dean Wagner, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wagner of Naylor Route One, was struck by a school bus at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday on a gravel road near his home 12 miles southwest of Poplar Bluff.

The child died shortly after arrival at Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

His body was taken to Parent Funeral Home in Naylor.

The patrol said the accident occurred when the child ran in front of a southbound school bus moments after the driver, Patricia Rush, 35, of Harviell Route One, had let some children off the bus.

The other fatal accident occurred at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday .1 mile west of Oak Ridge on route E in Cape Girardeau County.

Kirby Grantham, 50, of Oak Ridge was dead on arrival at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau. His body was taken to McCombs Funeral Home in Jackson.

The patrol said the accident occurred when Grantham lost control of his eastbound jeep on a curve. The vehicle ran off the road, then came back onto the road and struck a westbound pickup truck driven by David Lawrence Myers, 23, of Oak Ridge. The Grantham vehicle then ran off the right side of the road and overturned several times, throwing him out in the process.

At 10:15 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 160 three miles east of Doniphan, Leslie F. Fairchild, 31, and his wife, Alma Jean Fairchild, 25, of Poplar Bluff received minor injuries in a one-vehicle accident and were treated at Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when Fairchild lost control of his eastbound pickup truck, which ran off the highway into a ditch. The Fairchilds were both thrown from the vehicle.

A YEN FOR SUNSHINE

..The "Land of the Rising Sun" is becoming the land of disappearing sunlight. This is especially true in Japan's larger cities where, in addition to pollution and smog, another enemy of sunshine is at work.

The proliferation of high-rise buildings in recent years has been causing disputes between owners of the multistory buildings and nearby residents and landowners over the "right to sunshine."

Sunshine is important to the Japanese for more than aesthetic reasons. Because their homes are lightly built and uninsulated, they need as much sun as they can get in the chilly wintertime. And in these days of rapidly rising fuel costs, there is an actual monetary value attached to the amount of sunlight one's home receives.

The government has decided to step in and provide compensation for those forced to live in the shadows, reports Focus Japan magazine. The Home Affairs Ministry has devised a scheme to allow local municipalities to reduce property on plots of land near high-rise buildings that are deprived of sunlight. The decision acknowledges the fact that property in the shade has realized lower selling prices recently and that landowners have suffered financial losses.

The tax reductions, which will be determined by the local government but which cannot exceed a 20 per cent ceiling set by the ministry, will go into effect on Jan. 1, 1976, when the next official revaluation of land prices is scheduled to be conducted.

In previous revaluations, such adverse influences on the price of land as automobile noises, vibrations and exhause emissions, have been taken into consideration. Loss of sunlight, however, has never before been regarded as a minus factor.

WRONG PATIENT

As was prophesied by opponents of gun control laws that would prohibit law-abiding citizens from owning firearms, criminals can always find a gun to commit a crime. Following passage of the 1968 gun-control act, theft of firearms has skyrocketed. Even the U.S. Army has lost about 4,000 guns in major thefts since 1968. In fact, since 1968, gun stealing has taken on the proportions of big business.

Writes Mr. William M. Bulkeley in The Wall Street Journal, "In the aftermath of tightening gun control, gun stealing has become a natural underworld business with ready markets and high profits, law-enforcement officials say. Stolen guns now often sell at higher prices than new guns because they can't be traced to the new owner, federal undercover agents say. And numerous burglary and fencing rings specializing in guns have been formed to explit the new high-profit market, they say. Bureau of Alcohol agents in St. Louis last May uncovered a big, well-organized, three-state ring after buying 18 guns that had been reported stolen. 'It's a very profitable business, and it's going to get more profitable as the law gets tougher,' says Paul J. Lyon of the New Orleans office of the federal agency."

Opponents of antigun legislation have said all along that taking guns away from the law-abiding in an attempt to curb crime leaves the field of gun possession wide open to criminals who have no intention of obeying the law anyway. The only way to curb criminals is to punish criminals. As many authorities have advocated, crimes committed with firearms should carry heavy mandatory penalties. Disarming those who respect the law is like a doctor trying to cure a patient by pouring the medicine down the next door neighbor's throat.

TIME FOR REEVALUATION

At great cost and effort, the U.S. is well on the way to establishing a highly-efficient, technologically- advanced merchant marine capable of competing on a fair basis with the ships of any nation for cargoes moving in international trade on regularly-scheduled routes. The carriers sailing these routes operate within a rate structure covering the entire range of commodities moving in trade and deemed equitable to both shippers and shipping lines. These rates are set by international "conferences" of trading partners who mutually respect the obligation to provide regular, high-quality, low-cost shipping service.

This orderly, international shipping system is threatened by a sort of cargo-pirating technique of "third-flag" ships that cut rates without regard to costs. The situation has becomes so serious that the head of the American Institute of Merchant Shipping has warned that such predatory rate cutting could drive U.S. cargoliners off the high seas in certain trades. As he puts it, the nation's foreign commerce "should be carried primarily by American-flag ships and ships flying the flags of our trading partners." His remarks were made before a Senate subcommittee in support of a bill which would give the Federal Maritime Commission authority to curtail drastic rate cutting practices of "third-flag" carriers. Industry authorities believe this legislation, if passed, would allow the "maritime regulatory agency to reject promptly rates which are not compensatory and which threaten the very stability of shipping services the law was designed to encourage and protect."

Cut-rate competition undermining the merchant fleet operation of the U.S. and of other countries with which this country trades should concern every American. Our national lifeline, for many essential products and the strength of the U.S. dollar in foreign markets, depends on the reliable service of first-class U.S. ships. It is time to reevaluate the entire regulatory framework within which the U.S. Merchant Marine operates.

JURY REFORM IMMINENT

As more and longer court trials become commonplace, many jurors are calling for reforms, and with just cause. The U.S. judicial system has served the people admirably for nearly 200 years, and it would be hard to find anything better. But like anything else, it has its flaws. So present methods of choosing jurors, their salaries, the number of members required on a jury and the mechanics of assigning them to trials are being examined. From all of this should come a more equitable and less expensive form of jury usage.

Rectification of existing jury inadequacies would help renew faith in the judicial process and make jury service, not a dreaded task, but the duty and privilege our forefathers had in mind when they conceived of such a system.

ENERGY GUIDE TELLS HOMEOWNERS HOW TO TO INSULATE HOUSES, CUT COSTS

A new energy conservation guide for homeowners has been issued by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Making the Most of Your Energy Dollars in Home Heating and Cooling contains step-by-step instructions on how to calculate the amount of insulation, storm windows and doors, weather stripping and caulking to add to each home.

Secretary Morton said that if all the nation's 40 million owner-occupied homes were properly insulated, 500,000 barrels of oil equivalent would be saved each day. This savings represents half of the president's energy conservation goal for the current calendary year, he said.

Morton said the new booklet will help the nation's 40 million homeowners decide on the best combination of household energy conservation improvements to make in order to get the maximum return on their investment.

The 20-page booklet takes into consideration climate, the price of energy a homeowners uses to heat and cool his house and the cost of making the improvements. It contains temperature zone maps, computation tables and easy-to-follow worksheets. It was prepared by the Commerce Department's National Bureau of Standards, in cooperation with the Federal Energy Administration.

Making the Most of Your Energy Dollars may be ordered directly for 70 cents a copy from: The Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. Please use Superintendent of Documents Catalog number C13.53:8 when ordering.

ONE CLEAR CHOICE

The people of the United States use more energy than a good share of the rest of the world combined. U.S. oil wells, producing at full capacity, cannot meet accelerating demand, and so greater reliance on foreign oil in the time immediately ahead is certain. Moreover, remaining domestic reserves are getting harder to find and more expensive to tap.

The bright spot in all this is that the U.S. has almost unlimited opportunities for electric power generation and vast potential fuel resources that can be developed. There is a 50-year supply of oil and gas and a supply of coal sufficient to last several hundred years. There are oil shales and tar sands which could be put to use and new sources of energy, such as fusion, solar and geothermal power. To meet our domestic requirements, 55 to 60 new refineries will have to be built between now and 1980. More nuclear power plants and other kinds of electric generating facilities will be needed to meet the demand for electric power, which it is estimated will continued to increase at a much faster pace than demand for other forms of energy.

The one thing the U.S. doesn't have is a lot of time. It takes several years to develop any of these new energy sources and many must be available by the 1980's. More is at stake even than providing heat for homes, fuel for automobiles, power for industry, jobs and the environmental cleanup that everyone wants. Prolonged and increasingly massive reliance on foreign oil sources could glut the world with dollars to the point that dollars in any number would no longer buy us the oil we must have. We wouldn't enjoy being the world's biggest beggar. The only sure way this nation can have adequate energy supplies, preserve the value of the dollar and maintain its national independence is to develop, by every means, the energy resources that are available to us.

PRIME TIME DRINKING PROBLEM

Would you believe that liquor flows on an average of once every eight minutes on such prime time television favorites as Gunsmoke and M A S H?

On other top-rated shows such as Maude, Mannix, Cannon, Harro O and the Jeffersons, the tendency to toss off a slug of hard liquor or a glass of wine is allmost as prevalent.

The Christian Science Monitor has been doing the counting. For two months, three viewers tape recorded and studied 249 shows of which 201 had scenes involving some kind of alcoholic beverage.

The watch was kept between 8 p.m. and 11 p.m. - the prime time period in the East - in order to test adherence to television's own code, which calls for deemphasizing liquor.

The fact is, The Christian Science Monitor found, that alcoholic drinks are sloshed down as living room or family room entertainment far more often than nonalchholic beverages.

For instance, on 87 CBS programs spanning 81 hours, booze was the favored drink 230 times. Nonalcoholic drinks were seen 159 times in the same period. Coffee made it 95 times, plain water only 16.

Liquor advertising is banned on TV. No one suggeststhat TV writers should be barred from using the stuff in plots or skits, however. The need is for restraint, and some sense of reality. As it is, according to Donald Phelps, director of the division of prevention of the National InsInstitute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, "television has been irresponsible as it relates to alcohol."

Considering the effect television has on public attitudes, the kids who try to keep up with the friends and neighbors of Maude and the clients and foes of Harry O may all wind up in detoxification centers - if the government can afford such treatment.

UNSAFE AT ANY SPEED

If there was ever a car unsafe at any speed, it was the bright red six-passenger touring car belonging to Archduke Franze Ferdinand.

In 1914 an assassin jumped on the running board of the new car and fired the shot that killed the Archduke and sparked off World War I.

That was the beginning of the car's grim history. Its next owner, a general, lost his command and went insane. After him came a captain who killed himself and two Croatian peasants. The next owner was the Governor of Yugoslavia, who lost his arm in one of four accidents. A doctor bought the car and lasted six months before killing himself in an accident. It then became the property of a wealthy jeweler who committed suicide within a year. Next came another doctor who went bankrupt, followed by a Swiss race driver who drove into a well and didn't survive, followed by a wealthy farmer who never made it round a bend and killed himself. The final owner was a garage proprieter who crashed driving to the wedding of a friend, killing himself and his four passengers.

Legend finally caught up with the car and the Austrian Government took it off the road, restored it and placed it in a museum.

CIA: Grain Power
Ford Promises Waterfront Labor Chiefs -- No More Sneak Soviet Attacks on Economy

WASHINGTON -- There still (SET ITAL) are (END ITAL) some classified CIA documents. For example, there is one which reports on the power in our nation's silos -- the ones loaded with grain, not with trigger-ready warheaded intercontinental rockets.

This CIA research piece, in effect, predicts that the U. S. has so much grain and wheat that America is well on the non-atomic road to power and political and economic dominance "greater" than even that of the five years following World War II.

Strangely there is a parallel set of documents which the Peking Chinese ciculate corrobroating the CIA. These red papers refer to "Ten Years of Brezhnev's Bankrupt Agricultural Policy."

Both studies state the Soviets desperate. And that the U. S. has the leverage -- and that the U. S. could well decide how much Moscow can feed its people.

There's the backdrop to the sudden conference President Ford summoned in the White House cabinet room last Tuesday, Sept. 9, at 3:15 p.m. With him were the peripatetic AFL-CIO president George Meany and his maritime labor leader colleagues, the Longshoremen's Teddy Gleason; the Seafarers' Paul Hall, the marine engineers' Jesse Calhoon, the maritime seamen's Shannon Wall and AFL-CIO secretary- treasurer Lane Kirkland.

At the President's side as he discussed the interim truce, the temporary lifting of the longshoremen's Soviet grain shipping boycott, were his Economic Policy Board executive dirctor, Bill Seidman and a chap who appeared to be a Secret Service bodyguard. Of course, now more and more in crises decision- making, there was Secretary of Labor John Dunlop.

At first there was some small talk and then the President spoke of the grimness in Sacramento. He told the labor chiefs that he actually saw the red- gowned would-be assailant lift her dress, expose the gun, holster strapped to her leg, and of course the big .45 almost discharged in his face. He praised his Secret Service guard. Then brushed it all off to talk of the coming tough bargaining with the Russians over wheat.

The wheat boycott leaders were handed a three- -page, six-paragraph statement done in the classic mediator's style of Prof. Dunlop. It was obvious that it had been worked over by both the President and Meany -- with Dunlop doing a Henry Kissinger shuttle.

The shuttling was across Lafayette Park, between the White House and the expanded AFL-CIO's "House of Labor." For example, on Sept. 4, Secretary of Labor John Dunlop dropped in on Meany's eighth-floor world headquarters on 16th Street. There he learned that the waterfront union leaders were for "letting all hell break loose on Sept. 11th." Meany had cautioned them to wait, to cool it for a few days until they confereed with President Ford. D Dunlop listened, conversed confidentially with Meany, and shuttled back to his headquarters and later to the President.

The longshoremen were ready to defy the court injunctions banning boycott action. The teachers are doing it with impunity. The miners did it. So have the police and sanitation workers. And so the longshoremen were set for massive "sickouts" everywhere.

The maritime labor chiefs could have stalled the grain shipments easily enough despite the uproar, had Gleason given the signal. And they could have picketed some 100 general cargo Soviet and Polish freighters in 42 American ports now open to the USSR and East bloc's shipping trusts.

But the dockwallopers waited for the White House call. It came via Lane Kirkland Monday night (Sept. 8) -- just three days short of the sickouts.

Apparently Dunlop, Seidman, Meany and the President had polished up the boycott moratorium pact approved that afternoon by the waterfront leaders. The document's key sentences are it seems to me:

"The considerable variation in large bulk purchases by a single state trading company contrasts with the more steady purchases of these grains by such customers as commercial enterprises in Japan and Western Europe.

"Because these purchases are highly variable and uncertain, American farmers have not been able to count on this market in their planting intentions to the extent they have on other foreign purchasers. Moreover, highly volatile and unpredictable purchases emerging after the crop planting tend to contribute to price instability."

So the two special agents now in Moscow are expected to return with solid Soviet grain-purchasing contracts -- such as the three-year U. S. +Japanese agreement. And the Russians will pay more for the wheat. They will pay some 60 per cent higher freight rates for shipping in American tankers. They will use more U. S. flagships.

That is if they want to eat. And in turn they will be "asked" to discuss sales to the U. S. of their surplus oil. And they have until Oct. 11 to make up their minds. Ford promised he'd make certain there will be profitable long- term agreements with the Russians surveyed by the special Food Committee of the Economic Policy Board of the National Security Council.

And if the Soviets flake out, the longshoremenn will sick out. Some of those CIA grain analysis reports have gotten around. The Soviets need us. This time they'll have to pay. Or else.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Smoking used to leave Russia's Leonid Brezhnev with such a sore mouth that he had to have his gums massaged every day by his doctor. The pain has now compelled the Soviet leader to give up cigarettes.

Brezhnev's dental secrets, it seems, are fully known to the Central Intelligence Agency. All the fascinating details (smoking apparently caused the blood vessels in his gums to constrict, thus producing the pain) are on file in the CI A's "LSD Office."

This office has nothing to do, we hasten to add, with the controversial drug that the CIA has fed to unsuspecting victims. In this case, the initials stand for "Life Sciences Division." Its specialists collect and analyze intelligence on the health of world leaders.

For all their intimate knowledge about the state of Brezhnev's gums, however, they have not been able to pin down the truth about his health. His life is fat with rumors about his ailments, but the facts have been elusive.

The Kremlin kingpin shows symptoms, apparently, of having been treated with cortisone. This is a hormone used to combat any number of ailments, including leukemia, arthritis, rheumatic fever, gout and itching.

He could be afflicted, therefore, with anything from terminal cancer to the seven-year itch. In the flesh, he appears quite fit. But some intelligence analysts, going out on a limb, have predicted his health soon will force him to retire.

Only three solid facts have been established: (1) he suffers from hangovers; (2) he has a queasy stomach; and (3) he is plagued with horrendous dental problems.

Brezhnev's fondness for vodka has been known to the CIA for years. Indeed, the CIA has established indisputably that he sometimes shows up in the Kremilin the worse for the past night's partying.

To relieve his woes on these occasions, he likes to stop off at a health spa near a corner of the Kremlin, a spot the Soviet hierarchy calls the "clinic." There, he may take a steam bath or get a rubdown from a favorite masseuse.

The CIA triumphantly established that Brezhenv had a queasy stomach during his 1973 flight to the United States. Sources aboard the Brezhnev plane reported that the Soviet leader made a desperate dash for the washroom with every downdraft.

When he landed at Dulles Airport outside Washington, he made straight for the presidential retreat at Camp David where he remained ensconced for 18 hours before beginning official ceremonies.

Although the CIA has reliable information about Brezhnev's bad gums, the experts have been unable to fix the cause. "If he had had good American dental care all his life," suggested one intelligence analyst, "he probably wouldn't have this trouble."

Our own dental experts tell us that Brezhnev's aching mouth could mean he has any of a host of ailments, from simple callousing of the gums to leukoplakia, a condition characterized by lesions which could become cancerous.

Or maybe, suggested one authority, the sore mouth is nothing serious at all, and Brezhnev's doctors merely used it to "scare him into quitting smoking."

SECRET ACCORDS: In negotiating the historic Israeli-Egyptian agreement, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger made secret pledges not only to Israel but to Egypt.

We published the secret accords with Israel in an earlier column. Now here are the secret assurances Kissinger gave to the Egyptians:

"The United States intends to make a serious effort," it was stipulated, to help bring about further negotiations between Syria and Israel, in the first instance through diplomatic channels.

"In the event of an Israeli violation of the agreement, the United States is prepared to consult with Egypt as to tthe significance of the violation and possible remedial action by the United States.

"The United States will provide technical assistance to Egypt for the Egyptian Early Warnbing Station."

TEAMSTERS INVESTIGATION: The Federal government is less interested in what happened to James Hoffa than in what has happened to the Teamsters' pension and welfare funds. It is believed that mobsters eliminated Hoffa to protect their interest in Teamster loans.

The Teamsters have an estimated $1.5 billion in assets, which are supposed to provide retirement benefits for 400,000 union members. But there have been reports that mobsters have obtained a hold on the purse strings. Both the Justice and Labor departments would like to untangle the strings. But it would take more auditors than are now available.

NUCLEAR ACCIDENT? Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., is worried over the shipment of lethal enriched uranium through heavily populated New York City to the John F. Kennedy airport. An accident, of course, would be disastrous.

On at least one occasion, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission neglected to tell the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, as it was supposed to do, about a 100-pound cargo until it had been shipped. Scheuer, therefore, will attempt to tighten the laws that govern the handling of nuclear materials.

Bureau of Alcohol agents in St. Louis last May uncovered a big, well-organized, three-state ring after buying 18 guns that had been reported stolen. 'It's a very profitable business, and it's going to get more profitable as the law gets tougher,' says Paul J. Lyon of the New Orleans office of the federal agency."

Opponents of antigun legislation have said all along that taking guns away from the law-abiding in an attempt to curb crime leaves the field of gun possession wide open to criminals who have no intention of obeying the law anyway. The only way to curb criminals is to punish criminals. As many authorities have advocated, crimes committed with firearms should carry heavy mandatory penalties. Disarming those who respect the law is like a doctor trying to cure a patient by pouring the medicine down the next door neighbor's throat.

TIME FOR REEVALUATION

At great cost and effort, the U.S. is well on the way to establishing a highly-efficient, technologically- advanced merchant marine capable of competing on a fair basis with the ships of any nation for cargoes moving in international trade on regularly-scheduled routes. The carriers sailing these routes operate within a rate structure covering the entire range of commodities moving in trade and deemed equitable to both shippers and shipping lines. These rates are set by international "conferences" of trading partners who mutually respect the obligation to provide regular, high-quality, low-cost shipping service.

This orderly, international shipping system is threatened by a sort of cargo-pirating technique of "third-flag" ships that cut rates without regard to costs. The situation has becomes so serious that the head of the American Institute of Merchant Shipping has warned that such predatory rate cutting could drive U.S. cargoliners off the high seas in certain trades. As he puts it, the nation's foreign commerce "should be carried primarily by American-flag ships and ships flying the flags of our trading partners." His remarks were made before a Senate subcommittee in support of a bill which would give the Federal Maritime Commission authority to curtail drastic rate cutting practices of "third-flag" carriers. Industry authorities believe this legislation, if passed, would allow the "maritime regulatory agency to reject promptly rates which are not compensatory and which threaten the very stability of shipping services the law was designed to encourage and protect."

Cut-rate competition undermining the merchant fleet operation of the U.S. and of other countries with which this country trades should concern every American. Our national lifeline, for many essential products and the strength of the U.S. dollar in foreign markets, depends on the reliable service of first-class U.S. ships. It is time to reevaluate the entire regulatory framework within which the U.S. Merchant Marine operates.

JURY REFORM IMMINENT

As more and longer court trials become commonplace, many jurors are calling for reforms, and with just cause. The U.S. judicial system has served the people admirably for nearly 200 years, and it would be hard to find anything better. But like anything else, it has its flaws. So present methods of choosing jurors, their salaries, the number of members required on a jury and the mechanics of assigning them to trials are being examined. From all of this should come a more equitable and less expensive form of jury usage.

Rectification of existing jury inadequacies would help renew faith in the judicial process and make jury service, not a dreaded task, but the duty and privilege our forefathers had in mind when they conceived of such a system.

ENERGY GUIDE TELLS HOMEOWNERS HOW TO TO INSULATE HOUSES, CUT COSTS

A new energy conservation guide for homeowners has been issued by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Making the Most of Your Energy Dollars in Home Heating and Cooling contains step-by-step instructions on how to calculate the amount of insulation, storm windows and doors, weather stripping and caulking to add to each home.

Secretary Morton said that if all the nation's 40 million owner-occupied homes were properly insulated, 500,000 barrels of oil equivalent would be saved each day. This savings represents half of the president's energy conservation goal for the current calendary year, he said.

Morton said the new booklet will help the nation's 40 million homeowners decide on the best combination of household energy conservation improvements to make in order to get the maximum return on their investment.

The 20-page booklet takes into consideration climate, the price of energy a homeowners uses to heat and cool his house and the cost of making the improvements. It contains temperature zone maps, computation tables and easy-to-follow worksheets. It was prepared by the Commerce Department's National Bureau of Standards, in cooperation with the Federal Energy Administration.

Making the Most of Your Energy Dollars may be ordered directly for 70 cents a copy from: The Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. Please use Superintendent of Documents Catalog number C13.53:8 when ordering.

ONE CLEAR CHOICE

The people of the United States use more energy than a good share of the rest of the world combined. U.S. oil wells, producing at full capacity, cannot meet accelerating demand, and so greater reliance on foreign oil in the time immediately ahead is certain. Moreover, remaining domestic reserves are getting harder to find and more expensive to tap.

The bright spot in all this is that the U.S. has almost unlimited opportunities for electric power generation and vast potential fuel resources that can be developed. There is a 50-year supply of oil and gas and a supply of coal sufficient to last several hundred years. There are oil shales and tar sands which could be put to use and new sources of energy, such as fusion, solar and geothermal power. To meet our domestic requirements, 55 to 60 new refineries will have to be built between now and 1980. More nuclear power plants and other kinds of electric generating facilities will be needed to meet the demand for electric power, which it is estimated will continued to increase at a much faster pace than demand for other forms of energy.

The one thing the U.S. doesn't have is a lot of time. It takes several years to develop any of these new energy sources and many must be available by the 1980's. More is at stake even than providing heat for homes, fuel for automobiles, power for industry, jobs and the environmental cleanup that everyone wants. Prolonged and increasingly massive reliance on foreign oil sources could glut the world with dollars to the point that dollars in any number would no longer buy us the oil we must have. We wouldn't enjoy being the world's biggest beggar. The only sure way this nation can have adequate energy supplies, preserve the value of the dollar and maintain its national independence is to develop, by every means, the energy resources that are available to us.

PRIME TIME DRINKING PROBLEM

Would you believe that liquor flows on an average of once every eight minutes on such prime time television favorites as Gunsmoke and M A S H?

On other top-rated shows such as Maude, Mannix, Cannon, Harro O and the Jeffersons, the tendency to toss off a slug of hard liquor or a glass of wine is allmost as prevalent.

The Christian Science Monitor has been doing the counting. For two months, three viewers tape recorded and studied 249 shows of which 201 had scenes involving some kind of alcoholic beverage.

The watch was kept between 8 p.m. and 11 p.m. - the prime time period in the East - in order to test adherence to television's own code, which calls for deemphasizing liquor.

The fact is, The Christian Science Monitor found, that alcoholic drinks are sloshed down as living room or family room entertainment far more often than nonalchholic beverages.

For instance, on 87 CBS programs spanning 81 hours, booze was the favored drink 230 times. Nonalcoholic drinks were seen 159 times in the same period. Coffee made it 95 times, plain water only 16.

Liquor advertising is banned on TV. No one suggeststst that TV writers should be barred from using the stuff in plots or skits, however. The need is for restraint, and some sense of reality. As it is, according to Donald Phelps, director of the division of prevention of the National InsInstitute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, "television has been irresponsible as it relates to alcohol."

Considering the effect television has on public attitudes, the kids who try to keep up with the friends and neighbors of Maude and the clients and foes of Harry O may all wind up in detoxification centers - if the government can afford such treatment.

UNSAFE AT ANY SPEED

If there was ever a car unsafe at any speed, it was the bright red six-passenger touring car belonging to Archduke Franze Ferdinand.

In 1914 an assassin jumped on the running board of the new car and fired the shot that killed the Archduke and sparked off World War I.

That was the beginning of the car's grim history. Its next owner, a general, lost his command and went insane. After him came a captain who killed himself and two Croatian peasants. The next owner was the Governor of Yugoslavia, who lost his arm in one of four accidents. A doctor bought the car and lasted six months before killing himself in an accident. It then became the property of a wealthy jeweler who committed suicide within a year. Next came another doctor who went bankrupt, followed by a Swiss race driver who drove into a well and didn't survive, followed by a wealthy farmer who never made it round a bend and killed himself. The final owner was a garage proprieter who crashed driving to the wedding of a friend, killing himself and his four passengers.

Legend finally caught up with the car and the Austrian Government took it off the road, restored it and placed it in a museum.

CIA: Grain Power
Ford Promises Waterfront Labor Chiefs -- No More Sneak Soviet Attacks on Economy

WASHINGTON -- There still (SET ITAL) are (END ITAL) some classified CIA documents. For example, there is one which reports on the power in our nation's silos -- the ones loaded with grain, not with trigger-ready warheaded intercontinental rockets.

This CIA research piece, in effect, predicts that the U. S. has so much grain and wheat that America is well on the non-atomic road to power and political and economic dominance "greater" than even that of the five years following World War II.

Strangely there is a parallel set of documents which the Peking Chinese ciculate corrobroating the CIA. These red papers refer to "Ten Years of Brezhnev's Bankrupt Agricultural Policy."

Both studies state the Soviets desperate. And that the U. S. has the leverage -- and that the U. S. could well decide how much Moscow can feed its people.

There's the backdrop to the sudden conference President Ford summoned in the White House cabinet room last Tuesday, Sept. 9, at 3:15 p.m. With him were the peripatetic AFL-CIO president George Meany and his maritime labor leader colleagues, the Longshoremen's Teddy Gleason; the Seafarers' Paul Hall, the marine engineers' Jesse Calhoon, the maritime seamen's Shannon Wall and AFL-CIO secretary- treasurer Lane Kirkland.

At the President's side as he discussed the interim truce, the temporary lifting of the longshoremen's Soviet grain shipping boycott, were his Economic Policy Board executive dirctor, Bill Seidman and a chap who appeared to be a Secret Service bodyguard. Of course, now more and more in crises decision- making, there was Secretary of Labor John Dunlop.

At first there was some small talk and then the President spoke of the grimness in Sacramento. He told the labor chiefs that he actually saw the red- gowned would-be assailant lift her dress, expose the gun, holster strapped to her leg, and of course the big .45 almost discharged in his face. He praised his Secret Service guard. Then brushed it all off to talk of the coming tough bargaining with the Russians over wheat.

The wheat boycott leaders were handed a three- -page, six-paragraph statement done in the classic mediator's style of Prof. Dunlop. It was obvious that it had been worked over by both the President and Meany -- with Dunlop doing a Henry Kissinger shuttle.

The shuttling was across Lafayette Park, between the White House and the expanded AFL-CIO's "House of Labor." For example, on Sept. 4, Secretary of Labor John Dunlop dropped in on Meany's eighth-floor world headquarters on 16th Street. There he learned that the waterfront union leaders were for "letting all hell break loose on Sept. 11th." Meany had cautioned them to wait, to cool it for a few days until they confereed with President Ford. D Dunlop listened, conversed confidentially with Meany, and shuttled back to his headquarters and later to the President.

The longshoremen were ready to defy the court injunctions banning boycott action. The teachers are doing it with impunity. The miners did it. So have the police and sanitation workers. And so the longshoremen were set for massive "sickouts" everywhere.

The maritime labor chiefs could have stalled the grain shipments easily enough despite the uproar, had Gleason given the signal. And they could have picketed some 100 general cargo Soviet and Polish freighters in 42 American ports now open to the USSR and East bloc's shipping trusts.

But the dockwallopers waited for the White House call. It came via Lane Kirkland Monday night (Sept. 8) -- just three days short of the sickouts.

Apparently Dunlop, Seidman, Meany and the President had polished up the boycott moratorium pact approved that afternoon by the waterfront leaders. The document's key sentences are it seems to me:

"The considerable variation in large bulk purchases by a single state trading company contrasts with the more steady purchases of these grains by such customers as commercial enterprises in Japan and Western Europe.

"Because these purchases are highly variable and uncertain, American farmers have not been able to count on this market in their planting intentions to the extent they have on other foreign purchasers. Moreover, highly volatile and unpredictable purchases emerging after the crop planting tend to contribute to price instability."

So the two special agents now in Moscow are expected to return with solid Soviet grain-purchasing contracts -- such as the three-year U. S. +Japanese agreement. And the Russians will pay more for the wheat. They will pay some 60 per cent higher freight rates for shipping in American tankers. They will use more U. S. flagships.

That is if they want to eat. And in turn they will be "asked" to discuss sales to the U. S. of their surplus oil. And they have until Oct. 11 to make up their minds. Ford promised he'd make certain there will be profitable long- term agreements with the Russians surveyed by the special Food Committee of the Economic Policy Board of the National Security Council.

And if the Soviets flake out, the longshoremenn will sick out. Some of those CIA grain analysis reports have gotten around. The Soviets need us. This time they'll have to pay. Or else.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Smoking used to leave Russia's Leonid Brezhnev with such a sore mouth that he had to have his gums massaged every day by his doctor. The pain has now compelled the Soviet leader to give up cigarettes.

Brezhnev's dental secrets, it seems, are fully known to the Central Intelligence Agency. All the fascinating details (smoking apparently caused the blood vessels in his gums to constrict, thus producing the pain) are on file in the CI A's "LSD Office."

This office has nothing to do, we hasten to add, with the controversial drug that the CIA has fed to unsuspecting victims. In this case, the initials stand for "Life Sciences Division." Its specialists collect and analyze intelligence on the health of world leaders.

For all their intimate knowledge about the state of Brezhnev's gums, however, they have not been able to pin down the truth about his health. His life is fat with rumors about his ailments, but the facts have been elusive.

The Kremlin kingpin shows symptoms, apparently, of having been treated with cortisone. This is a hormone used to combat any number of ailments, including leukemia, arthritis, rheumatic fever, gout and itching.

He could be afflicted, therefore, with anything from terminal cancer to the seven-year itch. In the flesh, he appears quite fit. But some intelligence analysts, going out on a limb, have predicted his health soon will force him to retire.

Only three solid facts have been established: (1) he suffers from hangovers; (2) he has a queasy stomach; and (3) he is plagued with horrendous dental problems.

Brezhnev's fondness for vodka has been known to the CIA for years. Indeed, the CIA has established indisputably that he sometimes shows up in the Kremilin the worse for the past night's partying.

To relieve his woes on these occasions, he likes to stop off at a health spa near a corner of the Kremlin, a spot the Soviet hierarchy calls the "clinic." There, he may take a steam bath or get a rubdown from a favorite masseuse.

The CIA triumphantly established that Brezhenv had a queasy stomach during his 1973 flight to the United States. Sources aboard the Brezhnev plane reported that the Soviet leader made a desperate dash for the washroom with every downdraft.

When he landed at Dulles Airport outside Washington, he made straight for the presidential retreat at Camp David where he remained ensconced for 18 hours before beginning official ceremonies.

Although the CIA has reliable information about Brezhnev's bad gums, the experts have been unable to fix the cause. "If he had had good American dental care all his life," suggested one intelligence analyst, "he probably wouldn't have this trouble."

Our own dental experts tell us that Brezhnev's aching mouth could mean he has any of a host of ailments, from simple callousing of the gums to leukoplakia, a condition characterized by lesions which could become cancerous.

Or maybe, suggested one authority, the sore mouth is nothing serious at all, and Brezhnev's doctors merely used it to "scare him into quitting smoking."

SECRET ACCORDS: In negotiating the historic Israeli-Egyptian agreement, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger made secret pledges not only to Israel but to Egypt.

We published the secret accords with Israel in an earlier column. Now here are the secret assurances Kissinger gave to the Egyptians:

"The United States intends to make a serious effort," it was stipulated, to help bring about further negotiations between Syria and Israel, in the first instance through diplomatic channels.

"In the event of an Israeli violation of the agreement, the United States is prepared to consult with Egypt as to tthe significance of the violation and possible remedial action by the United States.

"The United States will provide technical assistance to Egypt for the Egyptian Early Warnbing Station."

TEAMSTERS INVESTIGATION: The Federal government is less interested in what happened to James Hoffa than in what has happened to the Teamsters' pension and welfare funds. It is believed that mobsters eliminated Hoffa to protect their interest in Teamster loans.

The Teamsters have an estimated $1.5 billion in assets, which are supposed to provide retirement benefits for 400,000 union members. But there have been reports that mobsters have obtained a hold on the purse strings. Both the Justice and Labor departments would like to untangle the strings. But it would take more auditors than are now available.

NUCLEAR ACCIDENT? Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., is worried over the shipment of lethal enriched uranium through heavily populated New York City to the John F. Kennedy airport. An accident, of course, would be disastrous.

On at least one occasion, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission neglected to tell the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, as it was supposed to do, about a 100-pound cargo until it had been shipped. Scheuer, therefore, will attempt to tighten the laws that govern the handling of nuclear materials.

MAGISTRATE COURT

NEW MADRID—Four persons have been bound over to Circuit Court to stand trial on felony charges by Judge John R. Bailey.

Richard Burns of Matthews, charged with burglary and larceny stemming from a break-in on Sept. 7 at the J.T. Kindred home in Morehouse and theft of a television set, movie camera and record player, was bound over to Circuit Court Tuesday following a preliminary hearing. Bond was set at $1,000.

Travis W. Burgett, charged with a third offense of driving while intoxicated, waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to Circuit Court under $500 bond.

Willie B. Moore, exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon, waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to Circuit Court under $500 bond.

Darrell Gene Brown, possession of marijuana in excess of 35 grams, waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to Circuit Court under $500 bond.

James David Johnson, two counts of driving while intoxicated, six months jail sentence suspended upon payment of costs on each count.

Roy E. Haley, common assault on complaint of Frankie Haley, 60-day jail sentence suspended upon payment of costs.

Joseph Edward Williams, second offense of driving while intoxicated, six-month jail sentence, and expired driver's license, one-month jail sentence, with terms to run concurrently with provision that the defendant may be released on probation without supervision by the sheriff's department as long as he complies with motor vehicle laws.

Misdemeanor fines

Travis W. Burgett, driving while license is revoked, $66; Robert Lee Evans, public intoxication, $10, stayed upon payment of costs; Janette Ruth South, no operator's license, $20; Jerry Wayne Liggett, careless and imprudent driving, $25; Clauzell Williams, public intoxication, $35; Roger Alan Mannon, failure to transfer license, $20, allowed one week to pay; Michael J. Garris, careless and imprudent driving, $25; Robert Charles Byrd, driving while intoxicated, $125; John Lee Burrow, speeding, $23, and possession of less than 35 grams of marijuana, $100; Larry Allen Graham, speeding, $23, and driving while intoxicated, $100.

Speeding fines

Cooking Up

Recipes for hunter's wife

By CHERIE BLANTON

How time does fly. Here it is time for the hunters to get out their guns and kill those poor defenseless little beasties again. I guess some of us had better dig up some good recipes to fix the game right.

DOVES

celery salt
garlic salt
salt
curry powder
pepper
2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
juice of one orange and one lemon

Roll doves in enough oil to get them well greased. Sprinkle all the dry spices over them. Put in a covered dutch oven with a little water and cook for one and one-half hours in 250-degree oven. Add Worcestershire sauce and juices and cook for 10 to 15 minutes longer.

WILD DUCK AND DRESSING

2 ducks
2 pinches rosemary
2 tsp. thyme
2 bay leaves
1 ½ Tbsp. cornstarch
salt and pepper

Stuff ducks with dressing and sew up tightly so dressing will not come out during cooking. Sprinkle the outside generously with salt and pepper. Put breasts down in one-half inch water in roasting pan. Add rosemary, thyme and bay leaves to the water—also giblets if you have them. Preheat the oven to 275 degrees. Have ducks at room temperature. Cover roaster and cook for two hours, basting is unnecessary. Make gravy from liquid in pan by thickening with cornstarch and seasoning with salt and pepper.

DRESSING

2 cups crumbled corn bread, made with yellow meal
2 cups dried bread crumbs
One third cup finely chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped onion
¾ cup chopped celery
4 Tbsp. bacon grease
1 ½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. sage
½ tsp. poultry seasoning
½ cup warm water

Cook peppers, onions and celery in skillet in grease until tender. Add to bread; add seasonings and warm water and then stuff ducks.

POTTED DUCK IN WINE SAUCE

4 pound duckling
2 cups Burgundy wine
¼ cup brandy
¼ cup undiluted frozen orange juice concentrate
1 quartered onion
1 sprig parsley
¼ tsp. thyme
½ tsp. salt

Quarter duck; put on a rack in a shallow baking pan. Roast in 425 degree oven 30 minutes and occasionally prick skin to let more fat run off. Pour off the drippings and remove rack from pan; place duck directly on the bottom and add the remaining ingredients. Reduce oven heat to 350 degrees and return to the oven. Cover and cook at least two hours, and serve with pan gravy.

QUAIL IN WINE

½ cup fat
2 small onions, minced
2 whole cloves
1 tsp. peppercorns
2 cloves minced garlic
½ bay leaf
6 quail
2 cups dry white wine
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
few grains cayenne pepper
1 tsp. minced chives
2 cups cream or evaporated milk

Melt fat in deep skillet; add onion, cloves, peppercorns, garlic and bay leaf and heat for several minutes. Add quail and brown on all sides. Add wine, salt, peppers and chives. Cover and cook slowly until tender, about 30 minutes. Remove quail to hot serving dish. Strain liquid into a saucepan; add cream and heat to boiling. Serve over quail.

Ann Landers

Dreamy wife dislikes hairy husband

Dear Ann Landers: This problem may seem insignificant to others, but it's ruining our sex life.

I have always fantasized about the men in muscle magazines -- not only because of their great builds, but because I admire smooth, hairless skin.

My husband has a terrific physique, but the hair all over his body is long and dark and I find it repulsive. I've asked him to shave his body but he says it would irritate his skin. I suggested hair-removal products but he insists men are supposed to be hairy. He thinks something is wrong with me because most women consider hairy males very sexy.

Our love life has become submediocre and I'm too embarrassed to talk about the problem with a counselor. You're my only hope.Help me, please. -- Schenectady, N.Y.

Dear N.Y.: When you ask a man to shave his body, I hope you realize it's not a one-time thing. Hair does grow back, you know. To be the hairless husband you want, the poor guy would have to shave frequently to maintain the desired state.

Since you're big on fantasizing, I seriously suggest that you psych yourself out and accept your husband as he is. Your request is truly unreasonable.

Dear Ann Landers: I notice you are agains t high-school smoking lounges because you say they encourage and condone smoking.

Well, I don't smoke. I am a 16-year-old girl who thinks it is a filthy, expensive, rotten, smelly habit. But I am in favor of smoking lounges in high schools because I believe all those nutty kids should be cooped up together and not be polluting the air in the bathrooms, which is what they re doing.

What's more, those smokers tie up the bathroom stalls between classes and make the rest of us late. If they had a room to smoke in it would free up the johns for us non-smokers.

So you see, there are two sides to this question, Ann. Please change you mind. -- Hate Smoking

Dear H.S.: There are two sides to EVERY question. Sometimes more.

Your arguments are excellent, in fact they are the ones most often cited to get the administration to knuckle under. I believe, however, that smoking should not be permitted under any high school roof. The administration ought to post monitors in the bathrooms if necessary, and see to it that the rules are not violated.

Non-smokers shouldn't have to choke in the johns nor should they be made to wait while tobacco addicts light up between classes.

What it boils down to is this: Who is going to run our high schools -- the students or the administration?

Dear Ann Landers: My dear mother made her home with me until she passed away a few days ago.

My sister and brother gave he r some rather nice gifts through the years. After the funeral they announced they'd be back next week to take back the gifts. Do you think it is right? -- Stunned

Dear S.: No. It's cheap and petty. But let them have their gifts. Things are not worth fighting about. It was worth th price to find out what the clods are really like.

Cooking Up

Recipes for hunter's wife

By CHERIE BLANTON

How time does fly. Here it is time for the hunters to get out their guns and kill those poor defenseless little beasties again. I guess some of us had better dig up some good recipes to fix the game right.

DOVES

garlic salt
salt
curry powder
pepper
2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
juice of one orange and one lemon

Roll doves in enough oil to get them well greased. Sprinkle all the dry spices over them. Put in a covered dutch oven with a little water and cook for one and one-half hours in 250-degree oven. Add Worcestershire sauce and juices and cook for 10 to 15 minutes longer.

WILD DUCK AND DRESSING

2 ducks
2 pinches rosemary
2 tsp. thyme
2 bay leaves
1 ½ Tbsp. cornstarch
salt and pepper

Stuff ducks with dressing and sew up tightly so dressing will not come out during cooking. Sprinkle the outside generously with salt and pepper. Put breasts down in one-half inch water in roasting pan. Add rosemary, thyme and bay leaves to the water—also giblets if you have them. Preheat the oven to 275 degrees. Have ducks at room temperature. Cover roaster and cook for two hours, basting is unnecessary. Make gravy from liquid in pan by thickening with cornstarch and seasoning with salt and pepper.

DRESSING

2 cups crumbled corn bread, made with yellow meal
2 cups dried bread crumbs
One third cup finely chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped onion
¾ cup chopped celery
4 Tbsp. bacon grease
1 ½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. sage
½ tsp. poultry seasoning
½ cup warm water

Cook peppers, onions and celery in skillet in grease until tender. Add to bread; add seasonings and warm water and then stuff ducks.

POTTED DUCK IN WINE SAUCE

4 pound duckling
2 cups Burgundy wine
¼ cup brandy
¼ cup undiluted frozen orange juice concentrate
1 quartered onion
1 sprig parsley
¼ tsp. thyme
½ tsp. salt

Quarter duck; put on a rack in a shallow baking pan. Roast in 425 degree oven 30 minutes and occasionally prick skin to let more fat run off. Pour off the drippings and remove rack from pan; place duck directly on the bottom and add the remaining ingredients. Reduce oven heat to 350 degrees and return to the oven. Cover and cook at least two hours, and serve with pan gravy.

QUAIL IN WINE

½ cup fat
2 small onions, minced
2 whole cloves
1 tsp. peppercorns
2 cloves minced garlic
½ bay leaf
6 quail
2 cups dry white wine
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
few grains cayenne pepper
1 tsp. minced chives
2 cups cream or evaporated milk

Melt fat in deep skillet; add onion, cloves, peppercorns, garlic and bay leaf and heat for several minutes. Add quail and brown on all sides. Add wine, salt, peppers and chives. Cover and cook slowly until tender, about 30 minutes. Remove quail to hot serving dish. Strain liquid into a saucepan; add cream and heat to boiling. Serve over quail.

Ann Landers

Dreamy wife dislikes hairy husband

Dear Ann Landers: This problem may seem insignificant to others, but it's ruining our sex life.

I have always fantasized about the men in muscle magazines -- not only because of their great builds, but because I admire smooth, hairless skin.

My husband has a terrific physique, but the hair all over his body is long and dark and I find it repulsive. I've asked him to shave his body but he says it would irritate his skin. I suggested hair-removal products but he insists men are supposed to be hairy. He thinks something is wrong with me because most women consider hairy males very sexy.

Our love life has become submediocre and I'm too embarrassed to talk about the problem with a counselor. You're my only hope.Help me, please. -- Schenectady, N.Y.

Dear N.Y.: When you ask a man to shave his body, I hope you realize it's not a one-time thing. Hair does grow back, you know. To be the hairless husband you want, the poor guy would have to shave frequently to maintain the desired state.

Since you're big on fantasizing, I seriously suggest that you psych yourself out and accept your husband as he is. Your request is truly unreasonable.

Dear Ann Landers: I notice you are agains t high-school smoking lounges because you say they encourage and condone smoking.

Well, I don't smoke. I am a 16-year-old girl who thinks it is a filthy, expensive, rotten, smelly habit. Sorority chapter reports profit from style show

About 250 people attended the fall fashion show sponsored by Delta Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Sorority Monday at the Ramada Inn.

Joyce Hagy, treasurer, estimated the chapter grossed $1000 with a net profit of possibly $550. The figure is about a two-thirds increase from last year's fashion show benefit, she said. Proceeds will be donated to the Heritage House, Child Development Center and other numerous area organizations.

Minister under fire for ordaining women priests

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Rev. Dalton D. Downs, the rector at the Emmanel Church Episcopal who invited six women to participate in communion services, may face a church trial for defying the orders his biship.

The women, whose ordination was considered invalid by Episcopal church bishops, defied the law of their church on Sunday and celebrated communion.

The bishops have refused to sanction the women's participation in communion.

Many of the women travel to different churches to celebrate communion, but few church leaders will permit them to take part in services, the Rev. Suzanne Hiatt said here Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. Downs said that his action has also jeopardized an $11,000 yearly grant from the diocese to the local church. He said the money is used to administer to the needy in the inner city community around the church.

The priest said the Diocese Council will consider whether to continue the grant at its meeting this week.

Bishop John B. Burt had ordered the Rev. Mr. Downs not to allow the women to participate in the service.

The six women priests at the morning service were the Revs. Merrill Bittner of Rochester, N.Y.; Alison Cheek of Annandale, Va.; the Rev. Miss Hiatt and Carter Heyward of Cambridge, Mass.; Jeanette R. Piccard of Minneapolis and Betty B. Scheiss of Syracuse, N.Y.

At an afternoon service, they were joined by the Rev. Betty Rosenberg, one of four women ordained last week in Washington, D.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Stinson

Clark-Stinson

Miss Melanie Ruth Clark and Phillip D. Stinson were wed Aug. 29 at the Illinois Avenue Baptist Church. The Rev. W. H. Cravens of Malden officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Clark of Kewanee and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stinson, 911 Virginia St., Sikeston.

She wore a gown of dacron polyester organza, styled with a crescent waistline, wedding band neckline and transparent yoke. An A-line skirt, bishop sleeves and bodice were accented with Chantilly lace and sequins. An elbow-length veil was attached to a Queen Ann's cap of matching lace. She carried a cascade of red roses with baby's breath.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Terry Pipkin of Bellevue, Neb., sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Jane and Jean Clark of Kewanee, sisters of the bride.

Keith Stinson, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen were Rick Aslin of Bloomfield and Bruce Clark of Kewanee, brother of the bride.

Candlelighters and ushers were Mike and Eddie Whitehead of Brosely.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the church.

Mrs. Stinson is a 1973 graduate of New Madrid High School and is employed by Security National Bank.

Stinson, a 1974 graduate of Sikeston High School, is employed by National Lock, Highway 60 East.

When children go away, the grass looks greener

By ERMA BOMBECK

When Mike was three he wanted a sandbox and his father said, "There goes the yard. We'll have kids over here day and night and they'll throw sand into the flower beds and cats will make a mess in it and it'll kill the grass for sure."

And Mike's mother said, "It'll come back."

When Mike was five, he wanted a jungle gym set with swings that would take his breath away and bars to take him to the summit and his father said, "Good grief, I've seen those things in backyards and do you know what they look like? Mud holes in a pasture. Kids digging their gym shoes in the ground. It'll kill the grass."

And Mike's mother said, "It'll come back."

Between breaths when Daddy was blowing up the plastic swimming pool, he warned, "You know what they're going to do to this place? They're going to condemn it and use it for a missile site. I hope you know what you're doing. They'll track water everywhere and you'll have a million water fights and you won't be able to take out the garbage without stepping in mud up to your neck and when we take this down we'll have the only brown lawn on the block."

"It'll come back," smiled Mike's mother.

When Mike was 12, he volunteered his yard for a campout. As they hoisted the tents and drove in the spikes, his father stood at the window and observed, "Why don't I just put the grass seed out in cereal bowls for the birds and save myself the trouble of spreading it around.

The basketball hoop on the side of the garage attracted more crowds than the Winter Olympics. And a small patch of lawn that started out with a barren spot the size of a garbage-can lid soon grew to encompass the entire side yard. Just when it looked like the new seed might take root, the winter came and the sled runners beat it into ridges and Mike's father shook his head and said, "I never asked for much in this life -- only a patch of grass."

And his wife smiled and said, "It'll come back."

The lawn this fall was beautiful. It was green and alive and rolled out like a sponge carpet along the drive where gym shoes had trod, along the garage where bicycles used to fall and around the flower beds where little boys used to dig with iced tea spoons.

But Mike's father never saw it. He anxiously looked beyond the yard and asked with a catch in his voice, "He will come back, won't he?"

Miss Crabb is a 1975 graduate of Sikeston High School and is employed at Britt's Department Store.

Baugher, a 1974 graduate of Sikeston High School, is stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood with the Army.

An October wedding is planned.

Getting married?

The Daily Standard, 205 S. New Madrid St., now has new wedding forms available at the front office or at the women's desk. Business hours are from 7 a.m., to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Forms will be mailed if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is provided.

The deadline for weddings is three weeks after date of wedding. Pictures will be returned if a self-addressed, stamped envelope large enough to hold a picture is supplied. Color pictures are discouraged. There is no charge for running a wedding. We are happy to publish it.

Symington plans to announce candidacy soon

KANAS CITY (AP) — The Star Friday quoted Rep. James W. Symington, D-Mo, as saying he tentatively plans to announce his candidacy for the U. S. Senate on Sept. 29.

It is the day after the 48th birthday anniversary of the four-term congressman from Missouri's 2nd District in St. Louis County. He will be a candidate for the Senate seat being relinquished by his father, Sen. Stuart Symington, after 24 years.

The Star said at the same time Rep. Symington confirmed the date a member of his staff said the work of preparing for the formal announcement might take more than two weeks and it could be delayed into October.

Symington said he would file as a candidate until January because if he filed this early it "would make everyone tired."

He also said he wants to be sure he can raise enough money for the campaign.

Ever since his father announced several months ago that he would not be a candidate for relection, it has been generally expected that the younger Symington would run for the Senate.

He told the Star he decided to announce after a successful trip across Missouri last month and after a poll he commissioned gave him a high rating.

"The survey we took showed we were in a favorable position if we could raise the money," Symington was quoted by the Star after it called him in Washington.

The tentative plan is for Symington to make announcements on Sept. 29 in Kansas City, St. Louis and possibly one other city in Missouri. He is expected at the same time to name several of his regional campaign leaders.

Warren E. Hearnes, former governor, already has filed as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Senate. So has Joseph P. Teasdale, former county prosecutor in Kansas City who was an unsuccesful candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1972.

Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo, is considered almost certain to become a candidate.

Daily Standard Newspaper

Dear Mr. Blanton,

September 8, 1975, your paper published an article entitled "Justice". This subject dealed with New Madrid County Courts. I have one word for this article, "Bull". Never in my life have I seen such partiality shown by someone who is suppose to be a professional.

I have seen people play the part of a martyr before, but never to such a degree as your reporter, Ron Jaynes.

As for the report you made concerning his fine for "allegedly" assaulting two grown men in Parma, it's no longer an "alleged" assault Ron Jaynes asked, for, and was granted a trial by jury. These six people are the ones who found him guilty not the Judge. As for the $100 fine, I noticed it didn't mention in your article that the other men involved were fined also. Nor, did your article say Jaynes was given the chance, as were the othermen, to plead guilty and be fined $20 and cost. You also seemed to have left out that not only Jaynes, but at least five other men were involved in this "Alleged assault against two grown men." One of which was Roger Jaynes, the brother of your reporter, who as yet has been completely omitted from "Justice" by not even have been served the formal complaint which was drawn up against him.

"Harassment?" Is that what you say? Well then what do you call you reporters' threatening to "get even" with the police judge even if, and I quote, "I have to do it through the press."

As for the assault by the two men's brother, "Doyle Hunt," I see you also failed to acknowledge Ron Jaynes part in this, in as much as the harassment was on Jaynes' and Miller's part, witnessed by none other than our city marshal, (a close friend of Jaynes.)

Now, I ask you Mr. Blanton, who is the one harassing people, the courts, or you and your reporter by implying that one man can be involved in so much, and be completely innocent in everything he does, while someone else always takes the blame.

Is this what you would have justice be?

Court told Barket case was political

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Criminal indictments against former Kansas City banker Alexander J. Barket were politically motivated with the intent to obtain further information against key figures of the administration of former Gov. Warren Hearnes, the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was told Friday.

Veryl Riddle, Barket's attorney, asked a three-judge panel to affirm the decision of a Kansas City district judge dismissing criminal charges against Barket stemming from a $30,000 bank loan to a Democratic political group in Kansas City.

Riddle noted the 1970 loan was eventually repaid.

Riddle said Barket had suffereed as a result of "massive publicity that was generated" by the Kansas City U.S. Attorney's office.

He said U.S. Atty. Bert Hearn "directed his staff to maximize charges aginst Barket in order to pressure him."

Asst. U.S. Atty. Anthony P. Nugent Jr. told the court that the district judge had "overstepped its powers" in dismissing the indictment.

Nugent said that if the court really felt there had been misconduct through publicity leaks on the part of the U.S. Attorney then action should be taken against the staff, including even possible disbarment.

He added, however, that the people of the United Stte should not be denied the right to a trial of a possible criminal action.

EAST PRAIRIE--- Disbursements during August by the Division of Family Services in Mississippi County totaled $98,217, according to figures released by Mrs. Agnes Cunningham, county director.

Aid to dependent children cases, numbering 722 and including 1,811 children, received $90,515, the highest amount of assistance for any program.

A total of 115 general relief cases received $7,702.

Mississippi County had 713 supplemental security income and Missouri supplemental cases which received $21,176. There were 404 supplemental security income only cases, for which medical benefits and social services were provided.

The county had 171 medical assistance only cases and a total of 112 recipients in professional nursing homes.

Planning board refuses request

The City Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday night refused a request by E.C. Robinson Lumber Co. that lot 15 of block 11 and lot 13 of block 12 in the eighth addition of Town and Country Acres be rezoned from B two-family dwellings to C multiple-family dwellings.

Nine homeowners from that area appeared before the commission opposing the rezoning.

Statue dedicated

The Madonna of the Trail monument in Lexington is dedicated to the pioneer mothers of the covered wagon days, says the Missouri Division of Tourism. The city also has numerous reminders of Civil War battles fought in the area.

Planning board refuses request

The City Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday night refused a request by E.C. Robinson Lumber Co. that lot 15 of block 11 and lot 13 of block 12 in the eighth addition of Town and Country Acres be rezoned from B two-family dwellings to C multiple-family dwellings.

Nine homeowners from that area appeared before the commission opposing the rezoning.

Competitive styles offered in luxury automobiles

DETROIT — Emphasizing the significance of a broadened product lineup combined with subtle styling and engineering improvements, the1976 Cadillacs have been introduced by Edward C. Kinnard, general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Division and vice president of General Motors.

"Our 10 models in the Calais, De Ville, Fleetwood and Seville series for 1976 will be in dealer showrooms on Thursday," Kennard said.

While unveiling the new cars, Kennard commented, "Our entire model lineup has done exceptionally well from a sales standpoint in 1975, with several record sales periods established. The very successful introduction of the Seville on May 1, combined with the excellent customer acceptance of our full size cars, has enabled Cadillac to make significant gains in the luxury car market.

"Cadillac dealers now offer automobiles which are dimensionally and operationally competitive with all domestic and foreign luxury products," Kennard said, "and we are poised for brisk sales actionwith our 1976 models.

"Dimensionally, this year's full size models are identical to 1975 Cadillacs," Kennard noted. "The new international size 1976 Cadillac Seville stands on a 114.3" wheelbase, is 204" long, 71.8" wide, 54.7" high and weighs about 4,340 pounds."

The Cadillac executive said that by comparison the Seville is 27 inches shorter, 8 inches narrower, almost identical in height and about 1,000 pounds lighter than a 1976 Cadillac Sedan de Ville.

Kennard also pointed out that the 1976 Fleetwood Eldorado convertible remains as the only domestically produced convertible.

Interior and exterior design changes for 1976 are designed to further personalize the existing Cadillac appeal. New grilles for all models utilize the traditional Cadillac cross-hatch theme. The Eldorado grille design now includes a separate Cadillac script signature for the hood.

Personalized styling is evident in several new elements for 1976 full size Cadillacs.

The wheel discs on the front-wheel-drive Eldorados are new, featuring a black center hub area. Optional wheel discs for other 1976 models include a turbine disc and a wire-wheel type.

All vinyl roofs, except the Seville and Fleetwood 75 series sedan and limousine, utilize the integral padded elk grain material. A cross grain padded vinyl roof is standard on the Seville and optional on the Fleetwood Seventy-Five series series cars. Additionally, a new vinyl roof design for Calais and De Ville coupes is highlighted by the extension of the top molding as a continuation of the door "belt" molding.

An exterior opera lamp, similar to that used on Fleetwood Brougham and Seventy-Five series cars, is now standard equipment on the Coupe de Ville d'Elegance "special edition" option, and now optional equipment on all Calais and De Ville coupes.

"The Seville front-end design is unmistakably Cadillac, featuring a cross-hatch grille, rectangular lamps, hoodface script and standup wreath and crest hood ornamentation," Kennard stated.

Continuing, he noted, "Seville's uncluttered exterior styling concept is evident in the simple rear design, featuring large wraparound tail lights. Full wheel openings complement the formal Seville profile and roof line."

Kennard stated.

Continuing, he noted, "Seville's uncluttered exterior styling concept is evident in the simple rear design, featuring large wraparound tail lights. Full wheel openings complement the formal Seville profile and roof line."

Kennard reported that all Cadillacs are offered in 15 standard and six optional firemist paint colors for 1976, of which 13 are new with this model. Exterior paints are complemented by 11 padded vinyl roof selections, seven convertible top offerings and eight available color accent stripes.

Cadillac interior design for 1976 full size models is essentially the same as in 1975. Rosewood grain trim is used throughout the interior with bright wreath and crest and script plaques providing recognizable series identification. The Eldorado simulated wood trim is a unique carved gun stock pattern.

Kennard noted, "Seville instrumentation is typically Cadillac and includes an upper instrument panel 'information band' and functional control panels to the driver's right and left. Operating switches for items such as the power windows, power door locks and electric seat adjuster are located in the front door area within easy reach of the driver.

New trims for full size cars include sporty plaids, plush velours, knits and 11 distinctive genuine leather selections. The Seville features as standard equipment 50-50 front seats t rimmed in the owners choice of seven luxurious "Mansion" knit cloth offerings or optional genuine leather, offered in eight colors.

All Cadillac 50-50 seats for 1976 are equipped wth individualfold-down center armrests. In addition, an option exclusively for these seats is a power- operated passenger seat back recliner, which is offered in conjunction with the 6-way power- operated seat adjuster option. This new feature, affording increased comfort for the front seat passenger, is standard equipment on all Fleetwood Talisman "special edition" option packages.

"The Seville is among the m ost fully equipped cars in the world," Kennard continued, "featuring many standard customer convenience items on the interior, among them a dual courtesy and front passenger reading lamp, rear compartment reading lamps, an electric trunk lock release, power- operated seat adjuster and roof mounted assist handles."

The Cadillac general manager described the engineering concept for 1976 models as a "well defined blend of innovation, refinement to existing principles, and careful attention to the comfort, convenience and well being of the owner."

Full size 1976 models are powered by a 500 cubic inch displacement (8.2 Litre) V-8 engine. The optional Cadillac Electronic Fuel Injected engine is offered on all full size cars, except the Fleetwood 75 series. The Seville is equipped with a standard 350 cubic inch displacement (5.7 Litre) Electronic Fuel Injected engine.

Full size Cadillacs have received an E..A. federalfuel economy certification of 12 miles per gallon in the city and 16 miles per gallon on the highway. California cars, meeting te state's more stringent emission requirements, are certified at 11 mpg in the city and 15 mpg on the highway.The Seville'sE.P.A. federal fuel economy certification is 15 mpg in the city and 21 mpg on the highway, with a California rating of 13 mpg in the city and 19 mpg on the highway.

The Cadillac Electronic Fuel Injected engines are designed to precisely meter and control the fuel delivery process, and each utilizes a precision laser beam trimmed computer 'brain' unit to operate the system," Kennard said. "These engines are designed to offer quick response, fast starting, consistent performance, smoot engine idle, luxury car fuel economy and few scheduled maintenance operations."

He also stated that the 1976 Eldorado models are equipped with four wheel disc brakes as standard equipment. These brakes combine with a hydraulic powered brake booster, providing increased braking capability under power-on and especially power- off conditions.

All other 1976 Cadillacs are equipped with large front disc and rear drum brakes.

Low axle gear ratios, 2.73:1 for most full size models and 2.56:1 for the Seville, are designed for efficiency and fuel economy.

Customer convenience is enhanced with the Delco "Freedom" battery, first introduced on the Seville and now standard equipment on all 1976 Cadillacs. This smaller, lighter weight battery never needs its water replenished and provides a visible charge indicator.

The Cadillac Seville, along with all Fleetwood Seventy-Five series cars and Electronic Fuel Injected engine cars, is equipped with an 80 ampere generator. This unit is also optional for all other 1976 Cadillacs.

The Seville's front wheels, suspension, engine and transmission components are attached to a steel sub-frame, which is in turn connected to the body and sheet metal structure through a special mounting system consisting of six 'isoflex" cushions and two hydraulic dampers which help dissipate impact energy.

Kennard reported that all 1976 Cadillacs utilize the latest advances in anti-corrosion protection, including primers, sealers, galvanized steel, zinc-iron alloy, zincrometal (steel coated on one side with zinc paint prior to forming) and bi-metal moldings (stainless steel laminated to aluminum).

Additional value benefits for 1976 have been incorporated with the convenience and security of the owner in mind.

A new automatic door locking system is optional and offers the security of automatically locked doors once the shift lever is moved to a forward drive position. This system is in addition to the standard power-operated door locks on all cars.

The optional Cadillac illuminated entry system, first offered on 1975 models, provides exterior lock illumination and interior lighting when entering a car during darkness. Lights now go off once the ignition is turned on.

Customers have come to realize the outstanding value in Cadillacs and the 1976 models are no exception.

1976 Cadillac Seville

The 1976 Cadillac Seville was introduced successfully on May 1, broadening the Cadillac lineup to be dimensionally and operationally competitive with all domestic and foreign luxury automobiles. The international size Seville is 27 inches shorter, eight inches narrower, almost identical in height and about 1,000 pounds lighter than a 1976 Cadillac Sedan de Ville. Powered by a 350-cubic inch (5.7 Litre) electronic fuel injected engine, the Seville is certified by the Environmental Protection Agency with a federal fuel economy rating of 15 miles per gallon in the city and 21 m.p.g. on the highway. In California, where cars meet more stringent emission requirements, the Seville is certified at 13 m.p.g. in the city and 19 m.p.g. on the highway. Cadillac "sunroof" and "astroroof" design options are being offered on the Seville shortly after the start of production.

Energy labels now required

By SEN. STUART SYMINGTON

WASHINGTON, D C. — In these times of rising fuel prices, it has become increasingly important for consumers to have access to information detailing the energy efficiency of the automobiles and major appliances sold in the United States.

To that end, the Senate recently passed legislation which will require manufacturers to provide complete energy efficiency information with their products and will require retailers to display that information with the sale price label.

Since the energy consumption of small appliances such as electric combs and can openers is relatively insignificant, only major appliances using more than 200 kilowatt hours of electricity a year will be affected by the legislation.

According to the Federal Energy Administration's Project Independence Report, residential use of energy accounts for approximately 22 per cent of the country's total energy consumption. Of that amount, more than half goes for home heating, about three per cent is used to heat water and another three per cent is used to operate appliances such as air-conditioners, refrigerators and cooking and laundry machines.

In the past, consumers have shown little interest in buying fuel- saving appliances because models with improved efficiency features have often been more expensive. Also, energy specifications presently available to consumers, such as BTU ratings, are usually worded in confusing technical terminology and are difficult to translate into personal cost-saving terms.

Under the legislation, however, manufacturers will be required to supply appliance and automobile energy guides with their products. These guides will provide consumers with the information needed to make their most cost- effective and energy - efficient purchase.

The guides will describe, in simple language, the consumption characteristics of similar products offered by a manufacturer and will provide such comparative shopping information as charts showing efficiency comparisons between models offered in a given line of appliances and the annual operating costs of different models. Comparison of models sold by competing manufacturers is not anticipated, however.

Advertisements will also be required to show estimated annual operating costs of the product being advertised.

Similar provisions are included in a comprehensive energy bill being debated by the House of Representatives. Since an energy labeling program is also part of the President's energy package, submitted to the Congress earlier this year, seems likely that such legislation will be session.

Since fuel prices and consumer usage patterns vary from season to season and from region to region, these factors will have to be taken into consideration when the guides are written.

It is hoped that these actions will help alter consumer buying habits and will enable prospective buyers to weigh the original purchase price against operating costs when shopping for large energy-consuming products. Most autos and large appliances are purchased on installment plans and a few dollars extra on a monthly payment may well be balanced by reduced utility or gasoline bills.

by providing the American consumer with information on the energy efficiency of automobiles and major appliances, this legislation will help the consumer maximize his purchasing power while aiding the nation's conservation efforts.

Ginner electrocuted and another man injured

QULIN — A 73-year-old Boeving Bros. Cotton Co. employe was electrocuted Monday afternoon while performing routine maintenance at a Qulin cotton gin.

Killed was Oscar Lee Bailey, 73, of 210 N. Riverview, Poplar Bluff.

Bailey, a ginner for the past 30 years, and maintenance foreman for Boeving Bros. for the past 19 years, apparently died instantly at about 2:05 p.m. Monday.

Julius Hayes, 62, of Route One was working at the gin with Bailey. He said they were checking out the gin for the beginning of the ginning season when the accident occurred.

"We were working with an electrical (circuit breaker) box," Hayes said. "He (Bailey) was probing it with two wires when the light bulb in it blew up."

Bailey apparently had made an electrical contact and the current ran through his body.

"A big ball of fire hit me in the face and knocked my glasses off my head," Hayes said. "It probably would have blinded me if I hadn't had the glasses."

Ambulance technicians arriving at the gin said Bailey had no vital signs and appeared to be dead. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Lucy Lee Hospital.

Hayes suffered first degree burns on the face and was treated and released at the same hospital.

Born on aug. 19, 1902 at Fort Smith, Ark., Bailey had lived in Butler County for 37 years.

On Nov. 9, 1939 at Poplar Bluff, he married Gertie Black, who survives.

Other survivors include two sons, Henry W. Bailey of House Springs and Edward Wilson of Harviell; two daughters, Mrs. Uneda Brittingham of House Springs and Mrs. Rosella Barger of Poplar Bluff, one sister, Mrs. Alice Faughn of Avondale, Ariz; and 19 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

Services were conducted at 2 p.m. today in Cotrell Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Winfred Jones officiating.

Burial will be in the Qulin Cemetery.

Ford examining options for CIA revamp

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's options for revamping the Central Intelligence Agency include possibly moving all its undercover operations to some other agency and naming an over-all intelligence coordinator, White House sources say.

Although Ford intends some reorganization of the CIA, administration sources caution not to expect major changes for several months.

An administration official said the coordinator, if one is decided upon, would not be the CIA director.

Ford told a news conference Tuesday that no matter what the fate of the CIA, American political action aimed at influencing events in other countries is likely to continue.

"I wouldn't rule out necessary political activities by the United States if it involves our security," the President said.

The administration official, who asked not to be identified, said that among options being considered by the President are separating CIA's current functions into two distinct agencies.

CIA might retain its analytical mission of openly collecting data and anylzing all available information, he said. But either or both of CIA's other functions, covert collection of intelligence and clandestine political operations overseas might be switched to another agency, or a combination of agencies.

The official also said an intelligence coordinator is another option being considered. CIA Director William Colby currently is responsible for the day-to-day operations of that agency and for over-all coordination of other intelligence organizations.

CIA critics say directors of the agency never have had the time or influence to adequately perform the over-all supervision.

Ford said his staff and appropriate federal agencies are studying recommendations made by the Murphy and Rockefeller Commissions, which have investigated the CIA.

From these and other sources Ford will make administrative changes in the agency and propose legislative recommendations to Congress on the nation's intelligence-gathering apparatus, he said.

On other subjects in the informal news conference in the Oval Office, Ford said:

—Federal courts apparently have not taken sufficient notice of 1974 legislation that would make forced busing of school children a last resort.

—The United States has made no firm commitment to supply F16 fighter bombers and Pershing missiles to Israel as part of a new Sinai agreement.

"They are on the shopping list," and they will be discussed with the Israeli government, he said.

2 businesses burglarized

PARMA — Two businesses, Jaynes' Bar and Neal's Cafe, were burglarized early Tuesday morning, the New Madrid County Sheriff's Department reported today.

An unknown amount of money was taken from three coin-operated machines at Jaynes' Bar, where a board was pried off a front window.

At Neal's Cafe, a drill, three cartons of cigarettes and three boxes of cigars were stolen. Chief Deputy Sheriff Willis "Bo" Wingo, who investigated with City Marshal Larry Gee and the highway patrol, said the building was entered by knocking in the front door.

Both break-ins occurred sometime shortly after midnight Monday, Wingo said.

Two burglaries investigated

BENTON — The Scott County Sheriff's Department is investigating two Monday night burglaries in which 50 sheets of plywood and 50 two-by-fours were reported stolen in Scott City and a riding lawn mower was taken from a rural Oran home.

The theft of the lumber occurred at a construction site in Scott City and was reported by Joe Burton of B&B Construction Co.

An eight-horsepower riding mower was reported taken about 8:40 p.m. Monday from the rural Oran home of Eddie Brant, who said both headlights of his car were broken, also.

Man dies from gunshot wounds

CARUTHERSVILLE — Fred Hamra, 65, a retired businessman, died at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in Baptist Memorial Hospital at Memphis, Tenn., where he was transferred Monday from Pemiscot County Medical Center at Hayti after being shot in a freak accident.

The highway patrol said Hamra was accidentally shot in the back about 6:10 p.m. Sunday by a blast from a 20-gauge shotgun in the trunk of his car. The accident occurred near town on a section of Route Y that had been closed for construction.

Apparently, the shotgun went off when the car hit a bump and the blast went through both the back seat and front seat, striking Hamra in the back.

The body is at H.S. Smith Funeral Home in Caruthersville, where arrangements are incomplete.

that the blood on the body and on the bed was still fresh when the body was found by a friend who stopped by to check on Mrs. Johnson.

Grant was originally picked up on a disturbing the peace warrant the day Mrs. Johnson's body was found and the murder charge was not filed until Aug. 20, after a thorough investigation.

Detective Sgt. Dan Hinton of the Sikeston Police Department was questioned extensively under cross-examination by the defense counsel about circumstances of the arrest and whether or not Grant had been advised of his constitutional rights.

Sgt. Hinton testified that he had asked Grant what he had done the night of July 7 -- the date of the disturbing the peace charge as well as the night of the slaying of Mrs. Johnson. Sgt. Hinton said the peace disturbance incident took place on Ruth Street, as did the slaying.

Sgt. Hinton said Grant understood his rights as read to him, and after waiving his rights, told him that he had gotten into a fight with his brother, who bloodied his mouth.

After the peace disturbance incident, Sgt. Hinton said Grant told him he stayed in his room and wiped his bleeding mouth with the only available cloth -- his pants -- and threw them in the corner. They were found the next morning by Police Lt. Anderson Walker.

Sgt. Hinton started his questioning of Grant about 9:30 a.m. July 8 in connection with the peace disturbance case, but a few minutes later included questioning about the murder.

At this point, the defense objected that Grant was under arrest and being questioned on a different charge without being read his rights.

Judge Briggs began to question Sgt. Hinton, to determine the validity of the objection, and it was determined that Grant had been informed of his rights and had waived them in connection with the peace disturbance charge, then had been informed of his rights again when Sgt. Hinton changed the area of questioning to include the murder.

Judge Briggs overruled the objection and allowed Sgt. Hinton's testimony to be admitted as evidence.

The state attempted to show that the murderer entered the Johnson home through an east window. In support of the position, testimony from Sgt. Hinton, Detective Lt. Jack Patterson and Sue Gardner, a friend of Mrs. Johnson's, was introduced.

Sgt. Hinton said flower pots on the ground outside the window indicated the intruder probably had removed them from a coffee table and dropped them out the window to get them out of his way. Also, he said glass on the table was broken.

"All this could have been done by the deceased," the defense interjected.

"Possibly," Sgt. Hinton replied.

Mrs. Gardner, 905 Davis Blvd., testified that she was in Mrs. Johnson's house just two days before the July 8 murder and that the flower pots were on the table and the glass was not cracked to her knowledge.

The state's case attempting to tie Grant with the murder consisted mainly of blood and pubic hair samples.

Dr. Robert Briner of Cape Girardeau, director of the Southeast Missouri Crime Laboratory on the Southeast Missouri State University campus at Cape Girardeau who was in charge of all the evidence collected, testified in this area.

He said a foreign pubic hair taken from the body of Mrs. Johnson matched the type of Grant's. Under cross-examination, however, he admitted, that it could also have come from a different source.

Dr. Briner stated that the blood stains on the pants Grant claimed to wipe his mouth with did not match his blood type, but did match the blood type of Mrs. Johnson.

Another stain was found on the pants which Dr. Briner said was seminal fluid that matched Grant's type, meaning that Grant had probably engaged in some sort of sexual activity recently. However, he said he had no way of knowing what kind.

Dr. Ahlvin's examination of Mrs. Johnson's body had discovered intact sperm, meaning she had had some kind of intercourse with a man recently.

Mrs. Johnson's body was covered with bloodied bed clothes, but examination revealed she was nude. The room was in disarray and the phone line had apparently been cut.

Also introduced into evidence by the state were two towels found in Mrs. Johnson's house and a similar towel found in a search of Grant's room.

Blood stains were found throughout the house and on the window sill above the point the flower pots were found, but under cross-examination, Dr. Briner said he had no way of determining how old the stains were.

Throughout the proceedings, Grant sat quietly, looking straight ahead.

The hearing took place in the Sikeston courtroom.

asked the governor to lend his influence in the drive to secure the pledges from the private sector and to instruct the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development to work with the various groups in the pledge drive.

"The potential benefits of having Missouri represented in the battle for world trade could be realized here in the southeastern area," he said. "This area boasts strong agricultural production, close proximity to economical river traffic and bountiful manpower. Southeast Missouri offers many attractive features for consideration by expanding international businesses."

The treasurer says he has observed the difficulty in recent years in the many attempts to fund an overseas office for Missouri. He noted that the current and preceding administrations have tried unsuccessfully to open such an office.

He said, "In their efforts to attract worldwide business they simply don't have one of the key tools with which to work--the active and material support of the business, financial, agricultural and industrial sectors of the state. I think most legislators will be more receptive if they are confronted with tangible evidence that these important elements of Missouri's economy are united in their desire to see Missouri actively soliciting foreign firms."

House votes today on oil price issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the House returns to work on its energy policy bill, Republicans are poised to try to knock out a section on oil price controls that President Ford feels may be a roadblock to compromise.

Meanwhile, the Senate was awaiting the outcome of today's House vote on pricing before deciding what to do about another bill, already passed by the House, that would extend controls through October.

The controversial section scheduled for a House vote would retain the $5.25-a-barrel ceiling on "old" domestic oil and immediately roll back the price of "new" oil from the uncontrolled price of about $13 to $7.50 a barrel.

The President could set a price in excess of $7.50 a barrel for Outer Continental Shelf and Arctic Circle oil, as well as expensive hard-to-drill petroleum.

The bulk of U.S. oil is classified as "old" because it comes from old wells producing less than their 1972 levels.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, ranking GOP member of the energy and power subcommittee, has introduced a motion to eliminate the oil price lids in the bill, but the needed Democratic support is doubtful.

Under the proposed bill, the amounts of oil classified as old would be slowly phased out so that after five years most domestic oil would be priced as new oil. In the sixth year after enactment of the bill, all oil would sell at an average of about $8.50 a barrel and be subject to an inflation adjustment.

Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., has said he expects the House to pass the energy legislation by Friday. It would then go to a Senate-House conference to settle differences with the Senate's energy bill.

But other members view this timetable as optimistic because of a long string of amendments that may be offered.

WRIGHT'S 69 WINS

HAUPPAUGE, N. Y. (AP) — Jimmy Wright of Inwood, N. Y., likes long golf courses because of his long and accurate wood shots. The former Metropolitan Open champion shot a 69 in the Pinter Tournament of Stars one-day pro-amateur at the 6,836-yard Colonie Hill course here. Wright's 32-37 score was the only below-par round of the day.

"Possibly," Sgt. Hinton replied.

Mrs. Gardner, 905 Davis Blvd., testified that she was in Mrs. Johnson's house just two days before the July 8 murder and that the flower pots were on the table and the glass was not cracked to her knowledge.

The state's case attempting to tie Grant with the murder consisted mainly of blood and pubic hair samples.

Dr. Robert Briner of Cape Girardeau, director of the Southeast Missouri Crime Laboratory on the Southeast Missouri State University campus at Cape Girardeau who was in charge of all the evidence collected, testified in this area.

He said a foreign pubic hair taken from the body of Mrs. Johnson matched the type of Grant's. Under cross-examination, however, he admitted, that it could also have come from a different source.

Dr. Briner stated that the blood stains on the pants Grant claimed to wipe his mouth with did not match his blood type, but did match the blood type of Mrs. Johnson.

Another stain was found on the pants which Dr. Briner said was seminal fluid that matched Grant's type, meaning that Grant had probably engaged in some sort of sexual activity recently. However, he said he had no way of knowing what kind.

Dr. Ahlvin's examination of Mrs. Johnson's body had discovered intact sperm, meaning she had had some kind of intercourse with a man recently.

Mrs. Johnson's body was covered with bloodied bed clothes, but examination revealed she was nude. The room was in disarray and the phone line had apparently been cut.

Also introduced into evidence by the state were two towels found in Mrs. Johnson's house and a similar towel found in a search of Grant's room.

Blood stains were found throughout the house and on the window sill above the point the flower pots were found, but under cross-examination, Dr. Briner said he had no way of determining how old the stains were.

Throughout the proceedings, Grant sat quietly, looking straight ahead.

The hearing took place in the Sikeston courtroom.

asked the governor to lend his influence in the drive to secure the pledges from the private sector and to instruct the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development to work with the various groups in the pledge drive.

"The potential benefits of having Missouri represented in the battle for world trade could be realized here in the southeastern area," he said. "This area boasts strong agricultural production, close proximity to economical river traffic and bountiful manpower. Southeast Missouri offers many attractive features for consideration by expanding international businesses."

The treasurer says he has observed the difficulty in recent years in the many attempts to fund an overseas office for Missouri. He noted that the current and preceding administrations have tried unsuccessfully to open such an office.

He said, "In their efforts to attract worldwide business they simply don't have one of the key tools with which to work--the active and material support of the business, financial, agricultural and industrial sectors of the state. I think most legislators will be more receptive if they are confronted with tangible evidence that these important elements of Missouri's economy are united in their desire to see Missouri actively soliciting foreign firms."

House votes today on oil price issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the House returns to work on its energy policy bill, Republicans are poised to try to knock out a section on oil price controls that President Ford feels may be a roadblock to compromise.

Meanwhile, the Senate was awaiting the outcome of today's House vote on pricing before deciding what to do about another bill, already passed by the House, that would extend controls through October.

The controversial section scheduled for a House vote would retain the $5.25-a-barrel ceiling on "old" domestic oil and immediately roll back the price of "new" oil from the uncontrolled price of about $13 to $7.50 a barrel.

The President could set a price in excess of $7.50 a barrel for Outer Continental Shelf and Arctic Circle oil, as well as expensive hard-to-drill petroleum.

The bulk of U.S. oil is classified as "old" because it comes from old wells producing less than their 1972 levels.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, ranking GOP member of the energy and power subcommittee, has introduced a motion to eliminate the oil price lids in the bill, but the needed Democratic support is doubtful.

Under the proposed bill, the amounts of oil classified as old would be slowly phased out so that after five years most domestic oil would be priced as new oil. In the sixth year after enactment of the bill, all oil would sell at an average of about $8.50 a barrel and be subject to an inflation adjustment.

Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., has said he expects the House to pass the energy legislation by Friday. It would then go to a Senate-House conference to settle differences with the Senate's energy bill.

But other members view this timetable as optimistic because of a long string of amendments that may be offered.

WRIGHT'S 69 WINS

HAUPPAUGE, N. Y. (AP) — Jimmy Wright of Inwood, N. Y., likes long golf courses because of his long and accurate wood shots. The former Metropolitan Open champion shot a 69 in the Pinter Tournament of Stars one-day pro-amateur at the 6,836-yard Colonie Hill course here. Wright's 32-37 score was the only below-par round of the day.

Mizzou faces Illini

COLUMBIA, Mo.--One game does not a season make--but it's a good confidence-builder.

That early line applies to both Missouri and Illinois as their football teams point to a series renewal in Champaign this Saturday. The ABC regionally-televised contest will start at 2:50 CDT--with 52,000-54,000 spectators on hand in Memorial Stadium.

Was Mizzou's televised upset of No. 2-ranked Alabama in Birmingham merely a one-shot production, or are the Tigers for real?

Are the Illini, 6-4-1 last year, poised to make their move into the Big Ten's upper strata? Coach Bob Blackman's Orange and Blue scrappers opened in style Saturday by stopping Iowa, 27-12, at Iowa City.

Al Onofrio, Tiger head coach, watched that one from the stands. He pegged the current Illinois team as "their best team in eight or nine years."

"Illinois has a very positive running attack," Onofrio said. "They feature a big line and big backs, and combine a power running attack with finesse. Defensively they look big and mobile. Their kicking game is superb."

For the Tigers, this is not just another intersectional bout. Ol' Mizzou recruits actively in Illinois, notably in the southern sector, and the Illini, likewise, work the St. Louis area. So--a victory by either team in this first match-up since 1969 will enhance recruiting prestige.

Missouri will start four former Illinois preps on offense, and one on defense. The offensive starters: Guard Joel Yearian, Woodridge; tackle James Taylor, Peoria (Woodruff); slotback Joe Stewart, Evanston; and fullback John Blakeman, Latham. The defensive regular is Bill Culp, Wood River.

For both teams, the obvious approach is to contain the other's running game, Tiger Tony Galbreath powered past Alabama's quick defenders for 120 rushing yards. The Illini's twin tailbacks, Chubby Phillips and Lonnie Perrin, netted 110 total yards against Iowa.

Neither club's passing game was sharp in the first outing. Mizzou's was less than adequate, in fact. Steve Pisarkiewicz connected on 3-of-10 for 40 yards and had one intercepted. Illinois' two quarterbacks, Jim Kopatz and Kurt Steger, completed 5-of-11 tosses for 47 yards.

The 225-pound Galbreath can expect to run against some variation of the eight-man front that Missouri laid on 'Bama. One of the Illini's reception committee will be Tony's former teammate at Indian Hills Community College in Centerville, Ia., 215-pound Dean March at end.

"Like most Big Ten teams, Illinois' defense is run-oriented," says Tiger scout Tony Steponovich. "Their 4-4 setup generally will be an eight-man defense against us. They are very physical, and will play it tough."

Big Red tackle Falcons Sunday

ST. LOUIS, Mo.--The St. Louis Football Cardinals open the 1975 National Football League regular season at home Sunday when they take on the Atlanta Falcons. Kickoff is set for 1:05 p.m. (CDT) in Busch Memorial Stadium.

It's an important opening test for the Cardinals, defending NFC Eastern Division champions who posted a 3-3 preseason mark, closing with a 21-17 loss to the Denver Broncos Sunday in Denver. Last year, the Big Red won its first seven regular season games en route to a 10-4 record and the first playoff berth in its St. Louis history.

The Falcons, who fell to a 3-11 record last year in the NFC West, also turned in a 3-3 preseason record, but Atlanta finished on a high note toppling the Philadelphia Eagles, 17-14, in Atlanta as rookie quarterback Steve Bartkowski passed for one touchdown and set up the Falcons' other TD with a 30-yard pass completion.

Following the Falcons' game, the Cardinals will begin a rugged string of five straight games against NFC East rivals. The games in order are a Dallas, against the New York Giants in St. Louis, at Washington, against Philadelphia in St. Louis and at the Giants.

"We are anxious to get the regular season going and know that we have a very challenging road ahead," Cardinal head coach Don Coryell said. "We accomplished a lot during the preseason and came through well from an injury standpoint. We feel Atlanta is a much improved team and have a lot of respect for them."

Against the Broncos, the Cardinals scored early and late but a 21-point-outburst by Denver in the second quarter insured the victory. The Broncos dominated the statistics, outrushing the Big Red, 224 yards to 101 with third-year running back Otis Armstrong gaining 130 yards and two touchdowns on 29 attempts. Running mate Jon Keyworth added 50 yards and the Broncos' third TD.

Denver led, 21-7, at halftime, but the Cardinal defense stiffened in the second half and the Big Red moved back into contention. Big plays on defense were a blocked field goal and pass interception by Norm Thompson. The Cardinals climbed to within 21-17 in the fourth quarter on a 38-yard touchdown pass from Jim Hart to Mel Gray and a 38-yard field goal by Jim Bakken.

Hart finished with 15 completions in 30 attempts for 218 yards but was intercepted twice. Gray caught four passes for 100 yards, including a 42-yarder.

The Big Red quarterback finished the preseason with 57 completions in 121 passes for 650 yards and three touchdowns. Gray was the leading receiver with 12 catches for 222 yards and rookie Jerry Latin paced the rushers with 224 yards on 57 carries.

The Cardinals' next home game will be against the New York Giants on October 5 at 1:05 p.m. (CDT).

Dexter honors Bland

The Dexter Board of Education paid tribute to one of Southeast Missouri's oldest and most consistent sports fans by naming the school's football stadium after Charles Bland. The official ceremony took place last Friday evening before the Jackson- Dexter football game.

More commonly known as "Seed" by Dexter residents, Bland was one of the biggest boosters of the present stadium, which lies west of Dexter High School. The field, which was constructed by the DHS building trades classes, opened play in 1963, when the Bearcats compiled a spotless 10-0 record.

"I'm proud," was Bland's simple reaction to the honor given him. "Seed" has been the play-by-play announcer over the Dexter High School public address system since it's installation in the 1940's and has not missed a football game in over 30 years. Opposing coaches have said that his ability to get the home crowd excited and behind the Dexter team is worth a touchdown a game to the Bearcats.

Bland has lived his entire life in Dexter, where he now serves as city collector. In addition to being public address announcer at football games, he runs the scoreboard at Dexter's home basketball and has served as Little League commissioner in the past.

A proclamation by the school board was read before the game last Friday night. It read:

WHEREAS Charles Bland has been an ardent and consistent supporter of athletics in both the community and Dexter schools for over 35 years, and

WHEREAS Charles Bland has always believed in good sportsmanship and adherance to the rules of the game, and

WHEREAS Charles Bland and his wife Ruth have always given generously of their time and money in helping provide banquets and recognition for the athletic teams, and

WHEREAS Charles Bland has served continuously as the announcer for all athletic events since the public address system became available, and

WHEREAS Charles Bland was effectively instrumental in helping promote a special tax to finance the construction of the football field and stadium,

BE IT RESOLVED that the football stadium of Dexter High School be officially named THE CHARLES BLAND STADIUM.

Done by the order of the Dexter Board of Education this twelfth day of August, 1975.

State grid changes approved

There was nothing close or undecided about the outcomes in last year's four state championship games in Missouri high school football. Columbia Hickman, Boonville, St. Louis Country Day and Lockwood all won by at least three touchdowns in claiming their respective state titles. Needless to say, all four would like to win again in 1975. Well, if they hope to accomplish said task this season, they'll have to work harder. Or, at least, longer. This year's playoff system has been expanded to allow for quarterfinal games, to be played November 14th, thus giving twice as many teams a chance to at least perform in the first round of playoffs.

Last year Hickman High of Columbia became the first non-metropolitan area team to claim a state title and, for the seventh time in seven years, there was a representative of one of the state's huge metropolitan areas, Kansas City or St. Louis. St. Louis Sumner's Bulldogs were the victims of a 54-6 thrashing by the Kewpies, by far the largest deficit in the seven Class 4-A championship games. Hickman is, and was, coached by Tom Travis.

Coach Gene Reagon will be trying once more to get his Boonville team to the finals where last year they belted Washington, 34-14.

Country Day, the St. Louis area small- school power, and Lockwood both look to return to the big game this season after lopsided victories of their own. Country Day whipped Pleasant Hill 34-7 and Lockwood blanked King City 34-0.

How do things look for repeat performances this year?

In 4-A, Sumner is the second- ranked school in the state by virtue of a win in their first game. Hickman, who has split the first two, is ranked tenth.

Neither Boonville or Washington received early ranking in 3-A, although Washington has the bulk of the district favorites.

Country Day, after winning its first contest, is ranked at the top of 2-A standings, although Pleasant Hill is missing. And, Lockwood is also ranked number one in 1-A with King City not listed among the elite.

Quarterfinal games are a first in 1975. Teams that have other opponents scheduled on the weekend of the 14-15th will have those games delaye duntil later, so it is conceivable that some Missouri high schools will be playing well into December.

However, espite the flaws, the plan has received almost universal approval. Teams such as Poplar Bluff, City and Jackson have missed out on trips to the playoffs in the past, despite fine records, because of the scarity of big-schools to play in the bootheel area. On at least two occasions, Scott City's Rams missed by just a fraction of a point. Now, with twice as many first-round berths, some of these teams with lesser scheduled will get a chance to show their strength also.

Illinois upset favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — For years, the so-called experts have been saying Ohio State plays a patsy schedule. For years, the so-called experts have been saying Penn State plays a patsy schedule.

So what happens when the twain shall meet? The answer is due Saturday when thirdranked Ohio State entertains senth-ranked Penn State at Columbus in what promises to be one of the top college football games of the season.

This is the first meeting between Woody Hayes and Joe Paterno, two of the nation's winningest coaches, although Hayes went up against Penn State three times when Rip Engle was at the helm of the Nittany Lions and Paterno was an assistant coach.

The results may urprise you. Penn State won 7-6 in 1955, 10-7 in 1963 and 27-0 in 1964. And way back in 1912, Penn State beat Ohio State 37-0. Time for a change ... Ohio State 24-17.

But take heart, Joe Paterno. Last week's predictions suffered a horrible fate ... 33 right, 21 wrong, one tie for a percentage of only .611. For the season, 50-26-2—.658.

Pitt at Oklahoma: Barry Switzer and Johnny Majors were on the staff at Arkansas in the 1960s and opposed each other in the 1974 Coaches' AllAmerican Game. Switzer won that one ... and Switzer wins this one ... Oklahoma 41-14.

Tennessee at UCLA: The pollsters say this is an even match with Tennessee ranked 10th and UCLA 12th. One hesitant vote for jet lag ... UCLA 28-24.

Notre Dame at Purdue: Dan Devine isn't happy about playing two road games in five days. Alex Agase isn't happy about losing to Northwestern and then facing Notre Dame and Southern Cal back-to-back. One of them will be happy Saturday ... Notre Dame 17-7.

Missouri at Illinois: Mizzou pulled the season's first big upset, whipping Alabama 20-7. Turnabout is fair play. Upset Special of the Week ... Illinois 20-13.

Texas A&M at Louisiana State: Has anyone seen the Aggies' offense? Second Upset Special ... LSU 13-10.

Stanford at Michigan: Cardinals gave the Wolverines a tough game last year in California. This one's in ... Michigan 28-7.

Texas at Washington: Quickie Quiz — Who was Washington's coach in 1956? Darrell Royal, that's who. Welcome back, Darrell ... Texas 40-14.

Oregon State at Southern California: If the Beavers couldn't score against San Diego State, how can they score on the Trojans? Southern Cal 34-0.

Indiana at Nebraska: Indiana may be better than people think, Nebraska not as good, both of which are lucky for the Hoosiers. Nebraska 31-14.

Clemson at Alabama: Bear Bryant hails from Fordyce, Ark., and Clemson's Red Parker once coached there. Clemson's no Missouri ... Alabama 38-10.

Auburn at Baylor: Auburn lost its defense but Baylor lost its quarterback ... Auburn 14-13.

Dexter honors Bland

The Dexter Board of Education paid tribute to one of Southeast Missouri's oldest and most consistent sports fans by naming the school's football stadium after Charles Bland. The official ceremony took place last Friday evening before the Jackson- Dexter football game.

More commonly known as "Seed" by Dexter residents, Bland was one of the biggest boosters of the present stadium, which lies west of Dexter High School. The field, which was constructed by the DHS building trades classes, opened play in 1963, when the Bearcats compiled a spotless 10-0 record.

"I'm proud," was Bland's simple reaction to the honor given him. "Seed" has been the play-by-play announcer over the Dexter High School public address system since it's installation in the 1940's and has not missed a football game in over 30 years. Opposing coaches have said that his ability to get the home crowd excited and behind the Dexter team is worth a touchdown a game to the Bearcats.

Bland has lived his entire life in Dexter, where he now serves as city collector. In addition to being public address announcer at football games, he runs the scoreboard at Dexter's home basketball and has served as Little League commissioner in the past.

A proclamation by the school board was read before the game last Friday night. It read:

WHEREAS Charles Bland has been an ardent and consistent supporter of athletics in both the community and Dexter schools for over 35 years, and

WHEREAS Charles Bland has always believed in good sportsmanship and adherance to the rules of the game, and

WHEREAS Charles Bland and his wife Ruth have always given generously of their time and money in helping provide banquets and recognition for the athletic teams, and

WHEREAS Charles Bland has served continuously as the announcer for all athletic events since the public address system became available, and

WHEREAS Charles Bland was effectively instrumental in helping promote a special tax to finance the construction of the football field and stadium,

BE IT RESOLVED that the football stadium of Dexter High School be officially named THE CHARLES BLAND STADIUM.

Done by the order of the Dexter Board of Education this twelfth day of August, 1975.

State grid changes approved

There was nothing close or undecided about the outcomes in last year's four state championship games in Missouri high school football. Columbia Hickman, Boonville, St. Louis Country Day and Lockwood all won by at least three touchdowns in claiming their respective state titles. Needless to say, all four would like to win again in 1975. Well, if they hope to accomplish said task this season, they'll have to work harder. Or, at least, longer. This year's playoff system has been expanded to allow for quarterfinal games, to be played November 14th, thus giving twice as many teams a chance to at least perform in the first round of playoffs.

Last year Hickman High of Columbia became the first non-metropolitan area team to claim a state title and, for the seventh time in seven years, there was a representative of one of the state's huge metropolitan areas, Kansas City or St. Louis. St. Louis Sumner's Bulldogs were the victims of a 54-6 thrashing by the Kewpies, by far the largest deficit in the seven Class 4-A championship games. Hickman is, and was, coached by Tom Travis.

Coach Gene Reagon will be trying once more to get his Boonville team to the finals where last year they belted Washington, 34-14.

Country Day, the St. Louis area small- school power, and Lockwood both look to return to the big game this season after lopsided victories of their own. Country Day whipped Pleasant Hill 34-7 and Lockwood blanked King City 34-0.

How do things look for repeat performances this year?

In 4-A, Sumner is the second- ranked school in the state by virtue of a win in their first game. Hickman, who has split the first two, is ranked tenth.

Neither Boonville or Washington received early ranking in 3-A, although Washington has the bulk of the district favorites.

Country Day, after winning its first contest, is ranked at the top of 2-A standings, although Pleasant Hill is missing. And, Lockwood is also ranked number one in 1-A with King City not listed among the elite.

Quarterfinal games are a first in 1975. Teams that have other opponents scheduled on the weekend of the 14-15th will have those games delaye duntil later, so it is conceivable that some Missouri high schools will be playing well into December.

However, espite the flaws, the plan has received almost universal approval. Teams such as Poplar Bluff, City and Jackson have missed out on trips to the playoffs in the past, despite fine records, because of the scarity of big-schools to play in the bootheel area. On at least two occasions, Scott City's Rams missed by just a fraction of a point. Now, with twice as many first-round berths, some of these teams with lesser scheduled will get a chance to show their strength also.

Illinois upset favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — For years, the so-called experts have been saying Ohio State plays a patsy schedule. For years, the so-called experts have been saying Penn State plays a patsy schedule.

So what happens when the twain shall meet? The answer is due Saturday when thirdranked Ohio State entertains senth-ranked Penn State at Columbus in what promises to be one of the top college football games of the season.

This is the first meeting between Woody Hayes and Joe Paterno, two of the nation's winningest coaches, although Hayes went up against Penn State three times when Rip Engle was at the helm of the Nittany Lions and Paterno was an assistant coach.

The results may urprise you. Penn State won 7-6 in 1955, 10-7 in 1963 and 27-0 in 1964. And way back in 1912, Penn State beat Ohio State 37-0. Time for a change ... Ohio State 24-17.

But take heart, Joe Paterno. Last week's predictions suffered a horrible fate ... 33 right, 21 wrong, one tie for a percentage of only .611. For the season, 50-26-2—.658.

Pitt at Oklahoma: Barry Switzer and Johnny Majors were on the staff at Arkansas in the 1960s and opposed each other in the 1974 Coaches' AllAmerican Game. Switzer won that one ... and Switzer wins this one ... Oklahoma 41-14.

Tennessee at UCLA: The pollsters say this is an even match with Tennessee ranked 10th and UCLA 12th. One hesitant vote for jet lag ... UCLA 28-24.

Notre Dame at Purdue: Dan Devine isn't happy about playing two road games in five days. Alex Agase isn't happy about losing to Northwestern and then facing Notre Dame and Southern Cal back-to-back. One of them will be happy Saturday ... Notre Dame 17-7.

Missouri at Illinois: Mizzou pulled the season's first big upset, whipping Alabama 20-7. Turnabout is fair play. Upset Special of the Week ... Illinois 20-13.

Texas A&M at Louisiana State: Has anyone seen the Aggies' offense? Second Upset Special ... LSU 13-10.

Stanford at Michigan: Cardinals gave the Wolverines a tough game last year in California. This one's in ... Michigan 28-7.

Texas at Washington: Quickie Quiz — Who was Washington's coach in 1956? Darrell Royal, that's who. Welcome back, Darrell ... Texas 40-14.

Oregon State at Southern California: If the Beavers couldn't score against San Diego State, how can they score on the Trojans? Southern Cal 34-0.

Indiana at Nebraska: Indiana may be better than people think, Nebraska not as good, both of which are lucky for the Hoosiers. Nebraska 31-14.

Clemson at Alabama: Bear Bryant hails from Fordyce, Ark., and Clemson's Red Parker once coached there. Clemson's no Missouri ... Alabama 38-10.

Auburn at Baylor: Auburn lost its defense but Baylor lost its quarterback ... Auburn 14-13.

Ducks Unlimited's 1975-76 Artist of the Year, Larry Toschik, works at his easel, while creating one of the sketches which evolved into his Artist of the Year Painting of "The Symphony of Autumn", featuring the handsome Canada goose. A rare artprint of this great nature painting will be a featured prize at the DU fund-raising party coming up on Oct. 6 at Ramada Inn in Sikeston. This unique print is one of a rare, limited edition series of only 850, each print numbered and personally inspected and signed by the artist.

DU banquet not far off

A dramatic and unique work of wildlife art will be a feature attraction at the Swampeast Mo. DU fund-raiding party, coming up on Oct. 6. Just one of the highlights of this enjoyable "night-for-the-ducks" will be the auction of one of the finest waterfowl art prints in recent years --- Ducks Unlimited's new "Artist of the Year" print for 1975-1976.

The title of this unique print --- "The Symphony of Autumn". The breath-taking original painting, featuring handsome Canada geese, was created especially for DU by one of the world's truly great wildlife artists, Larry Toschik of Phoenix, Arizona, who is the new Ducks Unlimited "Artist of the Year" for 1975-1976.

The print being spotlighted is one of a special, extra quality series of only 850 prints, each personally inspected, numbered and signed by the artist, thereby lending great collector's value. "The Symphony of Autumn" is truly dramatic 'marsh-scape', picturing one of America's favorite waterfowl in a spine-tingling autumn setting. The scene is impressive in size --- 17 inches high by 23 inches wide, painstakingly lithographed on heavy, quality paper, 32 inches wide by 24 inches high.

Here's your chance to perhaps get one of these rare, beautiful prints for your own collection. These special, limited edition art prints -- from a numbered sereies of only 850, personally signed by Ducks Unlimited's "Artist of the Year", Larry Toschik --- are not available in any other manner --- they must be purchased at auction at Ducks Unlimited fund-raising events. Here's a chance you won't want to miss! Be sure to attend Swampeast Missouri's DU party, Oct. 6, at Sikeston Ramada Inn.

Mens tennis tourney set

The country club tennis courts will be the site of the Sikeston Country Club Mens Open Tennis Tournament this Saturday and Sunday, September 20 and 21.

The tournament, which is in its 10th year, is a completely open event. Ken Masterson, who is co-chairman of the tournament along with Fred Steward, noted that entries have been received from Kentucky, Arkansas and Illinois in the past. "Some collegiate doubles teams have entered our tournament before," said Masterson, who added that he expects anywhere from 50 to 75 entries in all for the two-day event.

There will be four classes of competition -- mens open singles, mens open doubles, mens 35 and over singles and mens 35 and over doubles. Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runner-up in each event.

Entry fees will be $2.00 per person and $4.00 per team for each event entered. Entries should be mailed to Ken Masterson, P. O. Box 1065, Sikeston, Mo. 63801. Persons may enter only one singles and two doubles events.

Each team must furnish a new can of tennis balls for each event. The winner of the match will keep the new balls, while the loser gets the old ones. Balls will be provided for the finals.

The tournament will begin at 9:00 a.m. Saturday. Play will continue throughout Saturday and should conclude Sunday afternoon or evening, according to Masterson. Trphies will be presented at the conclusion of the competition Sunday.

For further information, contact Ken Masterson (471-8200 day and 472-0570 night) or Fred Steward (471-2121 Day and 471-2241 night).

STAR GAME

KELSO — Earl Cotner, Tom Ressel and Orval Enderle combined to hurl eight shutout innings Sunday afternoon to lead the Bob Kindle squad to a 4-1 win over the Charlie Bertrand team in the SEMO Mens Softball League all-star game. The teams were chosen by the players in the ten-team league.

The Bertrand squad scored their only run in the first inning to take a 1-0 lead, but the Kindle team scored twice in the second to go ahead 2-1. Brad Emerson socked a homer in the third to make it 3-1. The winners added their final run in the seventh.

Metz and Craft had two hits each for the losers, who outhit the Kindle crew 7-5.

Ozark plays cards right

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The effects of an uphill struggle have yet to take their toll on the faculties of Danny Ozark.

And, when the manager of the Philadelphia Phillies spotted a chance Tuesday night, he capitalized to produce a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the 13th inning.

"That's why I put him in there," a smiling Ozark explained after Alan Bannister, a pinch-runner, was inserted to score the winning run.

"Greg (Luzinski) would never have made it,'" he added in reference to Bannister's safe dash home on Mike Anderson's sacrifice fly.

The triumph, earning a split in a two-game series, left the Phils six games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates and still hopeful of snaring the National League East Division title.

"I'm only thinking about one game at a time," maintained Ozark, whose club returns home tonight to begin a two-game series against Pittsburgh.

"We're going to have to beat them and we're going to have to get help," he added realistically.

"We haven't been on a long streak all year," Ozark said. "I'm optimistic enough to say we'll win the remaining games (six of 12 overall) at home."

Phils optimism, real or imagined, alternately ebbed and flowed in a marathon requiring 3 hours and 36 minutes to subdue the Cards.

A three-run Philadelphia burst in the opening inning was subsequently overcome by single St. Louis runs in the first, third and sixth innings before extra innings ensued.

Luzinski walked with one out in the 13th, lumbered to second on Dick Allen's single and was replaced by Bannister on the basepaths.

Harry Parker then relieved Mike Garman, 3-7, as the Cards' pitcher and walked Mike Schmidt to load the bases before Anderson drove a fly ball to medium-deep center.

"At first I thought the throw was going to get him," St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst said in respect to Bake McBride's accurate peg to the plate aimed at nailing Bannister, "but it wasn't strong enough."

KELSO — Earl Cotner, Tom Ressel and Orval Enderle combined to hurl eight shutout innings Sunday afternoon to lead the Bob Kindle squad to a 4-1 win over the Charlie Bertrand team in the SEMO Mens Softball League all-star game. The teams were chosen by the players in the ten-team league.

The Bertrand squad scored their only run in the first inning to take a 1-0 lead, but the Kindle team scored twice in the second to go ahead 2-1. Brad Emerson socked a homer in the third to make it 3-1. The winners added their final run in the seventh.

Metz and Craft had two hits each for the losers, who outhit the Kindle crew 7-5.

Ozark plays cards right

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The effects of an uphill struggle have yet to take their toll on the faculties of Danny Ozark.

And, when the manager of the Philadelphia Phillies spotted a chance Tuesday night, he capitalized to produce a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the 13th inning.

"That's why I put him in there," a smiling Ozark explained after Alan Bannister, a pinch-runner, was inserted to score the winning run.

"Greg (Luzinski) would never have made it," he added in reference to Bannister's safe dash home on Mike Anderson's sacrifice fly.

The triumph, earning a split in a two-game series, left the Phils six games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates and still hopeful of snaring the National League East Division title.

"I'm only thinking about one game at a time," maintained Ozark, whose club returns home tonight to begin a two-game series against Pittsburgh.

"We're going to have to beat them and we're going to have to get help," he added realistically.

"We haven't been on a long streak all year," Ozark said. "I'm optimistic enough to say we'll win the remaining games (six of 12 overall) at home."

Phils optimism, real or imagined, alternately ebbed and flowed in a marathon requiring 3 hours and 36 minutes to subdue the Cards.

A three-run Philadelphia burst in the opening inning was subsequently overcome by single St. Louis runs in the first, third and sixth innings before extra innings ensued.

Luzinski walked with one out in the 13th, lumbered to second on Dick Allen's single and was replaced by Bannister on the basepaths.

Harry Parker then relieved Mike Garman, 3-7, as the Cards' pitcher and walked Mike Schmidt to load the bases before Anderson drove a fly ball to medium-deep center.

"At first I thought the throw was going to get him," St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst said in respect to Bake McBride's accurate peg to the plate aimed at nailing Bannister, "but it wasn't strong enough."

Missouri remains fifth in AP poll

.. By The Associated Press

Mighty Oklahoma maintained its hold on the top spot in the weekly Associated Press college football rankings today by an overwhelming margin, but there's an interesting battle shaping for runner-up honors between Big 10 powers Michigan and Ohio State.

The defending champion Sooners, on the strength of 53 first-place votes in the Top Twents balloting released Tuesday, compiled 1,130 of a possible 1,140 points from a nationwide panel of 57 sports writers and broadcasters. Oklahoma was impressive Saturday in whipping Oregon 62-7.

A scant nine points separate second-ranked Michigan and No. 3-rated Ohio State. The Wolverines have amassed 931 points and the Buckeyes 922 with each team collecting a pair of first-place votes. Michigan topped Wisconsin 23-6 and Ohio State disposed of Michigan State 21-0 last weekend.

Oklahoma, Michigan and Ohio State ranked 1-2-3 a week ago. Also repeating from last week in the fourth through sixth spots were Southern California, Missouri and Nebraska. Fourth-ranked USC has 685 points after beating Duke 35-7, idle Missouri, No. 5, polled 632 points and sixth-rated Nebraska received 478 as a result of a 10-7 victory over LSU.

Penn State climbed to seventh from 10th with 433 points after defeating Stanford 34-14, and Texas and Tennessee moved into the Top Ten for the first time this season.

Texas, 12th last week, advanced to eighth with 427 points by beating Colorado State 46-0 and Tennessee jumped from 20th to 10th with 310 after downing Maryland, which had been 14th, 26-8.

Notre Dame, 17-3 winners over Boston College Monday night, remained ninth with 392 points.

Auburn, Michigan State, Maryland and North Carolina State suffered a lost weekend and all dropped out of the Top Twenty.

The AP's Second Ten lists of Texas A&M, UCLA, Florida, Alabama, Pitt, Arkansas, Arizona, Arizona State, Miami of Ohio and West Virginia.

Iowa 16, Syracuse 13; Kentucky 24, Kansas 14; Arkansas 21, Oklahoma State 20; Michigan State 20, Miami of Ohio 17; Colorado 56, Wyoming 0; Drake 21, Louisville 14; Iowa State 28, Air Force 7; Kansas State 27, Wichita State 13; Minnesota 34, Western Michigan 14; Northwestern 28, Northern Illinois 7; Wisconsin 38, South Dakota 13.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams announced Tuesday they had signed punter Duane Carrell and released punter Jim McCann.

NFL strike divides players

The National Football League, five days away from opening its 1975 season, is in a state of chaos.

The players are angry and disorganized.

The owners are indignant, more or less unified, and feel they have a sacred trust to uphold the integrity of the game.

And the fans — remember them? — are confused, unhappy and tired of having their sports pages taken up with endless tales of strikes, lockouts and collective bargaining when they should be reading about flashy rookies and shrewd game plans.

The New England Patriots lit the spark in this latest dispute when they went on strike and skipped last Sunday's exhibition game with the New York Jets in an attempt to force a new contract. New England officials responded by locking the players out of training camp. The fire spread Tuesday with the Jets and the Washington Redskins joining the Pats on strike, and sources close to the New York Giants and Detroit Lions said those clubs may join the strike today.

Unity, however, is not the players' strong point. Houston, Cincinnati, Minnesota and Miami, among others, have come out firmly against the strike.

"We'll play this week whether it's against the Shreveport Steamer, New Orleans or New England," said Oilers' player representative Skip Butler. "We voted 43-0 not to strike at this time. The Oilers will continue to practice and will play football Sunday."

"We're just going to sit here and see what happens when the smoke clears," said the Bengals' Bob Johnson. "The mainstream of the league isn't even behind it."

The latest bid by the NFL Management Council, bargaining agent for the owners, was a six-point proposal that, in essence, called for the Patriots to return to camp and management to present a new contract offer by Sept. 25.

New England rejected the proposal and the strike spread to New York and Washington.

"We saw a lot of teams giving New England lip service and we decided to do nothing wishy-washy," said Jets' player rep Richard Neal. "We need something to show us they're serious about doing something to obtain a fair and just bargaining agreement."

The two sides couldn't even agree on the origin of the six-point offer. Ed Garvey, executive director of the players' union, claimed federal mediator W. J. Usery had originally proposed eight points, two of which would have increased rosters from 43 to 46 players until Oct. 1 and temporarily reinstated the old 1970 contract. Both points were turned down by the Management Council.

Sargent Karch, executive director of the Council, said Usery never recommended the eight points and that Garvey had a hand in preparing them.

The Management Council met Tuesday night to talk things over and spokesman Terry Bledsoe said afterwards, "I would have to say the regular season is in jeopardy. We have three clubs which have voted not to strike and three clubs which voted to strike — and the rest are floating someplace in between."

An Associated Press survey found that five teams are on strike or on the verge of striking, seven teams are dead set against a strike and the other 14 haven't decided what to do yet.

Should the strike spread into the regular season, the players will be hurt financially more than the owners, at least for the first few games. The average NFL player made $42,000 last season, 85 per cent of it spread out over the 14 weeks of the regular season.

The average player would lose about $2,550 for each game he misses.

Cason would favor mandatory sentence

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Missouri General Assembly should enact a mandatory 10-year prison sentence for persons who use firearms in the commission of a crime, Sheriff Kenneth Carnes of Jackson County said Monday.

Carnes told a Missouri Senate committee on urban problems that the firearms sentence should be added to any sentence for the commission of a crime.

"We are finding that a man who commits a robbery is sentenced to five years in prison, maybe is released in 18 months. This is too soon when we are trying to protect the citizens of Jackson County," Carnes said.

Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, chairman of the committee, said he would favor such a law and noted that a bill establishing a five-year sentence has already been introduced in the General Assembly.

"This is certainly an interesting approach to gun control. Some sort of mandatory sentence is certainly a step in the right direction," said Cason, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor.

Rules proposed for health spas

Up, down. Up, down. Breath deeply. Stretch those muscles!

Millions of Americans are turning to exercise to help keep in shape and the health spa business is booming.

The industry has grown tremendously since the 1950s and so has the number of consumer complaints, prompting the Federal Trade Commission to propose a series of regulations for health spas.

The proposed rules — subject to public comment and hearings — make it easier for customers to cancel contracts with health spas and prohibit long-term arrangements.

Here are some questions and answers about spas and proposed rules:

Q. What is a health spa?

A. According to the FTC definition, a health spa is "an establishment which provides as one of its primary purposes services or facilities which are purported to assist patrons to improve their physical condition or appearance through change in weight, weight control, treatment, dieting or exercise. The term includes an establishment designated as 'reducing salon,' 'health spa ,'' 'spa,' 'exercise gym,' 'health studio,' 'health club' or by other terms of similar import."

The recently formed Association of Physical Fitness Centers defines a health spa as a place offering "a contract for instruction, training or assistance in physical culture, exercising, reducing, physical development or any other such activity or for the use of the facilities of a health spa, gymnasium or other facility used for any of the above purposes ..."

Q. Does that cover everything from a one-room gym to one of the posh reducing salons that draw the wealthy to lose weight?

A. The FTC isn't sure. It is seeking public comment on whether its definition is too broad. The industry trade association said it welcomes all members providing "progressive resistance exercise." That excludes reducing salons that promise weight loss without effort through machines that do all the work.

Q. How many health spas are there?

A. No one knows. An FTC spokesman said it's "almost impossible" to count them because the Commerce Department lumps spas in with other personal service industries. Jimmy Johnson, acting executive director of the trade association, said his group's membership includes 15 major companies with 320 spas serving a million and one half people.

Q. What about all those glowing advertisements?

A. The FTC said that it has reason to believe many of the spas engage in deceptive and misleading advertising and sales tachniques, using so-called "bait-and-switch" tactics and misrepresenting the types of programs available and the length of enrollment required.

The industry association has developed a code of ethics that bans, among other things: promoting short-term or limited membership plans without having such plans available for all interested customers; claiming that substantial body proportion changes or specific physical results are possible without also stressing the need for continued and regular adherence to an exercise program and a proper nutritional diet; advertising a discount or special price unless it relates to a program regularly available and sold at a higher pricce.

Q. Exactly what do the FTC proposals say?

A. The key provisions deal with cancellation and length of contracts. The rules would allow a buyer to cancel a contract within a three-day cooling-off period and get a full refund. A customer also could cancel, at any time, for any reason, and get a partial refund, depending on how long the contract had to run. The rules prohibit contracts for more than a two-year period.

Johnson said the industry would have no objections to the three-day cancellation period. The association's code of ethics already allow a two-day cooling-off period.

Johnson said he was opposed, however, to the period allowing cancellation at any time. The spa's biggest expense in connection with a new customer is the initial effort, he said, and it is not fair to simply allow people a refund on a pro-rated, time basis. "They've destroyed the right of contract," he said.

Johnson said the spas which are members of his association do not issue contracts based on a specific number of lessons or visits, making it difficult to determine what portion of a contract has been used. "We're more analagous to a country club or the YMCA," he said. The spa provides the facilities and members may use them as often or as seldom as they want.

Q. How much will a spa cost me?

A. As much, or as little, as you want to pay. Johnson said the average price for his members is $500 to $550 for a two-year period. After that, customers can renew their membership for an annual "dues" fee equal to about 10 per cent of the initial charge.

Q. What if I want to comment on the rules?

A. Interested parties are invited to submit comments to the Special Assistant Director for Rulemaking, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580. The deadline is Oct. 20. Copies of the proposed regulations are available from the Division of Legal and Public Records, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580

Ag department wants to hear from producers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department wants to hear from egg producers before finally adopting procedures for a referendum on a new egg research and promotion campaign authorized by Congress almost a year ago.

A proposal to be officially published today would permit commercial egg producers owning more than 3,000 laying hens to vote in a nationwide referendum on whether to set up the program authorized by the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act approved in October 1974.

Officials said that ground rules for conducting the vote must be set before a referendum time is announced. Further, they said, the proposed egg program has not yet been adopted finally by USDA, although hearings earlier this year showed support for it.

The department last month issued a "tentative" approval of the research and promotion program, subject to the referendum. Officials have estimated that up to $7 million annually might be collected if egg producers agree to the terms.

Cason would favor mandatory sentence

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Missouri General Assembly should enact a mandatory 10-year prison sentence for persons who use firearms in the commission of a crime, Sheriff Kenneth Carnes of Jackson County said Monday.

Carnes told a Missouri Senate committee on urban problems that the firearms sentence should be added to any sentence for the commission of a crime.

"We are finding that a man who commits a robbery is sentenced to five years in prison, maybe is released in 18 months. This is too soon when we are trying to protect the citizens of Jackson County," Carnes said.

Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, chairman of the committee, said he would favor such a law and noted that a bill establishing a five-year sentence has already been introduced in the General Assembly.

"This is certainly an interesting approach to gun control. Some sort of mandatory sentence is certainly a step in the right direction," said Cason, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor.

Rules proposed for health spas

Up, down. Up, down. Breath deeply. Stretch those muscles!

Millions of Americans are turning to exercise to help keep in shape and the health spa business is booming.

The industry has grown tremendously since the 1950s and so has the number of consumer complaints, prompting the Federal Trade Commission to propose a series of regulations for health spas.

The proposed rules — subject to public comment and hearings — make it easier for customers to cancel contracts with health spas and prohibit long-term arrangements.

Here are some questions and answers about spas and proposed rules:

Q. What is a health spa?

A. According to the FTC definition, a health spa is "an establishment which provides as one of its primary purposes services or facilities which are purported to assist patrons to improve their physical condition or appearance through change in weight, weight control, treatment, dieting or exercise. The term includes an establishment designated as 'reducing salon,' 'health spa,' 'spa,' 'exercise gym,' 'health studio,' 'health club' or by other terms of similar import."

The recently formed Association of Physical Fitness Centers defines a health spa as a place offering "a contract for instruction, training or assistance in physical culture, exercising, reducing, physical development or any other such activity or for the use of the facilities of a health spa, gymnasium or other facility used for any of the above purposes ..."

Q. Does that cover everything from a one-room gym to one of the posh reducing salons that draw the wealthy to lose weight?

A. The FTC isn't sure. It is seeking public comment on whether its definition is too broad. The industry trade association said it welcomes all members providing "progressive resistance exercise." That excludes reducing salons that promise weight loss without effort through machines that do all the work.

Q. How many health spas are there?

A. No one knows. An FTC spokesman said it's "almost impossible" to count them because the Commerce Department lumps spas in with other personal service industries. Jimmy Johnson, acting executive director of the trade association, said his group's membership includes 15 major companies with 320 spas serving a million and one half people.

Q. What about all those glowing advertisements?

A. The FTC said that it has reason to believe many of the spas engage in deceptive and misleading advertising and sales tachniques, using so-called "bait-and-switch" tactics and misrepresenting the types of programs available and the length of enrollment required.

The industry association has developed a code of ethics that bans, among other things: promoting short-term or limited membership plans without having such plans available for all interested customers; claiming that substantial body proportion changes or specific physical results are possible without also stressing the need for continued and regular adherence to an exercise program and a proper nutritional diet; advertising a discount or special price unless it relates to a program regularly available and sold at a higher pricce.

Q. Exactly what do the FTC proposals say?

A. The key provisions deal with cancellation and length of contracts. The rules would allow a buyer to cancel a contract within a three-day cooling-off period and get a full refund. A customer also could cancel, at any time, for any reason, and get a partial refund, depending on how long the contract had to run. The rules prohibit contracts for more than a two-year period.

Johnson said the industry would have no objections to the three-day cancellation period. The association's code of ethics already allow a two-day cooling-off period.

Johnson said he was opposed, however, to the period allowing cancellation at any time. The spa's biggest expense in connection with a new customer is the initial effort, he said, and it is not fair to simply allow people a refund on a pro-rated, time basis. "They've destroyed the right of contract," he said.

Johnson said the spas which are members of his association do not issue contracts based on a specific number of lessons or visits, making it difficult to determine what portion of a contract has been used. "We're more analagous to a country club or the YMCA," he said. The spa provides the facilities and members may use them as often or as seldom as they want.

Q. How much will a spa cost me?

A. As much, or as little, as you want to pay. Johnson said the average price for his members is $500 to $550 for a two-year period. After that, customers can renew their membership for an annual "dues" fee equal to about 10 per cent of the initial charge.

Q. What if I want to comment on the rules?

A. Interested parties are invited to submit comments to the Special Assistant Director for Rulemaking, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580. The deadline is Oct. 20. Copies of the proposed regulations are available from the Division of Legal and Public Records, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580

Ag department wants to hear from producers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department wants to hear from egg producers before finally adopting procedures for a referendum on a new egg research and promotion campaign authorized by Congress almost a year ago.

A proposal to be officially published today would permit commercial egg producers owning more than 3,000 laying hens to vote in a nationwide referendum on whether to set up the program authorized by the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act approved in October 1974.

Officials said that ground rules for conducting the vote must be set before a referendum time is announced. Further, they said, the proposed egg program has not yet been adopted finally by USDA, although hearings earlier this year showed support for it.

The department last month issued a "tentative" approval of the research and promotion program, subject to the referendum. Officials have estimated that up to $7 million annually might be collected if egg producers agree to the terms.

Court upholds lower court rule on breathalyzer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Motorists believed to be driving while intoxicated have no right to have an attorney present when they are asked to take the breathalyzer test, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled.

The decision upheld a lower court ruling by Callaway County Circuit Court Judge John M. Cave in which the suspension of the license of Joseph F. Deimeke for one year for refusing to take the test was affirmed.

When arrested, Deimeke was told his rights, including his right to an attorney. He spoke with his attorney by telephone, who advised him not to take the test unless the lawyer was present.

His attorney was about 40 minutes away and so Diemeke refused to take the test until his lawyer arrived. The state patrolman, who had arrested Deimeke, marked that as a refusal to take the test, which is automatic grounds for license suspension.

The high court, citing numerous other decisions, said there is no constitutional right to consult with an attorney prior to deciding whether to submit to a breathalyzer test nor does a person have a constitutional or statutory right to have an attorney present for such a test.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Motorists believed to be driving while intoxicated have no right to have an attorney present when they are asked to take the breathalyzer test, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled.

The decision upheld a lower court ruling by Callaway County Circuit Court Judge John M. Cave in which the suspension of the license of Joseph F. Deimeke for one year for refusing to take the test was affirmed.

When arrested, Deimeke was told his rights, including his right to an attorney. He spoke with his attorney by telephone, who advised him not to take the test unless the lawyer was present.

His attorney was about 40 minutes away and so Diemeke refused to take the test until his lawyer arrived. The state patrolman, who had arrested Deimeke, marked that as a refusal to take the test, which is automatic grounds for license suspension.

The high court, citing numerous other decisions, said there is no constitutional right to consult with an attorney prior to deciding whether to submit to a breathalyzer test nor does a person have a constitutional or statutory right to have an attorney present for such a test.

CITY OF SIKESTON, MO.
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1 ½'' hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6'' soil cement base on Maude Street from the east side of Petty Street to the west side of Fair Street in the city of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the council of the city of Sikeston, state of Missouri, as follows: section 1: that the council of the city of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the city of Sikeston. section 2: that the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. section 3: that the estimated cost of the improvement is $5.65 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. section 4: that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the state of Missouri and the ordinances of the city of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the city council the general revenue fund of the city of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. section 5: that any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the state of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the industrial commission of Missouri. section 6: that the city clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the city of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 8th day of September, 1975. Approved: Don Fulton, Mayor; Attest: S. Lynn Lancaster, City Clerk.

What's the law?

The case of the tom turkey relative

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Amos didn't believe in the theory of relativity, particularly when the relative was a judge. Accused of shooting Zeke during a robbery, Amos was brought before a judge who turned out to be Zeke's second cousin.

And when Amos was convicted of the crime, he immediately appealed the validity of his conviction.

"I was like a Tom Turkey before Thanksgiving," he complained. "With Zeks's second cousin sitting on the bench, I didn't stand a chance. Being a kin to the alleged victim, the judge was biased against me and should have disqualified himself. He should have permitted another judge to hear the case."

"A second cousin isn't a close relative," responded the state's attorney. "He's more of a family reference. Consequently, Amos has no basis for his complaint."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you set aside Amos' conviction because of the kinship between his alleged victim and the judge? This is how the judge ruled: NO!

The judge held that being the second cousin to a person involved in a case is too distant a relationship to require a judge to disqualify himself. In the absence of circumstances that would tend to cast doubt as to the fairness of his actions, the question of bias or prejudice rests largely within the conscience of the judge himself.

Litton defends campaign plans

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., has defended his planned use of excerpts from his monthly television show "Dialogue" in campaign films, contended that the benefits to be derived will be no greater than those Rep. James Symington, D-Mo., will receive from his father's name.

Symington, who will oppose Litton for nomination to the U.S. Senate seat held by Stewart Symington, had written letters to 19 guests who have appeared on the Chillicothe Congressman's show, warning them that excerpts of the show may be used in Litton's campaign. The show is seen on nine television stations and aired on 16 radio stations in Missouri.

Litton told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that the programs featuring such people as House majority leader Carl Albert and Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, will not be used for such political gain.

In letters sent to guests on the show, Litton said, "These programs have not and will not be used as endorsements by you of my candidacy."

Symington had declared that the production costs of the television shows should be charged against Litton's campaign spending limit for next year's primary election.

Morehouse--Monday morning, September 14, Mrs. W.M. Mocabee of Morehouse passed away in a hospital at Poplar Bluff. Mrs. Mocabee had been ill about a week and her death was caused by a ruptured blood vessel on the brain.

Chas. W. Clark, night patrolman, was struck and fatally injured by a Ford touring car Wednesday afternoon. Clark was crossing the street from the Jefferson Hotel to the show room of the Crumpacker-Randall Motor Car Co., when a truck driven by Alton Cox, slowed up to let Clark pass. Clark also stopped, and the truck, which was going west, continued its course. The Ford car was about 30 feet behind the truck, and Mr. Clark, being blind in his right eye, did not see the approaching car and stepped directly in front of it.

Wilbur Smith of Crowder, aged 25 years, employed by the Frisco Railroad, was killed last Sunday when the Ford touring car which he was driving overturned, pinning his body beneath the running board.

Burrell Tickel, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Tickel, died at St. Mary's Hospital in Cairo, Saturday, following an operation for appendicitis.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wish you would tell us something about shingles. Are they caused by a virus? Could this be the fault of chemicals in the water we drink? I never knew they are under the skin, just a few appearing on the outside of the skin. They are very painful. Could shots or cortisone help the victim? How long do they last under medication? Is there any way to prevent attacks?

DEAR READER — This is a relatively common disorder in older people. It is said that about half of the people who reach 85 have had at least one attack.

No, shingles, technically called herpes zoster, is not caused by your drinking water, but by the same virus that causes chicken pox. The virus lies dormant in the nerves for years and then becomes active.

You have a nerve to each side of your body that comes out of the spinal cord at each level of the vertebrae. One part or main branch of this is the sensory nerve. It is the part usually affected. One of the nerves running along the rib is the one most commonly involved. A nerve to the face can also be affected.

The area of skin supplied by the sensory nerve will begin to hurt, burn or itch. It may then turn red and about four days later small blisters will break out on the surface of the skin. Although the blisters may disappear within 10 days, the pain and inflammation often last a month. And even worse, in about a third of patients over 40 years of age residual pain persists for months and even years.

Occasionally one may catch chicken pox from a patient with shingles. You can't catch the shingles from a person with the chicken pox, though, nor can you catch shingles from a person with shingles.

The treatment is pretty unsatisfactory. You can treat the pain in the short-term illnesses with symptomatic measures, including calamine lotion and analgesics. A lot of medicines that have been used have been proved to be of little or no benefit. These include antibiotics, vitamins, irradiation and gamma globulin.

Cortisone products are helpful in shortening the duration of the pain but the skin doesn't heal any faster. These agents may lead to spread of the virus. The prolonged pain that persists for months is particularly hard to treat. If you give narcotics you may have a patient who will become an addict, because you have to use so much for so long.

Local injections and even sectioning the involved nerve has proved to be useless in relieving the pain. Operation at the spinal cord level is done in severe cases.

How can you prevent the disease? Obviously the best way would be to prevent chicken pox. That way you wouldn't have the virus in your body that causes herpes zoster in later years. Unfortunately there is no vaccine to prevent it. Chicken pox can be modified by gamma globulin, but that won't protect you from shingles later.

Finally, if you have an attack of shingles and recover you are not immune and can have another attack at a later date.

CHICAGO (AP) — The U.S. flag code provides the basic rules for displaying and caring for the flag, according to the World Book Encyclopedia.

For example, when the U.S. flag flies with other flags, the code requires that all staff heights be equal and the U.S. flag be on the right. There are two exceptions to this rule: the United States flag flies above all flags at U.N. headquarters in New York City and the church pennant flies over the U.S. flag while naval chaplains conduct services at sea.

It takes two halves to make a whole house air conditioning system.
York tells the whole story!

THE OUTSIDE HALF EVERYONE TALKS ABOUT
...and York does, too, because York's new Champion IV is a quality unit that provides an optimum combination of efficient, quiet, dependable operation, plus easy serviceability.

THE INSIDE HALF THAT ONLY YORK CAN TALK ABOUT
...because only York has the FlatTop Coil — which can mean fuel savings, extension of furnace life, less installation expense, among many other benefits.

Only half the height of "A" coils others will install on your furnace.

What's the law?

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Amos didn't believe in the theory of relativity, particularly when the relative was a judge. Accused of shooting Zeke during a robbery, Amos was brought before a judge who turned out to be Zeke's second cousin.

And when Amos was convicted of the crime, he immediately appealed the validity of his conviction.

"I was like a Tom Turkey before Thanksgiving," he complained. "With Zeks's second cousin sitting on the bench, I didn't stand a chance. Being a kin to the alleged victim, the judge was biased against me and should have disqualified himself. He should have permitted another judge to hear the case."

"A second cousin isn't a close relative," responded the state's attorney. "He's more of a family reference. Consequently, Amos has no basis for his complaint."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you set aside Amos' conviction because of the kinship between his alleged victim and the judge? This is how the judge ruled: NO!

The judge held that being the second cousin to a person involved in a case is too distant a relationship to require a judge to disqualify himself. In the absence of circumstances that would tend to cast doubt as to the fairness of his actions, the question of bias or prejudice rests largely within the conscience of the judge himself.

Litton defends campaign plans

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., has defended his planned use of excerpts from his monthly television show "Dialogue" in campaign films, contended that the benefits to be derived will be no greater than those Rep. James Symington, D-Mo., will receive from his father's name.

Symington, who will oppose Litton for nomination to the U.S. Senate seat held by Stewart Symington, had written letters to 19 guests who have appeared on the Chillicothe Congressman's show, warning them that excerpts of the show may be used in Litton's campaign. The show is seen on nine television stations and aired on 16 radio stations in Missouri.

Litton told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that the programs featuring such people as House majority leader Carl Albert and Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, will not be used for such political gain.

In letters sent to guests on the show, Litton said, "These programs have not and will not be used as endorsements by you of my candidacy."

Symington had declared that the production costs of the television shows should be charged against Litton's campaign spending limit for next year's primary election.

Morehouse--Monday morning, September 14, Mrs. W.M. Mocabee of Morehouse passed away in a hospital at Poplar Bluff. Mrs. Mocabee had been ill about a week and her death was caused by a ruptured blood vessel on the brain.

Chas. W. Clark, night patrolman, was struck and fatally injured by a Ford touring car Wednesday afternoon. Clark was crossing the street from the Jefferson Hotel to the show room of the Crumpecker-Randall Motor Car Co., when a truck driven by Alton Cox, slowed up to let Clark pass. Clark also stopped, and the truck, which was going west, continued its course. The Ford car was about 30 feet behind the truck, and Mr. Clark, being blind in his right eye, did not see the approaching car and stepped directly in front of it.

Wilbur Smith of Crowder, aged 25 years, employed by the Frisco Railroad, was killed last Sunday when the Ford touring car which he was driving overturned, pinning his body beneath the running board.

Burrell Tickel, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Tickel, died at St. Mary's Hospital in Cairo, Saturday, following an operation for appendicitis.

Shingles linked to chicken pox

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wish you would tell us something about shingles. Are they caused by a virus? Could this be the fault of chemicals in the water we drink? I never knew they are under the skin, just a few appearing on the outside of the skin. They are very painful. Could shots or cortisone help the victim? How long do they last under medication? Is there any way to prevent attacks?

DEAR READER — This is a relatively common disorder in older people. It is said that about half of the people who reach 85 have had at least one attack.

No, shingles, technically called herpes zoster, is not caused by your drinking water, but by the same virus that causes chicken pox. The virus lies dormant in the nerves for years and then becomes active.

You have a nerve to each side of your body that comes out of the spinal cord at each level of the vertebrae. One part or main branch of this is the sensory nerve. It is the part usually affected. One of the nerves running along the rib is the one most commonly involved. A nerve to the face can also be affected.

The area of skin supplied by the sensory nerve will begin to hurt, burn or itch. It may then turn red and about four days later small blisters will break out on the surface of the skin. Although the blisters may disappear within 10 days, the pain and inflammation often last a month. And even worse, in about a third of patients over 40 years of age residual pain persists for months and even years.

Occasionally one may catch chicken pox from a patient with shingles. You can't catch the shingles from a person with the chicken pox, though, nor can you catch shingles from a person with shingles.

The treatment is pretty unsatisfactory. You can treat the pain in the short-term illnesses with symptomatic measures, including calamine lotion and analgesics. A lot of medicines that have been used have been proved to be of little or no benefit. These include antibiotics, vitamins, irradiation and gamma globulin.

Cortisone products are helpful in shortening the duration of the pain but the skin doesn't heal any faster. These agents may lead to spread of the virus. The prolonged pain that persists for months is particularly hard to treat. If you give narcotics you may have a patient who will become an addict, because you have to use so much for so long.

Local injections and even sectioning the involved nerve has proved to be useless in relieving the pain. Operation at the spinal cord level is done in severe cases.

How can you prevent the disease? Obviously the best way would be to prevent chicken pox. That way you wouldn't have the virus in your body that causes herpes zoster in later years. Unfortunately there is no vaccine to prevent it. Chicken pox can be modified by gamma globulin, but that won't protect you from shingles later.

Finally, if you have an attack of shingles and recover you are not immune and can have another attack at a later date.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 17, the 260th day of 1975. There are 105 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1787, the Constitution of the United States was completed and signed by a majority of delegates attending the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia.

On this date:

In 1665, a bubonic plague broke out in London.

In 1862, in the Civil War, Union forces hurled back a Confederate invasion of Maryland in the battle of Antietam.

In 1939, the debut of the radio program, Major Bowes Amateur Hour, started a trend toward talent contests in American radio programming.

In 1939, the Soviet Union invaded Poland in World War Two.

In 1964, the Unitd States disclosed development of two weapons systems capable of intercepting and destroying armed satellites circling the earth.

In 1967, U.S. Air Force jets attacked a highway bridge in North Vietnam, only seven miles from the China border.

Ten years ago: Chiefs of the Arab League wound up a summit meeting with a communique in which they agreed to refrain from interfering in each other's internal affairs.

Five years ago: The Viet Cong offered an eight-point peace plan which American negotiators labeled "new wine in old bottles."

One year ago: The Government ordered the release of draft evaders from prison on 30-day furloughs while President Ford's new clemency board reviewed their cases.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I'd like to thank Dale Forbis for the article in Saturday's Sports Corner. It is one of the best articles I've read about the Bulldogs.

If the writer of "SHS' faces road jinx," and Bulldogs fumble away another one" thinks the Sikeston Bulldogs are "nothing more or less than an accident just waiting for a good place to happen," he's a pessimist and the type of writer the Sikeston Bulldogs don't need.

I know the Standard believes in telling it like it is, but losing two games does not make the Bulldogs "snake-bit."

Coach Smith and the football boys want this to be a winning season, but without confidence and a little support they'll never get it. They have got the ability, is a little support from the Standard asking too much? From a Red Pepper who has been to the first two games and will follow them through to the last, win or lose

Dear Editor,

I'd like to thank Dale Forbis for the article in Saturday's Sports Corner. It is one of the best articles I've read about the Bulldogs.

If the writer of "SHS' faces road jinx," and Bulldogs fumble away another one" thinks the Sikeston Bulldogs are "nothing more or less than an accident just waiting for a good place to happen," he's a pessimist and the type of writer the Sikeston Bulldogs don't need.

I know the Standard believes in telling it like it is, but losing two games does not make the Bulldogs "snake-bit."

Coach Smith and the football boys want this to be a winning season, but without confidence and a little support they'll never get it. They have got the ability, is a little support from the Standard asking too much? From a Red Pepper who has been to the first two games and will follow them through to the last, win or lose

Kitchen too small, appliances worn out? Put yourself in this new brick home - the kitchen is a dream! Beautiful wood cabinets, lots of counter space, brand new G.E. dishwasher, cooking unit, built-in oven and disposal (no more soggy garbage to carry out). All this and a georgous 30 foot family room with dining area. A pantry too! And that's only the beginning, there's a huge living room, 3 bedrooms (two with walk-in closets), 2 full baths, utility room with W-D hookup. Central heat and air conditioning. Entire house is carpeted - what could be nicer, and that's just the inside! Outside you have a two-car carport, extra large storage, patio, large lot, room for the kids, the dog, a garden, fruit trees. In the Sikeston school district. Westview Estates.

Why pay rent? The same money will buy this neat little house, just right for a new family or a couple who wants less house to keep. Living room, 2 bedrooms and eat-in kitchen are carpeted, 1 bath, utility room with W-D hookup, Central heat and air conditioning. Carport and storage. Four years old, nice neighborhood, 107 Comstock $15,900.

++++++++++

A lot of living space here for the money - new additions provide this home with a 18x24 living room, 20x20 foot kitchen- dining room, bar and stools. Three bedrooms, bath, gas heat, nice lot, near school bus stops. 1426 sq. ft. for $14,300. Matthews Lane in Miner.

When winter comes, you can be cozy by the fire in your beautiful 30 foot family room. Inviting smells of dinner cooking in your spacious and convenient kitchen ... harvest gold G.E. appliances make the work easier - more cabinet and counter space than you'd expect to find in any home PLUS a pantry. Sound good? You bet, and there is an elegant foyer, formal living - dining room, three spacious bedrooms, two full baths. Unbelievable closet space (two walk-in's). Utility room W-D hook-up, central heat and air conditioning. Carpet throughout. Patio, two-car garage with electric eye door, storage room, large lot. Sikeston school district. Westview Estates.

Desireable established location in the north end. This four bedroom home would be ideal for a growing family, carpeted living room and large kitchen with dining area. Two full baths, finished attic (with bath) would be great for teen agers! Three bedrooms on the main floor. Full basement, W-D hook-up. Separate two- car garage and large shady lot. 720 Taylor.

++++++++++

Not new, but a real buy. Extremely clean two bedroom home, fully carpeted. Central heat and air conditioning. Kitchen, living room, and utility room with W-D hook-up. 809 Ruth.

Dear Sir:

I saw something that happened today that was upsetting to me. A car that went out of its way to run over a small pet cat.

The driver of that car is like so many other drivers, that once behind a steering wheel these insecure people take their frustrations out on anything they see while being in command of a powerful machine. Sir to the many fine residents of Sikeston who have had a family pet killed by one of these people I propose that a stiffer penalty or law greater than we have now to protect a somewhat helpless animal in this modern day society.

Thank you.

Wetterau acquires Delp stock

HAZELWOOD--The G.H. Delp Co. of Reading, Pa., and Wetterau Inc. of Hazelwood, have agreed in principle for Wetterau to acquire all of the outstanding stock of G.H. Delp in exchange for an undisclosed number of shares of Wetterau common stock.

Ted C. Wetterau, president and chairman of the board of Wetterau Inc., and W. Edward Overly, chairman of the board of G.H. Delp, said the agreement in principle is subject to approval of a definitive agreement by the directors of both companies.

Sales of Wetterau Inc. for the fiscal year ended March 29, 1975 were about $720 million, while G.H. Delp had sales of approximately $77 million for the year ended June 28, 1975.

Delp, which supplies principally IGA supermarkets in eastern Pennsylvania, would become the eighth distribution center of the food services group of Wetterau Inc. Wetterau serves both IGA and Red & White supermarkets in parts of 15 states.

Bik K sales increase

NASHVILLE, Tenn.--Kuhn's-Big K Stores Corp., operator, of 69 Big K discount department stores and 26 Kuhn's Variety stores, including the Sikeston Big K store has reported that its sales for August increased 21.7 per cent over the same month in 1974.

Jack W. Kuhn, president, said sales for August reached $16,167,026, up from $13,279,215 reported for the same month in 1974.

Sales for the first eight months of 1975 amounted to $97,934,553, an increase of 14.2 per cent over the $85,694,665 for the corresponding period a year ago.

Kuhn's-Big K Stores Corp. operates its 95 discount department stores and variety units in a seven-state region consisting of Tennessee, Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi and Missouri.

On Aug. 22, the company closed its Lenoir City, Tenn., Kuhn's Variety store following the expiration of the unit's lease.

In the same period a year ago, Kuhn's Big K Stores Corp. operated 65 Big K outlets and 27 Kuhn's Variety stores.

Kuhn's-Big K Stores Corp. stock is listed on the American Stock Exchange (ticker symbol: KBK).

Tips on new car buying

By ALFRED C. SIKES
Director of Consumer Affairs

JEFFERSON CITY—As the annual parade of new cars begins this month, your eyes may linger a little longer on new car advertisements and your leisure drives may wander by dealer showrooms.

If you are planning to buy a car and are waiting for the new models to arrive, spend some time thinking about what you really need in a new car. In the face of predicted increases in fuel prices, keep in mind that more important this year than any other so far, are the economical aspects of an automobile.

There is more to the cost of a car than its initial price. In fact, after five years of normal driving, it costs more than twice as much to operate it as it does to buy it, according to a study by the U.S. Department of Transportation.

The style of car you choose is what makes the big difference. The larger the car and the more options you add, the more the car will demand from your checkbook.

One estimate says that a 2,000-pound car can give you about twice as many miles per gallon as a 5,000-pound car. An automatic transmission can cost one to two miles per gallon; an air conditioner subtracts two or more miles per gallon. You lose mileage also for power steering, power brakes and power windows.

It costs about 37 per cent more to purchase and operate a standard-size car than a subcompact car over five years, according to the study. Costs include gasoline, repair and maintenance, garaging and tolls, depreciation and insurance.

Standard-size cars, on which figures are based, are four-door sedans with V-8 engines, automatic transmissions, power steering, power brakes and air conditioners. The subcompacts are two-door sedans with four-cylinder engines and standard transmissions. Compact cars are two-door sedans with six-cylinder engines, automatic transmissions and power steering.

The study, done by the Department of Transportation, shows that the most costly factor of a standard-size car over its lifetime is depreciation, followed by gasoline, repairs and maintenance, garaging and tolls and insurance. For compacts, gasoline is the most expensive, then depreciation. For the subcompacts, gasoline costs less per mile than either repairs and maintenance or garaging and tolls.

The chart below was adapted from the study to show you what cars really cost. Included are operating costs the first year, which are usually the highest, the cost after five years and after 10 years.

The figures are based on the assumption that the car was purchased new, driven by a suburban family and then scrapped for $50. Costs are in 1974 dollars and gasoline is figured at 52 cents a gallon.

With the cost of gasoline higher now and expected to increase even more, the difference in operating costs will be greater. Though some of the other costs may not be entirely accurate for Missouri, this still can help you compare the costs of operating different sizes of automobiles.

The comparative figures include:

Standard model, price: $4,251, first year costs (14,500 miles), $2,427.27; after 5 years (58,900 miles), $9,276.93; after 10 years ((100,000 miles), $15,892.36.

Compact size, price: $2,910, first year, $1,570.14; after five years, $7,139.41; after 10 years, $12,879.53.

Subcompact car, price: $2,410, first year, $1,283.37; after five years, $6,021.34; after 10 years, $11,153.10

If cost makes a difference in your life, think about this for awhile.

MIGHT AS WELL SLEEP ON THE JOB

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — It really happened one night recently in Walnut Creek. The police reported that for the first time in months the midnight to 8 a.m. shift had no cases.

No one called in for help from the police. There were no reported family fights, drunk drivers, mental cases or any other routine occurrences that are the meat-and-potatoes of suburban police work.

Police can recall about eight instances of caseless shifts during the past several years.

Truck line changes name

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Kenneth W. Inman announced this week that the name of L.S. Tucker Truck Lines has been changed to Inman Freight System, Inc.

Inman, who is president of the newly named motor carrier, headquartered in Cape Girardeau, purchased the stock of L.A. Tucker Truck Lines from Charles N. Harris in July. One week later, Inman also purchased the stock of Bonifield Bros. Truck Lines, Inc. of West Frankfort, Ill.

Upon approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Inman's authority will stretch from Chicago on the north to Memphis on the south, from Evansville, Ind., on the east to St. Louis on the west and will operate 16 terminals at strategic points throughout this area serving more than 700 points.

In a letter to customers, Inman explained that a conflict in names had arisen with Tucker Freight Lines of South Bend, Ind., making the name change desirable at this time.

CIT manager to attend meet

Ed Menaugh, manager of the CIT Financial Services office in Kingsway Plaza Mall, has been invited to attend a regional meeting of managers and supervisors on Sept. 19-21 in Memphis.

Menaugh will be one of 65 CIT Financial Services managers from 45 cities in Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Kentucky, Missouri and Tennessee at the three-day conference conducted by vice president M.C. Plunk, manager of the Memphis region for CIT Financial Services.

CIT Financial Services is one of the nation's largest financial companies. It was founded in 1908 and now has assets of over $3.25 billion. With over 816 offices coast to coast and in Hawaii and Puerto Rico, the company specializes in personal and real estate loans, automobile, mobile home and recreational vehicle financing and industrial and business equipment financing and leasing.

Market intrigues many

By CROCKETT SCOTT

"Every sweet has its sour; every evil its good."

.....Emerson

The stock market for years has failed as a consistent hedge against inflation.

And this, suggests a number of Securities and Exchange Commission registered representatives, may be elemental in the current disenchantment of long-term investors (who tomorrow or even later today may again fall in love with Wall Street).

Over the true long term of 20,30 or 40 years or more, however, there are numerous instances where owners of equities have made and retained fortunes from the stock market.

During this period, too, holders of various blue chip stocks from the stock market.

During this period, too, holders of various blue chip stocks from out of the past would find these issues worthless (and nonexistent) today.

By contrast, purchasers of certain coins, works of art, furniture and other personal propery, along with various parcels of real estate are many times richer and their holdings of tentimes continue to appreciate.

As an example, a friend purchased two commemorative coins at Expo '76 in Canada for $1 each in JAmerican money. And he tells me that each of these coins today is valued at $250 – just eight years after they were struck.

Obviously, there are better places to put one's money than the stock market.

But the market has its appeal and likely will continue to intrigue investors and traders because of its capital gain potential for the near and long term, because of the wealth of information about its many equities and bonds and because of the fact of instant liquidation.

But it should be pointed out that renowned and moderately renowned paintings and sculptures and limited issue coins have the asset of scarcity.

When a landscape or a portrait is completed, there never will be another precise duplicate. Reproductions, but never another original.

Coins are not limited to a single unit; but, in commemorative mintings, the number is limited; and, as times marches on, each enhances in value.

Antique ffurniture benefits from time, too. With each passing year, there are fewer pieces available.

And, with the populace fretful and fearful in the constant bout with inflation, material holdings of known value enjoy an ever rising price.

They represent the private hoard psychhology against a rainy dy fear, so prevalent in an economy where control could get out of hand.

Some investors, in addition to branching outinto art and coins, confine their search for equities pretty much to those with resources in the ground.

Of course, this would include the big oil companies and corporations engaged in the exploration and marketing of gas and minerals.

A lesser known corporation in this classification, but one which interests some capital at the moment is Nord Resources Corp.

Nord has gained some renown in its prospecting for rutile (titanium dioxide), said to be an extraordinary fine and nonflaking pigment for paint.

In a joint venture with Bethlehem Steel International Corp., Nord has been making extensive explorations for this mineral in Sierra Leone.

The firm also is engaged with Bethlehem International in Southwest Africa in the Krantzbert Tungsten mine.

Nord retains a 40 per cent interest with Aquitane SWA (subsidiary of the large French petroleum corporation) for mineral rights to 16,000 acres of probable copper fields in Southern Africa.

The stock of Nord trades over the counter around 8-9. Your SEC-registered equity analykst can provide a thorough analysis.

Bootheel Jamboree features Jim Owen

BERNIE--Songwriter Jim Owen will be the featured entertainer at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Bootheel Jamboree.

Conway Twitty recently described Owen as "a great ball player and SOME kind of a songwriter." Owen combines a successful songwriting career with an almost full-time hobby of basketball and baseball.

His hit songs include, "Louisiana Woman, Mississippi Man," recorded by Twitty and Loretta Lynn; "Southern Loving" and "Broad-minded man", for Jim Ed Brown; "Too Lonely Too Long" and "One More Drink", for Mel Tillis; and the new Jerry Reed smash hit, "The Telephone".

When not writing award-winning songs, he may be playing center field for the Nashville Pickers at the Houston Astrodome or Busch Stadium in St. Louis; or he may be playing basketball at an athletic club in Nashville.

Owen credits much of his success to Mel Tellis, and because of the help he received from Tillis, he now tries to help other people.

Owen's show is laced with humor and his voice is warm and country.

Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center celebrates 5 years

In the five years Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center has been open, it has grown into a shopping center that serves the needs of thousands of residents in the five-state area of Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The only major shopping center between St. Louis and Memphis with an enclosed mall with conditioned air for year-round comfort, Kingsway Plaza has grown in popularity until now 98 per cent of its space has been leased.

The 330,000 square-foot center opened on Sept. 30, 1970 with J.C. Penney Co. department store, Britt's Department Store, Safeway, TG&Y Family Center, Osco Drug, First national Bank and Singer Co. among the major tenants.

Nooney Co., a St. Louis-based real estate management and investment firm, acquired the property in December 1971.

Since that time, the center has steadily increased the number and variety of tenants, with Graber's Department Store moving from its downtown location, installation of a theater and the opening of Ben's, Chris' Young World and Jo Lynn's Merle Norman Cosmetics, the latter four being operated by Sikeston residents.

The center, in its short history, has become a focal point for community functions. It is the starting point for the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo parade, and has housed numerous arts and crafts shows, local artists' displays, poster contests and antique shows as well as being the location for an annual Scoutarama.

Its special functions, such as the annual fireworks display and the Christmas promotion, sponsored by the Kingsway Plaza Retail Merchants Association, has attracted people throughout the area.

In recent months, Nooney Co. has completed the exterior landscaping, remodeled the public restrooms, installed emergency lighting service, added exotic plants to the planter boxes in the mall and will soon be erecting a new directory sign listing all tenants.

The first five years of serving the people within a 90-mile radius of Sikeston has been exciting and successful. The center, in the years to come, no doubt will continue to be the retail hub of the area and the community center of Sikeston.

Jesse Brown appointed area cemetery manager

MORLEY—Jesse L. Brown, formerly of Mobile, Ala., has been appointed manager and cemetery counselor for Forest Hills Cemetery located near the Highway 61-77 intersection, Henry Bussey of Sikeston, president of Forest Hills Memorial Gardens, Inc., announced today.

Brown has many years of experience in public relations and sales. He formerly worked for Carl C. Harris, president of Memorial Park Cemetery in Sikeston, as counselor in cemetery development at Tuscaloosa, Ala.

With his leadership, Forest Hills will be developed into the latest and most modern type of cemetery, Bussey said.

Brown and his wife and son live at 408 Bohannon St. in the Mini-Farms near Sikeston.

Among the many people seeking the Northwest Passage was Britain's Sir John Franklin. His two ships were last reported entering Lancaster Sound on July 26, 1845.

Retirement community exempt from federal income taxes

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Edward E. Calvin, attorney for Cape Retirement Community, Inc., developers of the Chateau Girardeau retirement community, has received notification from the Internal Revenue Service that Chateau Girardeau has geen recognized as a charitable, not-for-profit corporation under Section 501(C)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, and as such, is exempt from corporate federal income taxes.

In granting the not for profit, tax exempt status, Calvin said the Internal Revenue Service has recognized Chateau Girardeau's emphasis on meeting the needs of those served by the facility rather than operating from a profit motive.

"The Internal Revenue Service has consistently held that private, voluntary, organizations so structured and oriented are exempt from federal income taxes and therefore benefit residents of such communities through lowre operating costs," continued Calvin.

"Chateau Girardeau's objective is to provide comfortable living accommodations and facilities and services for lifetime care at affordable prices to retired and elderly people, all made possible through private financing," said Calvin, who further stated that, although Chateau Girardeau will be privately financed, the corporation's tax exempt status allows it to receive gifts of money and property, tax deductible to the donor, which will reduce costs to residents of the facility.

"In fact," continued Calvin, "several memorials and gifts have already been received, so anyone wishing to make a gift to the corporation may send it to Chateau Girardeau, c-o Paul Loiseau, Treasurer, 235 Broadaay, Cape Girardeau, Mo. 63701."

According to Thomas H. Froemsdorf, chairman of the building committee of Cape Retirement Community, Inc., negotiations are being conducted with Penzel Construction Co. and Phillips and Associates, general contractors and architects for Chateau Girardeau, in order to establish final details of the project prior to implementing the corporation's marketing program.

Froemsdorf said that, "A model residential apartment will be developed on the construction site and will be available for viewing, hopefully in October, and complete information as to apartment availability, costs and services will be made known when the model opens.

"When 50 percent of the apartments are reserved and we've secured our financing, construction will begin. So, as you can see," continued Mr. Froemsdorf, "we're really depending on the community to respond and support this worthwhile project by reserving the required number of apartments so we can get started."

Greyhound offers seven-day unlimited travel ticket plan

"Greyhound Lines, Inc. is now offering a new seven-day Ameripass," says Don Kellett, agent for Greyhound in Sikeston.

"Greyhound's new seven-day unlimited travel ticket really makes it possible for all Americans to travel all of America at even lower cost than ever before", Kellett said.

The new plans have all the basic features of Greyhound's other Ameripasses which include a new 15-Day Ameripass which went into effect Monday, a one-month Ameripass and a two-month Ameripass.

According to Kellett, anyone can travel any day of the week and go anywhere over Greyhound's more than 100,000 miles of routes throughout the United States and Canada. Passengers can travel any route any day, inside and outside their state--and they can stop over where or when they want.

Kellett said Greyhound recognized the need for a travel plan that benefits all Americans. He feels that the Ameripass will be well accepted by the young perons, senior citizens, pensioners, job seekers and others who may have postponed travel because of inflationary and recessionary pressures.

He added that the new fare should also appeal to students and others who may want to travel over the Thanksgiving holiday period. Greyhound's seven-day Ameripass will be in effect until Dec. 15.

Kellett added that as with Greyhound's other Ameripasses, seven-day Ameripass passengers receive Greyhound's Discount Guide, which describes discounts offered by many hotels, sightseeing companies, attractions and other travel-related services.

Additional information may be secured by calling for Greyhound information at telephone number 471-5033.

Matthews attends school

MADISON, Wis.--Stephen L. Matthews, an employe of First National Bank of Sikeston, Mo., was among those who attended the 31st annual session of the Graduate School of Banking Aug. 10-23 at University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Attendance at three annual two-week sessions on the Madison campus and the satisfactory completion of extension problems between the resident sessions is required for graduation.

The school is sponsored by the Central States Conference of Bankers Associations from 16 midwestern states. About 1,600 bankers were enrolled this year from 43 states and Puerto Rico.

The faculty of over 140 instructors included bankers who are specialists in their respective fields, practicing attorneys, business executives, economists and members of over a dozen university and college faculties.

Dr. Herbert V. Prochnow, recently retired president of the First National Bank of Chicago, is director of the school.

Market intrigues many

By CROCKETT SCOTT

"Every sweet has its sour; every evil its good."

.....Emerson

The stock market for years has failed as a consistent hedge against inflation.

And this, suggests a number of Securities and Exchange Commission registered representatives, may be elemental in the current disenchantment of long-term investors (who tomorrow or even later today may again fall in love with Wall Street).

Over the true long term of 20,30 or 40 years or more, however, there are numerous instances where owners of equities have made and retained fortunes from the stock market.

During this period, too, holders of various blue chip stocks from the stock market.

During this period, too, holders of various blue chip stocks from out of the past would find these issues worthless (and nonexistent) today.

By contrast, purchasers of certain coins, works of art, furniture and other personal propery, along with various parcels of real estate are many times richer and their holdings of tentimes continue to appreciate.

As an example, a friend purchased two commemorative coins at Expo '76 in Canada for $1 each in JAmerican money. And he tells me that each of these coins today is valued at $250 -- just eight years after they were struck.

Obviously, there are better places to put one's money than the stock market.

But the market has its appeal and likely will continue to intrigue investors and traders because of its capital gain potential for the near and long term, because of the wealth of information about its many equities and bonds and because of the fact of instant liquidation.

But it should be pointed out that renowned and moderately renowned paintings and sculptures and limited issue coins have the asset of scarcity.

When a landscape or a portrait is completed, there never will be another precise duplicate. Reproductions, but never another original.

Coins are not limited to a single unit; but, in commemorative mintings, the number is limited; and, as times marches on, each enhances in value.

Antique ffurniture benefits from time, too. With each passing year, there are fewer pieces available.

And, with the populace fretful and fearful in the constant bout with inflation, material holdings of known value enjoy an ever rising price.

They represent the private hoard psychhology against a rainy dy fear, so prevalent in an economy where control could get out of hand.

Some investors, in addition to branching outinto art and coins, confine their search for equities pretty much to those with resources in the ground.

Of course, this would include the big oil companies and corporations engaged in the exploration and marketing of gas and minerals.

A lesser known corporation in this classification, but one which interests some capital at the moment is Nord Resources Corp.

Nord has gained some renown in its prospecting for rutile (titanium dioxide), said to be an extraordinary fine and nonflaking pigment for paint.

In a joint venture with Bethlehem Steel International Corp., Nord has been making extensive explorations for this mineral in Sierra Leone.

The firm also is engaged with Bethlehem International in Southwest Africa in the Krantzbert Tungsten mine.

Nord retains a 40 per cent interest with Aquitane SWA (subsidiary of the large French petroleum corporation) for mineral rights to 16,000 acres of probable copper fields in Southern Africa.

The stock of Nord trades over the counter around 8-9. Your SEC-registered equity analykst can provide a thorough analysis.

Bootheel Jamboree features Jim Owen

BERNIE--Songwriter Jim Owen will be the featured entertainer at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Bootheel Jamboree.

Conway Twitty recently described Owen as "a great ball player and SOME kind of a songwriter." Owen combines a successful songwriting career with an almost full-time hobby of basketball and baseball.

His hit songs include, "Louisiana Woman, Mississippi Man," recorded by Twitty and Loretta Lynn; "Southern Loving" and "Broad-minded man", for Jim Ed Brown; "Too Lonely Too Long" and "One More Drink", for Mel Tillis; and the new Jerry Reed smash hit, "The Telephone".

When not writing award-winning songs, he may be playing center field for the Nashville Pickers at the Houston Astrodome or Busch Stadium in St. Louis; or he may be playing basketball at an athletic club in Nashville.

Owen credits much of his success to Mel Tellis, and because of the help he received from Tillis, he now tries to help other people.

Owen's show is laced with humor and his voice is warm and country.

Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center celebrates 5 years

In the five years Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center has been open, it has grown into a shopping center that serves the needs of thousands of residents in the five-state area of Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The only major shopping center between St. Louis and Memphis with an enclosed mall with conditioned air for year-round comfort, Kingsway Plaza has grown in popularity until now 98 per cent of its space has been leased.

The 330,000 square-foot center opened on Sept. 30, 1970 with J.C. Penney Co. department store, Britt's Department Store, Safeway, TG&Y Family Center, Osco Drug, First national Bank and Singer Co. among the major tenants.

Nooney Co., a St. Louis-based real estate management and investment firm, acquired the property in December 1971.

Since that time, the center has steadily increased the number and variety of tenants, with Graber's Department Store moving from its downtown location, installation of a theater and the opening of Ben's, Chris' Young World and Jo Lynn's Merle Norman Cosmetics, the latter four being operated by Sikeston residents.

The center, in its short history, has become a focal point for community functions. It is the starting point for the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo parade, and has housed numerous arts and crafts shows, local artists' displays, poster contests and antique shows as well as being the location for an annual Scoutarama.

Its special functions, such as the annual fireworks display and the Christmas promotion, sponsored by the Kingsway Plaza Retail Merchants Association, has attracted people throughout the area.

In recent months, Nooney Co. has completed the exterior landscaping, remodeled the public restrooms, installed emergency lighting service, added exotic plants to the planter boxes in the mall and will soon be erecting a new directory sign listing all tenants.

The first five years of serving the people within a 90-mile radius of Sikeston has been exciting and successful. The center, in the years to come, no doubt will continue to be the retail hub of the area and the community center of Sikeston.

Jesse Brown appointed area cemetery manager

MORLEY—Jesse L. Brown, formerly of Mobile, Ala., has been appointed manager and cemetery counselor for Forest Hills Cemetery located near the Highway 61-77 intersection, Henry Bussey of Sikeston, president of Forest Hills Memorial Gardens, Inc., announced today.

Brown has many years of experience in public relations and sales. He formerly worked for Carl C. Harris, president of Memorial Park Cemetery in Sikeston, as counselor in cemetery development at Tuscaloosa, Ala.

With his leadership, Forest Hills will be developed into the latest and most modern type of cemetery, Bussey said.

Brown and his wife and son live at 408 Bohannon St. in the Mini-Farms near Sikeston.

Among the many people seeking the Northwest Passage was Britain's Sir John Franklin. His two ships were last reported entering Lancaster Sound on July 26, 1845.

Retirement community exempt from federal income taxes

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Edward E. Calvin, attorney for Cape Retirement Community, Inc., developers of the Chateau Girardeau retirement community, has received notification from the Internal Revenue Service that Chateau Girardeau has geen recognized as a charitable, not-for-profit corporation under Section 501(C)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, and as such, is exempt from corporate federal income taxes.

In granting the not for profit, tax exempt status, Calvin said the Internal Revenue Service has recognized Chateau Girardeau's emphasis on meeting the needs of those served by the facility rather than operating from a profit motive.

"The Internal Revenue Service has consistently held that private, voluntary, organizations so structured and oriented are exempt from federal income taxes and therefore benefit residents of such communities through lowre operating costs," continued Calvin.

Host city for travel trailer rally

A total of 4,209 Wally Byam Caravan Club member families attended the club's 18th international rally at Brandon, Manitoba, Canada. Surpassing all estimates, the travel trailers were distributed throughout the city. The event was attended by Lowell E. and Lou Etta Webb of Sikeston.

Record-breaking event

BRANDON, Manitoba -- Lowell and Lou Etta Webb of 402 Benton St., Sikeston, Mo., were among the record-breaking 4,209 travel trailer families attending the 18th international rally of the Wally Byam Caravan Club here June 28 through July 4.

Following the rally, the Webbs toured through other parts of Canada before returning home. Webb is a past president of the Western Kentucky Lakes Unit of Wally Byam Caravan Club International.

The Wally Byam Caravan Club's 18th international rally was the largest such social event ever held in the Western Hemisphere and the largest gathering of single make (Airstream) trailers held throughout the world.

Trailerist attending the rally represented local units of the WBCCI scattered throughout the hemisphere. There was a trailer from every state in the union, including Alaska, every province of Canada and parts of Mexico. This was the first such rally held in Canada.

The presence of 4,209 travel trailer families at this year's rally was an important reassurance to members of the Wally Byam Caravan Club. A persistance of gasoline uncertainty in the United States, plus the rising cost of such fuel internationally led some to think that the WBCCI's get-togethers would lose some of their glamour.

Leader of this year's travel trailer rally in Canada was W. Bruce MacLean of Toronto. He will be succeeded this year by Max Connett of Newton, Miss. Next year's WBCCI international rally will return to the United States, this time to Louisville, Ky.

This year's trailer rally was the product of virtually a whole year of advance planning and preparation by the club's officers. Under their direction, more than a hundred committees of volunteer workers in the caravan club helped construct a kind of "instant city" of 4,209 "homes."

Most of these homes formed straight, even lines and criss-crossing avenues and streets in Keystone Centre, a large open park in Brandon. But long before the latecomers arrived, the trailers were distributed among smaller parks throughout the entire city.

Primary activities started June 28 with official opening day ceremonies. Masses of flags and flagbearers, a band, many dignitaries and some 4,000 families sitting in their chairs made this an impressive ceremony.

Officially, the caravanners were welcomed to Canada by Edward Schreyer, premier of Manitoba, and Elwood Gorrie, mayor of Brandon. The Canadians were joined internationally by Arthur A. Link, governor of the neighboring state North Dakota.

Following the opening ceremony, the Wally Byam Caravan Club settled down to general outlines perfected during the past 17 years.

Just a few of the activities included daily talent shows, exhibitions of arts and crafts, hobby displays, bridge and golf tournaments, evening dances of several kinds, many workshop sessions for the club's local lecture programs and religious services.

One popular activity which took place each day was the systematic selection of a Teen Queen, the daughter or granddaughter of one of the WBCCI members who would represent the club this year. This time the club picked Miss Barbara Stump, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rexford Pfeifer of Midwest City, Okla.

On July 4, the 18th international rally reached its climax with a parade of locally assembled floats, marching groups and equestrian sets.

This year in Canada, the club emphasized the second most important occasion for Fourthof July ceremony: the birthday of Wally Byam. Byam was the founder of Airstream, the company that manufactured their trailers, and personally devised and led many of the trailer activities which have been so important in their lives.

Capital-spending down

NEW YORK (AP) — If the economy is recovering you can't prove it by some of the reports — not opinions — released during the past few days. If you tried to do so you'd look ridiculous.

—Business continues to cut its capital-spending plans. These cuts have shown up in one survey after another since late last year. In the latest report, the Commerce Department shows a $730 million cut between June and August.

Spending plans for new or expanded plants and equipment now might total about $113.51 billion for the year, the government said, which means that when you discount for inflation the total is 11.5 per cent lower than in 1974.

This seems to suggest that business is waiting for consumers to give them a clue about the future. If consumers began spending, then it is likely businessmen would regain some of their own spending confidence.

But guess what? Consumers have clearly indicated they aren't in the mood, at the moment anyway, to take the lead.

—Retail sales fell eight-tenths of 1 per cent in August. It was the first month to slip in five months, the Commerce Department said.

Optimists will note that, nevertheless, sales remained 5.3 per cent above a year-earlier figures. Realists observe that consumer prices have risen 10 per cent in that period, meaning an acutal decline in sales volume.

—Automobile sales in August were 12 per cent below a year ago. True, the auto market was unusual in August 1974: buyers were rushing to conclude transactions before a price increase.

Still, the August figures showed no improvement over those for July, suggesting that Americans aren't going to flock to showrooms as some industry officials had hoped and even had forecast.

There are marked differences in expectations in the auto industry. General Motors remains bullish, expecting a 23 per cent industrywide improvement over the 1975 model year. But some private analysts foresee little or no improvement.

—The prime interest rate is rising again, and that's bad news. Rising interest rates discourage borrowing — for new plants, for houses, for just about everything. Recovery depends upon the use of borrowed money.

The prime rate had dropped from a 1974 high of 12 per cent to 10.25 per cent earlier this year and finally to a low of 7 per cent this summer. Now it is back to around 8 per cent.

Award given carpet firm

Modern Floor Covering, 819 E. Malone Ave., has been named recipient of a national award given for excellence in carpet merchandising.

The award, presented by Burlington House Carpets of King of Prussia, Pa., is made on the basis of a weighted evaluation of store performance in three areas of service to the consumer. These are informative display, depth of selection and efficiency in delivery and installation of carpet after purchase.

The award, presented by Joseph O. Hewitt, Burlington House president, and Ira Bernstein of Lowy Distributors at St. Louis, was accepted jointly by L.F. and Dixie Wheeler, 309 Gilmore St.

—Automobile sales in August were 12 per cent below a year ago. True, the auto market was unusual in August 1974: buyers were rushing to conclude transactions before a price increase.

Still, the August figures showed no improvement over those for July, suggesting that Americans aren't going to flock to showrooms as some industry officials had hoped and even had forecast.

There are marked differences in expectations in the auto industry. General Motors remains bullish, expecting a 23 per cent industrywide improvement over the 1975 model year. But some private analysts foresee little or no improvement.

—The prime interest rate is rising again, and that's bad news. Rising interest rates discourage borrowing — for new plants, for houses, for just about everything. Recovery depends upon the use of borrowed money.

The prime rate had dropped from a 1974 high of 12 per cent to 10.25 per cent earlier this year and finally to a low of 7 per cent this summer. Now it is back to around 8 per cent.

Award given carpet firm

Modern Floor Covering, 819 E. Malone Ave., has been named recipient of a national award given for excellence in carpet merchandising.

The award, presented by Burlington House Carpets of King of Prussia, Pa., is made on the basis of a weighted evaluation of store performance in three areas of service to the consumer. These are informative display, depth of selection and efficiency in delivery and installation of carpet after purchase.

The award, presented by Joseph O. Hewitt, Burlington House president, and Ira Bernstein of Lowy Distributors at St. Louis, was accepted jointly by L.F. and Dixie Wheeler, 309 Gilmore St.

JOHNS HOPKINS' DOCTORS CHECK OUT APPENDICTIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Surgeons at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, are challenging the standard doctrine for suspected appendicitis: "When in doubt, cut it out," reports Medical World News.

Instead, says the magazine, their position has become, "When in doubt, check it out."

This checking, the surgeons report, has lowered their "opened-by-mistake" incidence from 15 per cent to below 5 per cent.

This policy involved children at the outset but is now being informally extended to include adults.

HELP WITH BUREAUCRACY

Red tape in the federal bureaucracy can be a source of frustration for many citizens.

Every day I receive approximately 55 letters asking for help with problems such as:

- Tom, why haven't I received my tax rebate? Please help me get it.
- Tom, my house is flooded. Can the federal government help me?
- Tom, I am very poor and disabled. Social Security will not give me a dime. I am going to starve. What should I do?
- Tom, I am a college student without much money. Can you suggest where I could apply for a federal loan or scholarship?
- Tom, my civil service retirement check is much too low. Please check to make sure I'm getting all the money I deserve.
- Tom, I've paid Social Security all my life. Now it's time to draw some retirement money and they say I'm not eligible. What's going on?
- Tom, my husband fought long and hard for his country. Why isn't he eligible for V.A. benefits?

I Can Help

As your U.S. Senator, it is my duty to try to clear up misunderstandings with the federal government, correct errors, answer questions, and provide any material that you request in your letter.

Nothing gives me more satisfaction than to notify someone that his or her problem with the federal government has finally been solved.

The most direct way to obtain answers to questions concerning the federal government is to contact the nearest office of the federal agency with which you have a problem.

But if bureaucratic bungling and red tape slow you down, get in touch with me. Phoning one of my offices is fine, but because of the new Freedom of Information Act, it has become mandatory for me to have a letter granting your permission before I can contact a federal agency on your behalf.

Be sure to include any appropriate identifying information, such as Social Security number, or V.A. number, when you write to one of my offices.

Missouri Offices

To serve you more quickly, I have three offices in Missouri:

- 213 Adams Street, Room 206, Jefferson City, Mo, 65101.
- 811 Grand, Federal Bldg., Room 911, Kansas City, Mo. 64106.
- 1520 Market Street, Federal Bldg., Room 4939, St. Louis, Mo. 63103.

Survey reveals

Most drivers speed

Associated Press Writer

The nation's drivers are still whizzing along highways above the 55 mile per hour limit designed to conserve energy despite recent increases in gasoline prices, an Associated Press survey shows.

In the survey, AP reporters drove at 55 m.p.h. for an hour during a weekday noontime this week on highways across the country. The test showed that in only one state was the reporter, while driving at the legal limit, able to pass more cars than passed him.

And in that state, West Virginia, the reporter said he believed the test was thrown off by drivers from the opposite direction blinking their lights to warn of a radar speed trap.

The survey also showed:

—The number of speeding tickets is up considerably over the period before the 55 m.p.h. limit was put into effect in March of last year. In some cases the number is more than double or triple what in was in the pre-55 m.p.h. period.

—Police have increased attempts to trap speeders, in some cases adding radar units and unmarked patrol cars. Some o these efforts are apparently aimed at preventing loss of federal highway funds, which can be taken away from states not enforcing the 55 m.p.h. limit.

Earlier this week, the U.S. Transportation Department ordered all states to furnish data showing they were enforcing the lower speed limit.

—Police officials in most states believe that drivers, if not following the 55 m.p.h. limit, are at least driving at speeds below what they did before it went into effect. Many police also said they thought lowered speed limits had lowered traffic fatalities, though safety officials say figures do not necessarily substantiate this.

—Opinions of police varied on whether drivers were complying with the lower speed limit more now than when it first went into effect.

The highest incidence of speeding was reported in New Jersey, where the test driver reported he was passed by more than 200 vehicles on the New Jersey Turnpike and passed only two vehicles.

On the opposite end of the spectrum was New Mexico, where the reporter said he was passed by five vehicles and passed four. But he noted one of the cars passing him was a state patrol car with its lights flashing.

The reporter in New Jersey noted that the biggest offenders seemed to be trucks, most of which seemed to be driving atspeeds of around 70 m.p.h., about what they did before the lowered limits. Some police and service station operators in other states had the same feeling and said that salesman were also more frequent offenders.

Charles Clinton, a Texas trucker, expressed the atitude of many of his colleagues: "I waste more fuel gearing down to get over the hills than I save going 55. In a truck you need to be able to go 65 to 70 to get a run at the hills."

The New Jersey reporter also noted that turnpike traffic did not even slow down while passing a state police patrol car parked on the side of the road.

Asked about whether the 55 m.p.h. limit was being enforced, a New Jersey state police spokesman replied: "Absolutely." Since New Jersey records of traffic tickets are not divided into individual offenses, it could not be determined if speeding tickets were on the increase in the state.

In other states police showed large increases in the number of tickets.

In Utah, for example, a spokesman said speeding tickets were running 20 per cent above last year, when they had doubled from the previous year when higher speed limits were in effect.

In Connecticut, a spokesman said state police issued 4,994 tickets in January-July 1973, before the lower speed limit was in effect. State police issued 16,227 speeding tickets in the same period last year and 24,292 in January-July this year.

In Maryland, police said that in the month since they begana speeding crackdown July 29 they's issued 24,800 speeding tickets, more than three times the monthly average before.

Opinions varied among drivers questioned about the 55 m.p.h limit, and the random survey provided no basis for determining a consensus.

In Utah, however, one policeman noted that even among those stopped for speeding most say they agree with the lower limit.

One exception was a driver from Vermont questioned at a gas station in Idaho.

"I never pay any attention to the speed limit," he said.

"He has the tickets to prove it," added his wife.

Minerals are big business in state

ROLLA — Minerals are big business in Missouri. They have to be. According to data compiled by the Missouri Geological Survey, Department of Natural Resources, in Rolla, an average of 20,000 pounds of stone, 5,200 pounds of sand and gravel and 770 pounds of cement are required annually to meet the needs of each person in the state.

Add to these the barite, asphalt, clays, metals and mineral fuels consumed and based on the U.S. per capita consumption) each Missourian requires about 20 tons of new minerals a year. That's the equivalent of 10 elephants, 575 bales of hay or 40,000 books. In other words, it's a lot no matter how you look at it!

The state goes a long way toward being self sufficient, too, explains State Geologist Wallace B. Howe. Approximately 500 open pit and underground mining operations produce $675 million worth of minerals each year. They handle between 200 and 300 million tons of material annually to produce some 75 million tons of marketable minerals.

In addition to the value of mineral resources extracted, the processing of these raw materials into marketable minerals has a direct effect of about $1.75 billion on the state's economy annually.

A detailed inventory of surface mining in the state by the Missouri Geological Survey and other agencies revealed that slightly over 66,000 acres, or less than .2 per cent of the state's total acreage, had been disturbed through Jan. 1, 1965. Reclamation laws are designed to assure that much of this land is returned to usable condition.

The state is no "slouch" when it comes to individual mineral production, says Dr. Howe. The Southeast Missouri lead district is the largest lead-mining district in the world, accounting for 85 per cent of the United States' mined production of lead and 13 per cent of the world's total.

For many years, the state has been the largest barite producer in the nation. Several barite operations were suspended in 1973, however, and Missouri dropped to second place behind Nevada.

Ray Cromley

Soviet benefits of detente benefit all?

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A recent speech by Mikhail Suslov, a major Kremlin theoretician and prominent member of the ruling Politburo, is being analyzed word by word in the higher echelons of the Ford administration.

For in that talk, given at a meeting of party ideologists, political scientists and Central Committee higher party trainees, Suslov outlined the Kremlin's objectives in seeking detente with the United States.

Some of Suslov's points were obtuse Communist dialectic and will take weeks or months to interpret. Others were crystal clear:

The atmosphere created by detente, said Suslov, will make it more difficult for the U.S. and the West to oppose the actions of Communist nations or communism, either politically or militarily, with propaganda or with "counter revolutionary forces," at home or abroad.

It will thus be easier for the local Communist parties and associated organizations to organize workers and other groups in the U.S. and other Western and non-aligned countries through the world for revolutionary purposes, and for them to bring pressures on their governments in line with international Communist objectives.

At the same time, Suslov said, detente will not lessen Communist opportunities; it will not ease those internal economic, social and political tensions in each country which are the basis for organizing a Communist struggle against "the exploiters," or will detente mean a relaxation in Communist revolutionary effort.

Internationally, Suslov indicated that under detente it will become easier for the Soviet Union to directly aid foreign class struggles and revolutions — as in the cooperation between Moscow and the Portuguese Communists. Or as in the type of international Communist cooperation which enabled Hanoi to defeat South Vietnam.

In this light, Suslov looked with delight and anticipation at developments and future possibilities in Italy, Japan, France and Greece.

Because detente will make it more difficult psychologically for Western countries to prevent or oppose international Communist cooperation, Suslov believes it will increase the opportunity to solidify into one more effective worldwide organization, under Moscow, Communist and other groups struggling in every Western country.

As is clear from the above paragraphs, Suslov sees detente basically as requiring capitalist and other Western nations not to interfere in the Soviet Union and in other Communist lands, or with Communist parties elsewhere, while asserting that detente should not similarly restrict the Soviet Union.

In fact, Suslov says "The Communist Party of the Soviet Union sees its duty in promoting the cohesion of all the revolutionary and democratic forces of the age and achieving the strengthening of their solidarity in the common struggle. Our party and our country support all movements which oppose imperialist reaction and oppression and which advocate national and social liberation."

According to Suslov, the "realization of this growing revolutionary potential" worldwide "largely depends on the power and cohesion of the Communist movement, on its ability to combine correctly the international and national tasks of the working class and all working people, and on its ability to raise the broadest masses to the struggle."

But that does not mean, Suslov argues, that detente helps the Communist world alone. For this new freedom for communism to operate and these restrictions on the non-Communists, he said, will be of great benefit to all the peoples of the world.

Safety deposit boxes contain mysterious items

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bank safety deposit boxes usually hold jewelry, money, old coins and other valuables. But that's not all. Try a cocktail napkin, old birthday cards or a pair of socks.

Last year, five deputy Franklin County auditors inventoried 1,325 boxes sealed by banks after the boxholder's death. They found everything from a gold tooth to a one-year appliance warranty which had expired 40 years before.

One box served its owner as a lunch pail. The inventory produced small jars of mustard, catsup, relish, salt and pepper shakers. The boxholder apparently brought his bag lunch downtown every day and at noon would go to the box to season his meal.

Deputy Auditor Harry Fell says many of the boxes contain cash, and $1,000 seems to be a typical sum.

"But we've found as high as $140,000 cash in a box," he added.

Silver bars, gold nuggets, gems and jewelry are other common items found when a box is emptied.

"There are no two boxes alike unless they're empty," Fell said.

The safety deposit containers can take anywhere from 10 minutes to 10 hours to inventory, Fell explained.

Some persons keep a single box, and others, especially coin and collectors of other items, may keep up to a dozen boxes, he said.

Fell said every item in one woman's box had a note attached detailing where it should go following her death. Every piece of furniture in her home — and every jar and bottle in her refrigerator — had similar notes, the county official said.

The boxes are sealed following the boxholder's death until the contents can be inventoried for the state taxation department. The survey is made by a deputy county auditor with a next-of-kin or authorized attorney present, Fell said.

The contents of a box may have no value, or in one case, may yield $1.5 million in cash and securities, Fell said.

Next-of-kin may be surprised by the value of the contents.

"Children often say that nothing will be found in their father's box because 'Dad never had anything.' Then we'll find a considerable sum."

Minerals are big business in state

ROLLA — Minerals are big business in Missouri. They have to be. According to data compiled by the Missouri Geological Survey, Department of Natural Resources, in Rolla, an average of 20,000 pounds of stone, 5,200 pounds of sand and gravel and 770 pounds of cement are required annually to meet the needs of each person in the state.

Add to these the barite, asphalt, clays, metals and mineral fuels consumed and (based on the U.S. per capita consumption) each Missourian requires about 20 tons of new minerals a year. That's the equivalent of 10 elephants, 575 bales of hay or 40,000 books. In other words, it's a lot no matter how you look at it!

The state goes a long way toward being self sufficient, too, explains State Geologist Wallace B. Howe. Approximately 500 open pit and underground mining operations produce $675 million worth of minerals each year. They handle between 200 and 300 million tons of material annually to produce some 75 million tons of marketable minerals.

In addition to the value of mineral resources extracted, the processing of these raw materials into marketable minerals has a direct effect of about $1.75 billion on the state's economy annually.

A detailed inventory of surface mining in the state by the Missouri Geological Survey and other agencies revealed that slightly over 66,000 acres, or less than .2 per cent of the state's total acreage, had been disturbed through Jan. 1, 1965. Reclamation laws are designed to assure that much of this land is returned to usable condition.

The state is no "slouch" when it comes to individual mineral production, says Dr. Howe. The Southeast Missouri lead district is the largest lead-mining district in the world, accounting for 85 per cent of the United States' mined production of lead and 13 per cent of the world's total.

For many years, the state has been the largest barite producer in the nation. Several barite operations were suspended in 1973, however, and Missouri dropped to second place behind Nevada.

Soviet benefits of detente benefit all?

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A recent speech by Mikhail Suslov, a major Kremlin theoretician and prominent member of the ruling Politburo, is being analyzed word by word in the higher echelons of the Ford administration.

For in that talk, given at a meeting of party ideologists, political scientists and Central Committee higher party trainees, Suslov outlined the Kremlin's objectives in seeking detente with the United States.

Some of Suslov's points were obtuse Communist dialectic and will take weeks or months to interpret. Others were crystal clear:

The atmosphere created by detente, said Suslov, will make it more difficult for the U.S. and the West to oppose the actions of Communist nations or communism, either politically or militarily, with propaganda or with "counter revolutionary forces," at home or abroad.

It will thus be easier for the local Communist parties and associated organizations to organize workers and other groups in the U.S. and other Western and non-aligned countries through the world for revolutionary purposes, and for them to bring pressures on their governments in line with international Communist objectives.

At the same time, Suslov said, detente will not lessen Communist opportunities; it will not ease those internal economic, social and political tensions in each country which are the basis for organizing a Communist struggle against "the exploiters," or will detente mean a relaxation in Communist revolutionary effort.

Internationally, Suslov indicated that under detente it will become easier for the Soviet Union to directly aid foreign class struggles and revolutions — as in the cooperation between Moscow and the Portuguese Communists. Or as in the type of international Communist cooperation which enabled Hanoi to defeat South Vietnam.

In this light, Suslov looked with delight and anticipation at developments and future possibilities in Italy, Japan, France and Greece.

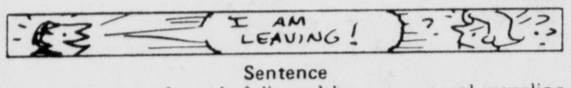
Because detente will make it more difficult psychologically for Western countries to prevent or oppose international Communist cooperation, Suslov believes it will increase the opportunity to solidify into one more effective worldwide organization, under Moscow, Communist and other groups struggling in every Western country.

As is clear from the above paragraphs, Suslov sees detente basically as requiring capitalist and other Western nations not to interfere in the Soviet Union and in other Communist lands, or with Communist parties elsewhere, while asserting that detente should not similarly restrict the Soviet Union.

In fact, Suslov says "The Communist Party of the Soviet Union sees its duty in promoting the cohesion of all the revolutionary and democratic forces of the age and achieving the strengthening of their solidarity in the common struggle. Our party and our country support all movements which oppose imperialist reaction and oppression and which advocate national and social liberation."

According to Suslov, the "realization of this growing revolutionary potential" worldwide "largely depends on the power and cohesion of the Communist movement, on its ability to combine correctly the international and national tasks of the working class and all working people, and on its ability to raise the broadest masses to the struggle."

But that does not mean, Suslov argues, that detente helps the Communist world alone. For this new freedom for communism to operate and these restrictions on the non-Communists, he said, will be of great benefit to all the peoples of the world.



Courage Is—A scorner of things which inspire fear.

Safety deposit boxes contain mysterious items

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bank safety deposit boxes usually hold jewelry, money, old coins and other valuables. But that's not all. Try a cocktail napkin, old birthday cards or a pair of socks.

Last year, five deputy Franklin County auditors inventoried 1,325 boxes sealed by banks after the boxholder's death. They found everything from a gold tooth to a one-year appliance warranty which had expired 40 years before.

One box served its owner as a lunch pail. The inventory produced small jars of mustard, catsup, relish, salt and pepper shakers. The boxholder apparently brought his bag lunch downtown every day and at noon would go to the box to season his meal.

Deputy Auditor Harry Fell says many of the boxes contain cash, and $1,000 seems to be a typical sum.

"But we've found as high as $140,000 cash in a box," he added.

Silver bars, gold nuggets, gems and jewelry are other common items found when a box is emptied.

"There are no two boxes alike unless they're empty," Fell said.

The safety deposit containers can take anywhere from 10 minutes to 10 hours to inventory, Fell explained.

Some persons keep a single box, and others, especially coin and collectors of other items, may keep up to a dozen boxes, he said.

Fell said every item in one woman's box had a note attached detailing where it should go following her death. Every piece of furniture in her home — and every jar and bottle in her refrigerator — had similar notes, the county official said.

The boxes are sealed following the boxholder's death until the contents can be inventoried for the state taxation department. The survey is made by a deputy county auditor with a next-of-kin or authorized attorney present, Fell said.

The contents of a box may have no value, or in one case, may yield $1.5 million in cash and securities, Fell said.

Next-of-kin may be surprised by the value of the contents.

"Children often say that nothing will be found in their father's box because 'Dad never had anything.' Then we'll find a considerable sum."

NEW YORK, N .Y. (AP) — In 1964 Rich O'Keefe of Yorktown Heights, N. Y., was chosen to throw out the first ball of the season at Yankee Stadium. The invitation for the then 7-year-old O'Keefe came after the youngster had his picture taken in the annual St. Patrick's Day parade up Fifth Avenue.

Decision on dairy violations month away

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — It will be at least a month before a decision is issued on whether a Kansas City dairy is guilty of violations of the state's Unfair Milk Sales Practices Act.

Agriculture Director James Boillot, who is charged with enforcing the 1959 law, said Thursday it would be another two weeks before he would be able to begin reviewing the lengthy hearing transcript on the charges against Fairmont Foods Co.

The hearings, which lasted three days, ended earlier this week and Boillot said he does not expect any further official proceedings before he makes his decision in the first administrative effort to enforce the law.

There are, however, a number of company records concerning costs of operation which have been sought by the department but have not yet been furnished. The company has said it believes the request is excessive, and department officials are currently reviewing that situation.

Included in the six charges against the dairy is the allegation that Fairmont was selling milk at a higher price in the Kansas City area in an effort to make up for selling it at lower levels in southwest Missouri. The firm was accused of discriminating in prices in an attempt to unfairly divert trade from competing dairies in the Springfield area.

Boillot said he does not intend to delay reaching a decision on any of the six charges, but he acknowledged that it will take a thorough review of the transcripts because of numerous contradictions between company and state presentations to sort out "fact from fluff."

Should he determine that any of the six charges are substantiated by the state, he could either revoke or suspend Fairmont's operating license.

Sources have said that if a violation is confirmed some type of suspension would be the penalty.

Boillot said he believes that if the company is penalized, the case will be taken to court.

During the hearings the company offered its own records to discredit documents submitted by th state that alleged price variations of up to 33 cents for a gallon of milk. The Fairmont records showed a variation of about .004 cents per gallon.

Another charge states the firm failed to file a change in its selling price for milk as required under regulations issued to implement the law.

While the law says that persons violating either it or any of the rules or regulations issued pursuant to the law can be punished by suspension or revocation of their license, the attorney for Fairmont contended that there can be a violation of rules that would not cosnstitute a punishable violation of the act.

The attorney, Henry Andrae, claimed the rule requiring price changes to be filed with the department is broader than the law, and some department officials have said there is a legal question on whether punitive action can be taken for that offense. Sources in the department contended there is no doubt the company has violated that rule.

A legal opinion on that question, probably from the attorney general, will be obtained before a decision on that charge is made, one department official predicted.

Testimony during the hearings also brought to the department's attention the fact that apparently many milk retailers in Missouri are using a system of artifically inflating prices on invoices and then bringing them down to the correct level again through the application of a so-called discount.

Agriculture officials do not know what the purpose of that practice is, but Boillot is expected to have members of his staff look into the situation. It is unclear, department sources said, whether there is any action the state can take to halt the practice.

Mosquito control aids

The number of cases of mosquito- borne encephalitis in Missouri has been relatively low in comparison with neighboring states this year. Illinois, in particular, has had a large number of cases, most of which have been well away from the Mississippi River.

The time when most encephalitis reports are received by the health departments stretches from mid-July to mid-October with the major peak in mid-September. The first hard frost kills the developing larva and almost all of the adult mosquitoes and should bring an end to any remaining threat from encephalitis.

Because of the large number of cases in the Midwest and the few cases in Missouri, the following time honored m osquito control measures are again recommended. It should be noted that these are usual measures which should be employed every year, regardless of the number of encephalitis cases being reported, to minimize the number even in low years.

The mosquitoes primarily involved in carrying encephalitis in Missouri are the culex types. They prefer in general to breed in polluted stagnant water such as sewage drain pipes, sewage lagoons, and stagnant pools along intermittent streams and drainage ditches. They will also breed in artificial containers such as provided by trash, old tires, fish ponds, etc., around human premises.

Personal protection

1. If possible, stay indoors in the hours immediately before and after sunset.
2. If you must be out of doors, wear long sleeves, long trousers, long stockings and use repellents.
3. If you are camping, use mosquito netting to seal out the mosquitoes, use a safe insecticide spray on inside walls and swat the mosquitoes found inside the tent or camper.
4. Maintain house screens in good repair and swat mosquitoes found on inside walls.

Eliminate Breeding Places

Mosquito eggs cannot hatch unless they are in water. Look for standing water on your premises; eliminate it if possible and practical. Follow these steps:

1. Remove unneeded, temporary water containers.
2. Flatten or dispose of tin cans.
3. Place discarded bicycle and automobile tires in places where water cannot get into them.
4. Fill in tree holes with concrete.
5. See that cisterns, cesspools, septic tanks, fire barrels, rain barrels and tubs in which water is stored are tightly covered.
6. Empty and thoroughly wash birdbaths and pans for watering chicks and dogs at least once a week.
7. Clean out rain gutters.
8. Examine flat roofs after rains; be sure no water remains on them.
9. Drain or fill in stagnant pools and swampy places. If pools cannot be drained or filled in, remove debris and floating vegetation.
10. Examine stock-watering tanks for larvae or pupae once each week or oftener; keep them clean; repair leaks.
11. Fill around water devices to prevent water from standing. Gravel or cinders make the best fill, but coarse sand may be used.
12. Examine philodendron and other plants in water in the house. Potted plants will not breed mosquitoes, but saucers under the plants may accumulate enough water for breeding.
13. Examine fish bowls and aquariums for larvae; not all kinds of fish destroy mosquito larvae.
14. Check ponds and oxidation lagoons for larvae. Remove weeds, other vegetation and floating debris from them. Prevent shading.
15. Control on lagoons should be restricted to using a very light film of diesel oil or kerosene and spraying the water area that has grass or weeds growing and spray onthe water one and a half feet from the water's edge and using only a light film of oil on the water surface.

Kill the larvae

1. If standing water on your premises cannot be eliminated, examine it at least once a week to find out whether larvae are present. Dip out some water with a pan or cup; a white utensil is preferable because the larvae can be seen easily against a white background.
2. If you find larvae, apply insecticide. For water not used as drinking water for humans, animals or poultry, or for birdbaths or aquariums, you may apply a spray containing .5 per cent lindane or 2 per cent malthion, or you may apply kerosene or fuel oil full strength.
3. To kill mosquito larvae in a fishpond or ornamental pool without poisoning fish or plants, apply a light mist spray of a pyrethrum oil solution -- usually obtainable in hardware, department and food stores and called "pyrethrins" and "petroleum distillate."
4. By all means, follow directions on the label of any insecticide.

Kill the adults

Communities may add further protection for the citizens by operating fogging equipment but this approach should not be the only one and is of lesser importance than those mentioned above.

PORT ANTONIO, Jamaica (AP) — A "Camera Safari" is the Jamaica Tourist Board's latest tourist activity in Port Antonio.

The safari is a 2½-hour guided horseback ride into the Blue Mountains, through banana, sugar and coconut plantations. It includes lunch at Rafters Rest at the mouth of the Rio Grande River and pick-up at any Port Antonio hotel.

While other mosquitoes bite in the daytime, the culex types prefer to bite from one hour before sunset to one and a half hours after sunset.

Personal protection

1. If possible, stay indoors in the hours immediately before and after sunset.
2. If you must be out of doors, wear long sleeves, long trousers, long stockings and use repellents.
3. If you are camping, use mosquito netting to seal out the mosquitoes, use a safe insecticide spray on inside walls and swat the mosquitoes found inside the tent or camper.
4. Maintain house screens in good repair and swat mosquitoes found on inside walls.

Eliminate Breeding Places

Mosquito eggs cannot hatch unless they are in water. Look for standing water on your premises; eliminate it if possible and practical. Follow these steps:

1. Remove unneeded, temporary water containers.
2. Flatten or dispose of tin cans.
3. Place discarded bicycle and automobile tires in places where water cannot get into them.
4. Fill in tree holes with concrete.
5. See that cisterns, cesspools, septic tanks, fire barrels, rain barrels and tubs in which water is stored are tightly covered.
6. Empty and thoroughly wash birdbaths and pans for watering chicks and dogs at least once a week.
7. Clean out rain gutters.
8. Examine flat roofs after rains; be sure no water remains on them.
9. Drain or fill in stagnant pools and swampy places. If pools cannot be drained or filled in, remove debris and floating vegetation.
10. Examine stock-watering tanks for larvae or pupae once each week or oftener; keep them clean; repair leaks.
11. Fill around water devices to prevent water from standing. Gravel or cinders make the best fill, but coarse sand may be used.
12. Examine philodendron and other plants in water in the house. Potted plants will not breed mosquitoes, but saucers under the plants may accumulate enough water for breeding.
13. Examine fish bowls and aquariums for larvae; not all kinds of fish destroy mosquito larvae.
14. Check ponds and oxidation lagoons for larvae. Remove weeds, other vegetation and floating debris from them. Prevent shading.
15. Control on lagoons should be restricted to using a very light film of diesel oil or kerosene and spraying the water area that has grass or weeds growing and spray onthe water one and a half feet from the water's edge and using only a light film of oil on the water surface.

Kill the larvae

1. If standing water on your premises cannot be eliminated, examine it at least once a week to find out whether larvae are present. Dip out some water with a pan or cup; a white utensil is preferable because the larvae can be seen easily against a white background.
2. If you find larvae, apply insecticide. For water not used as drinking water for humans, animals or poultry, or for birdbaths or aquariums, you may apply a spray containing .5 per cent lindane or 2 per cent malthion, or you may apply kerosene or fuel oil full strength.
3. To kill mosquito larvae in a fishpond or ornamental pool without poisoning fish or plants, apply a light mist spray of a pyrethrum oil solution -- usually obtainable in hardware, department and food stores and called "pyrethrins" and "petroleum distillate."
4. By all means, follow directions on the label of any insecticide.

Kill the adults

Communities may add further protection for the citizens by operating fogging equipment but this approach should not be the only one and is of lesser importance than those mentioned above.

PORT ANTONIO, Jamaica (AP) — A "Camera Safari" is the Jamaica Tourist Board's latest tourist activity in Port Antonio.

The safari is a 2½-hour guided horseback ride into the Blue Mountains, through banana, sugar and coconut plantations. It includes lunch at Rafters Rest at the mouth of the Rio Grande River and pick-up at any Port Antonio hotel.

Kansas City to host convention

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Geography and politics played big roles in sending the 1976 Republican National Convention to Kansas City, a city with a Democratic heritage that promotes itself as "one of the few liveable cities left."

Mayor Charles Wheeler sees the city's central location as the No. 1 factor in winning the convention, subject to routine acceptance by the national committee, over Miami Beach, site of the last two GOP conventions, and Cleveland.

The move to Kansas City will reduce travel time for many of the 16,000-plus delegates and others expected to attend and puts it in the heartland of America, where President Ford's appeal is greatest.

Wheeler, a Democrat, doesn't discount the importance of politics in bringing the Republicans to Kansas City, a city linked to the Democratoc Pendergast machine and Harry S. Truman's rise to power.

The city is on the border of Kansas and Missouri, each of which has a freshman Republican governor at a time when the party counts only 13 goverxnors. Bordering Iowa also has a GOP governor.

Wheeler, a doctor and lawyer, is an announced candidate for the Democratic nomination for vice president but says he sees no irony in the fact the Republicans chose Kansas City and the Democrats rejected it.

He says he has conducted a "low-key campaign intentionally" so he wouldn't scare the Republicans away.

Wheeler says the city's success last December in hosting the Democrats' first mid-term convention and the availability of new convention facilities also were obvious factors.

The convention will be housed at Kemper Arena, home of the Kings of the National Basketball Association and Scouts of the National Hockey League.

The arena is located in the stockyards district west of the downtown area and near the American Royal Arena and Governor's Exposition Hall, two of the buildings that will be used for the press and auxiliary services. Municipal Auditorium in the downtown area will also be used.

The city has promised to provide 17,615 seats at the one-year-old Kemper Arena, which was the party's second choice for the convention. A new convention center is under construction in downtown Kansas City but isn't expected to be completed until about six weeks before the mid-August convention, which is not enough time for national television network hookups.

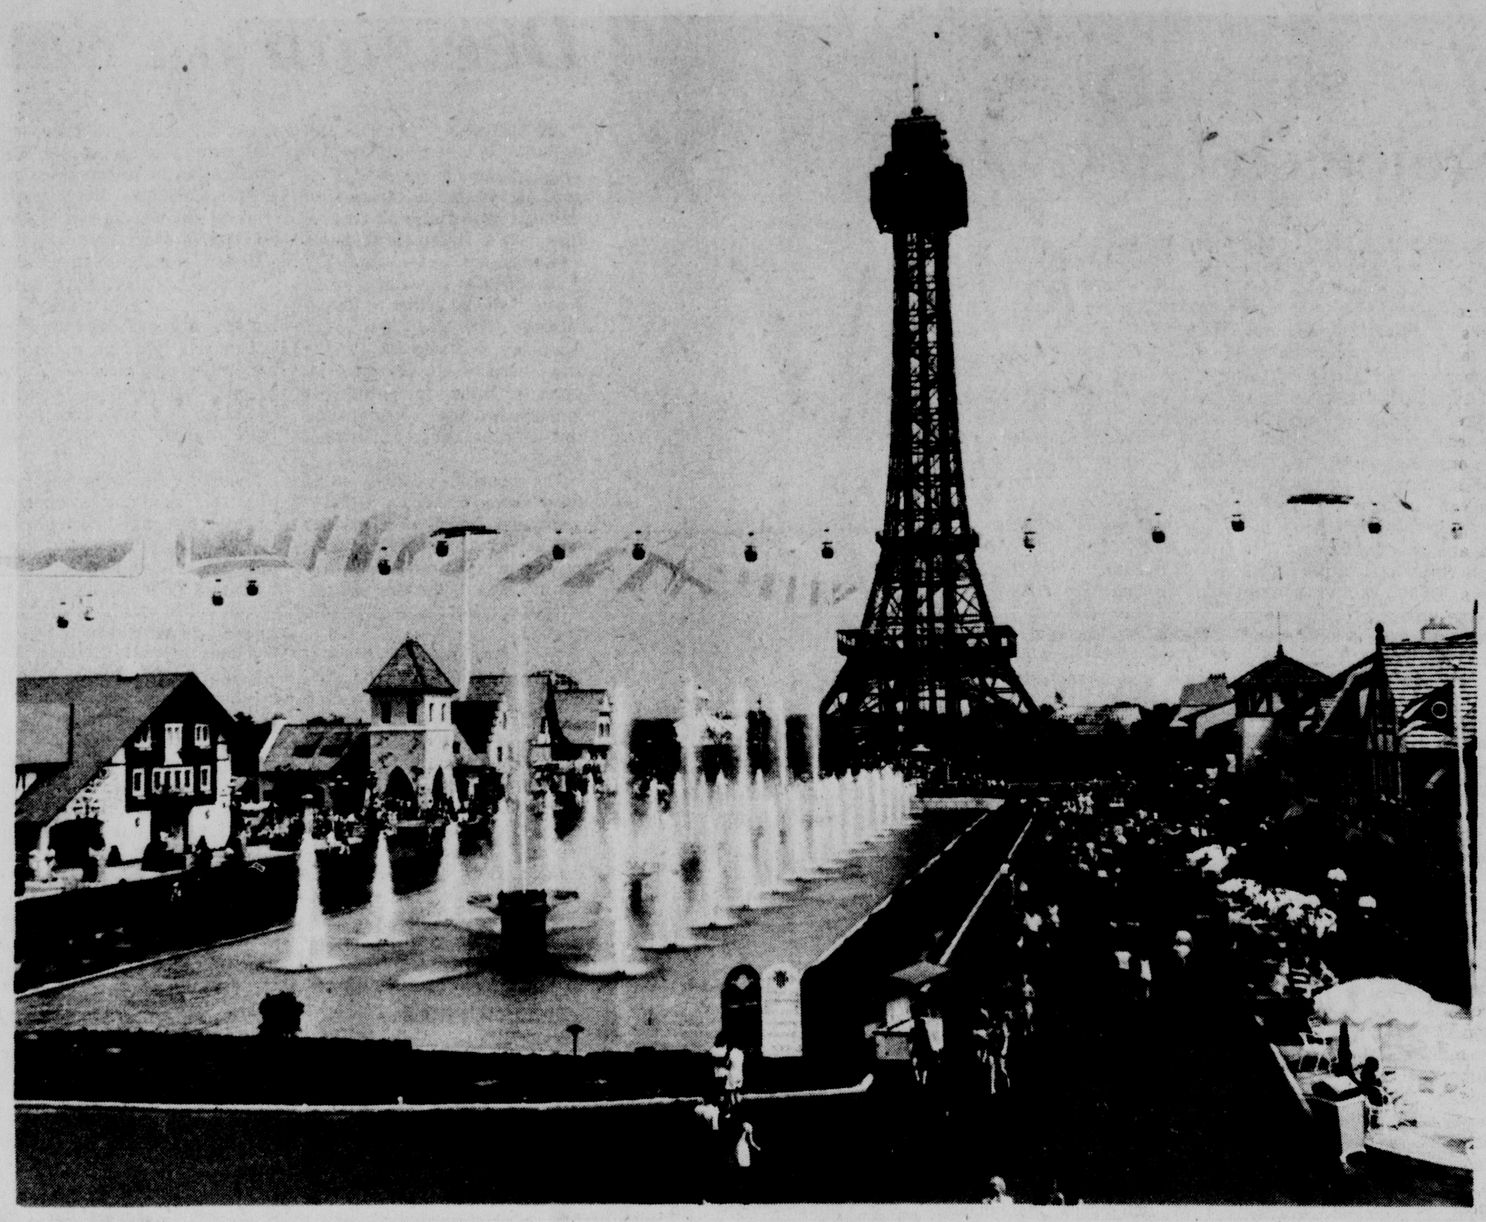
The Democrats settled on New York City for their convention, bypassing Kansas City because of what they called inadequate hotel facilities.

The traditionally smaller GOP convention will require 16,000 to 18,000 hotel rooms, and some conventioneers will have up to an hour's drive between the conventionfloor and hotel rooms as far away as Topeka, Kan.

After hosting both party conventions in 1972, the mayor of Miami Beach said he wouldn't have another political convention in his city for $1 million. "Politicians are a bunch of lousy freeloaders. They don't bring in any money," he said.

Wheeler figures the GOP convention will mean about $16 million to Kansas City — divided equally between outside money being spent and the more intangible national publicity the city will receive.

The City Council approved a contract last week by a 9-4 vote that would provide up to $500,000 in services and faciluties for the convention.



Kings Island

At Kings Island, a heart-of-America family resort located in the beautiful Ohio River Valley, International Street is one of six theme areas. Here, the Eiffel Tower rises to a height of a 33-story building or one-third the size of the real Eiffel Tower. At its base, the Royal Fountain, which is as big as a football field, can squirt 10,000 gallons of water into the air at one time. In addition to the six theme areas, this new kind of vacation center offers a campground, Kings Island Inn, golf courses, an international restaurant and a wildlife preserve.

'We want Kings Island'

KINGS MILLS, Ohio — A 7-year-old Cincinnati girl went to Paris with her parents. She took one look at the Eiffel Tower and cried out with delight, "See, they've got a tower like the one at Kings Island."

Kings Island is a heart-of-America family resort located in the Ohio River valley. This new kind of vacation center offers a theme park, Kings Island Inn, campground, golf courses, international restaurant and wildlife preserve.

A one-third scale replica of the Eiffel Tower at one end of its International Street has become a Buckeye landmark. At Kings Island, the land of Hanna-Barbera's Fred Flintstone and Yogi Bear, some of the nation's most exciting rides thrill youngsters while parents golf on a championship course designed by Jack Nicklaus.

Fun ranges from the new Double Wheel, two 135-foot high ferris wheels, to the porpoise show where dolphins play basketball.

A highlight of the park is the country's largest twin racing roller coaster, which reaches speeds of 61 miles per hour. Lion Country Safari, where animals roam free in a natural environment, is seen from monorail cars that give their occupants eye-to- eye encounters with the king of beasts and hundreds of other African animals.

Because it offers such a wide range of attractions, the park is emerging as a major travel destination. To the 50 million people living within 400 miles of Kings Island, it affords economy-minded families a fun weekend or vacation that save both on fuel and funds.

The price charged at the gate allows a full day's participation in all the rides and attractions. At 5 p.m., visitors with coupons can enter the park for a reduced rate just in time for an evening of fun, including the Hanna-Barbera parade, an air show featuring sky divers and a hot air balloon, a big band show in the Bubble Theater and a final fireworks spectacle.

Visitors may camp in the 400-space campground or stay in the Kings Island Inn, a luxurious Swiss chalet motel. They may dine at their own campsite or they can savor the gourmet cuisine at the International Restaurant or eat at the new Carousel Restaurant where the entire serving area revolves.

This year, by means of a national Watts line system, a guest can telephone directly to the information center where a Kings Island Country Girl will not only make a reservation at the camp or in the inn or at another motel in the area if the inn is filled, but will reserve tickets for the park, arrange tee-times for the two golf courses and even get tickets for a Reds baseball game and the zoo in nearby Cincinnanti.

The national watts line number is 1-800-543-4031. In Ohio, dial 1-800-582-3051.

Kings Island has six theme areas, each vying for a guest's attention. International Street is a mart where goods are hand-crafted as shoppers watch or are imported from around the world.

Here, the Eiffel Tower rises to a height of a 33-story building or one-third the size of the real Eiffel Tower. From its top, guests can see 18 miles away. At the foot of the tower is the Royal Fountain, which is as big as a football field and can squirt 10,000 gallons of water into the air at one time.

Octoberfest is a beer garden overlooking one of the park's six lakes and includes such rides as The Bayern Kurve, a bobsled-like madcap, and the Flying Dutchman in which gondolas spin around a center pole.

Aerial cable cars run from Octoberfest to the Happy Land of Hanna-Barbera 1,200 feet away, where Yogi Bear and his friends greet children and adults alike. The main attraction is the Enchanted Voyage in a nine-passenger boat through five worlds of animated fantasy.

Coney Island is famed for its twin racing roller coaster, the nostalgic Carousel built in 1926 and brought from Cincinnati's Coney Island, the Double Wheel and also the Troika, a breath-taking new ride.

A theater presents a live stage show, "Strike up the Band", with fresh college-age talent. Rivertown features the exciting Kenton's Cove Keelboat Canal ride at treetop heights. Lion Country Safari rounds out the areas.

At an Ohio highway wayside park, two boys inked a message on their bare feet. Each foot had a word printed just above the toes so that when the lads lined up before their parents their combined feet read, "We want Kings Island." It's no wonder.

FREE ELEPHANTS FACE EXTINCTION

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — Progress threatens the survival of the only remaining herd of "free" elephants in South Africa that live outside game parks.

They roam the forests around Knysna, midway between Capetown and Port Elizabeth on the Indian Ocean seaboard.

But a new freeway cutting through the forests will cut their ranging territory in half and lead to the herd dying out, environmentalists fear.

The elephants are rarely seen and it is believed their number is already down to about 11.

Drought reduces projected harvest

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The projected corn harvest in Missouri has been reduced again as the effects of weeks of drought continue to tell on the state's agriculture.

The latest harvest estimates of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, released Thursday, dropped the total corn production for Missouri to 170 million bushels. Soybean predictions were also reduced by nearly nine million bushels from the estimates of a month ago.

And State Agriculture Chief James Boillot has estimated that the impact of the summer drought, the second in as many years, has cost Missouri corn and soybean farmers nearly $250 million.

"When you've farmed as long as I have you don't expect a perfect season every year," Boillot said. "But you certainly don't expect two severe droughts in a row."

More than half of the state's 114 counties have already made applications for federal disaster assistance. Last year, Missouri farmers received $76.8 million in disaster aid because of inclement weateher.

The first corn harvest prediction was for a bumper crop of 234 million bushels, which officials hoped would help farmers recover from 1974.

But that was reduced to 198 million last month as the impact of the drought began to take its toll. The most current forecast, however, would still be higher than last year's drought-stricken crop of 149 million bushels, the worst in a decade.

Based on market prices this week, the reduction in the estimates has cost about $181.8 million, Boillot said.

The expected harvest of soybeans, now being co nted on by many farmers to carry them through another lean year, was reduced from 115.7 million bushels to 106.8 million. While still greater than the reduced crop of 95.7 million bushels of last year, it is well below the record harvest of 126.9 million bushels in 1973.

That decline, due primarily to the drought also, cost about $55 million, based on this week's market prices, Boillot said.

"This is certainly indicative of what the crop loss has been from the early estimate to the estimate today," he said, although he acknowledged the figures do not take into consideration the impact on prices if there were the greater amounts of corn and soybeans available for sale.

While a second poor harvest will have a significant impact on farmers in Missouri, Boillot said he did not believe the bad harvest would greatly affect the consumer.

"Consumer prices won't be affected because there appears to be a good crop in the rest of the nation," he said.

Harvest estimates nationwide, while again reduced from the month before, still called for a record corn crop of nearly 5.7 billion bushels and a soybean crop of 1.44 billion bushels.

Agriculture officials now believe that with normal weather into the fall, the actual Missouri harvest should be close to the federal goverhment's latest estimates.

"But once again, you don't have it in the bin," noted William Murphy, field crops specialist for the University of Missouri Extension Division.

"Now it depends on getting it out. If weather conditions are bad so farmers can't get in on time to get the crops out, it coud deteriorate somewhat further."

Also facing the soybean crop is the possibility of an early frost, which hurt yields a year ago. But Murphy along with other agriculture officials said that with a normal or just slightly later frost, soybeans should reach the current harvest estimate.

Too much rain in the Missouri Bootheel forced a reduction in the harvest estimates for Missouri cotton. The new predictions dropped the anticipated production to 220,000 bales or 459 pounds an acre. That is down from last month's estimate of 235,000 bales or 490 pounds an acre.

The first celebration of Columbus' discovery of America in 1492 was held in New York City in 1792 under the auspices of the Society of St. Tammany.

Meramec River stretch named recreation area

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A 108-mile stretch of the Meramec River was designated the Meramec River Recreation Area, Gov. Christopher S Bond announced,

A prepared statement from the governor's office said the designation is to focus public support for the preservation of open space and river-based recreation. The area designated extends from the Meramec State Park to the Mississippi River. The MRRA is planned as a cooperative effort by private organizations, local, state, and federal government for coordinated park development along the lower Meramec River.

The area is below the site of a proposed dam now being constructed by the U.S. Army Crops of Engineers.

The governor's office said a coordinating committee will be asked to develop a master plan for the area to include campgroungds, picnic areas, boat launch areas and natural areas.

The committee is to be made up of representatives from three counties,nine communities, and two departments of state government.

According to the goveror's statement, the area is designed to provide the following benefits:

—Acquisition of lands bordering the river through donations, easements and acquisitions

—Restoration of the quality of the water and scenic properties of the river corridor

—Prevention of further degradation of the river

—Provision of access points and recreational opportunities

—Preservation of the outstandNg nateral and geologic areas

Uniformed union worries Pentagon

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Everyone sniggered some years ago when a cheeky radical named Andy Stapp tried to bring collective bargaining to the U.S. armed forces in the form of a feeble effort called the American Serviceman's Union. But the idea is no longer so preposterous.

The respected American Federation of Government Employes is "positively and energetically" exploring the feasibility of unionizing the military, spokesmen insisting that an Army rank of "shop steward" is more than a remote possibility.

Not surprisingly, the Pentagon is unhappy with the prospect. Seldom people to reveal their emotions, especially not their fears, Defense Department soldiers are nonetheless openly worried about the AFGE probe. "Pure insanity," says the chorus. Already the services have begun a campaign to discredit the idea that, as a marine puts it, "national defense can be left up to organized grievance committees."

Thus far the campaign has consisted mostly of comparison finger pointing. "Look at the Dutch," the officials suggest. That nation's military force has in recent years been semi-unionized and, many feel, at the great peril of its people and its allies. Knowing Pentagon veterans believe even a little unionization has poisoned Holland's forces fatally; "I was in the Netherlands last month," says a colonel charged with NATO responsibilities, "and my impression was their Army is now made up mostly of ding-dong buffoons."

Dutch officers stationed in Washington do not agree with the harsh assessment, but they are concerned to the extreme about the effects of unionization on their forces. Admiral H. Van Mastrigt, a 30-year veteran, now his nation's military attache in America, says bluntly that while he still has faith in the ability of Holland's troops, "I admit I am damned scared about unionization. It has gone too far. I think it is definitely hurting our defenses."

Van Mastrigt, an impeccable officer, quick of step and handsomely tailored, makes it clear that he does not personally object to the concept of organized representation in the Netherlands forces. Unlike the more affluent U.S. system, where government has usually provided a full range of soldiering benefits, Van Mastrigt says Holland servicemen have traditionally relied on associations to lobby for their fringe rewards. The associations have since early in this century held regular meetings with the ministers of defense, "often winning concessions which we otherwise wouldn't enjoy."

In recent years, however, a new association, the Association of Draftees (VDM), has tilted the military lobby effort increasingly towards militancy. The only association connected to a trade union, VDM has enlisted one of four Dutch servicemen (fully 40 per cent of the Army) in a democratization plunge that, in Admiral Van Mastrigt's words, has "made us look rather silly in some eyes."

Some Dutch eyes in particular: the Defense Ministry receives regular deliveries of mail from taxpayers wondering about the wisdom of spending huge amounts of national treasure on soldiers whose only quality is, as one citizen has written, "they might cause an enemy to die laughing."

Van Mastrigt admits that VDM has won comfortable concessions for Dutch soldiers. Pay has increased for some by a factor of ten in the last seven years; saluting is no longer required; pesky brass has been removed from all uniforms; hair can now grow to the ankles; barracks privacy has improved; recreation facilities are now mandated. Van Mastrigt says the Netherlands servicemen are even allowed to participate, in uniform, in protest demonstrations against their uniforms.

Yet at what price? Though Dutch military people say their soldiers still do their jobs (8 to 5), and have done well in most NATO maneuvers, they point out that over-all credibility has suffered. "A defense force is only as good as its credibility; if an enemy does not take us as a serious force, then we are not a serious force."

That is the real danger of unionization, says Van Mastrigt: "I hate the long hair and all that goes with it, but I can live with that. What concerns me is whether a lack of discipline in one area leads to a letdown in others."

In other words, will a unionized soldier put his rights before his country? No wonder the Pentagon worries.

Drought reduces projected harvest

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The projected corn harvest in Missouri has been reduced again as the effects of weeks of drought continue to tell on the state's agriculture.

The latest harvest estimates of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, released Thursday, dropped the total corn production for Missouri to 170 million bushels. Soybean predictions were also reduced by nearly nine million bushels from the estimates of a month ago.

And State Agriculture Chief James Boillot has estimated that the impact of the summer drought, the second in as many years, has cost Missouri corn and soybean farmers nearly $250 million.

"When you've farmed as long as I have you don't expect a perfect season every year," Boillot said. "But you certainly don't expect two severe droughts in a row."

More than half of the state's 114 counties have already made applications for federal disaster assistance. Last year, Missouri farmers received $76.8 million in disaster aid because of inclement weateher.

The first corn harvest prediction was for a bumper crop of 234 million bushels, which officials hoped would help farmers recover from 1974.

But that was reduced to 198 million last month as the impact of the drought began to take its toll. The most current forecast, however, would still be higher than last year's drought-stricken crop of 149 million bushels, the worst in a decade.

Based on market prices this week, the reduction in the estimates has cost about $181.8 million, Boillot said.

The expected harvest of soybeans, now being co nted on by many farmers to carry them through another lean year, was reduced from 115.7 million bushels to 106.8 million. While still greater than the reduced crop of 95.7 million bushels of last year, it is well below the record harvest of 126.9 million bushels in 1973.

That decline, due primarily to the drought also, cost about $55 million, based on this week's market prices, Boillot said.

"This is certainly indicative of what the crop loss has been from the early estimate to the estimate today," he said, although he acknowledged the figures do not take into consideration the impact on prices if there were the greater amounts of corn and soybeans available for sale.

While a second poor harvest will have a significant impact on farmers in Missouri, Boillot said he did not believe the bad harvest would greatly affect the consumer.

"Consumer prices won't be affected because there appears to be a good crop in the rest of the nation," he said.

Harvest estimates nationwide, while again reduced from the month before, still called for a record corn crop of nearly 5.7 billion bushels and a soybean crop of 1.44 billion bushels.

Agriculture officials now believe that with normal weather into the fall, the actual Missouri harvest should be close to the federal goverhment's latest estimates.

"But once again, you don't have it in the bin," noted William Murphy, field crops specialist for the University of Missouri Extension Division.

"Now it depends on getting it out. If weather conditions are bad so farmers can't get in on time to get the crops out, it coud deteriorate somewhat further."

Also facing the soybean crop is the possibility of an early frost, which hurt yields a year ago. But Murphy along with other agriculture officials said that with a normal or just slightly later frost, soybeans should reach the current harvest estimate.

Too much rain in the Missouri Bootheel forced a reduction in the harvest estimates for Missouri cotton. The new predictions dropped the anticipated production to 220,000 bales or 459 pounds an acre. That is down from last month's estimate of 235,000 bales or 490 pounds an acre.

The first celebration of Columbus' discovery of America in 1492 was held in New York City in 1792 under the auspices of the Society of St. Tammany.

Meramec River stretch named recreation area

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A 108-mile stretch of the Meramec River was designated the Meramec River Recreation Area', Gov. Christopher S Bond announced,

A prepared statement from the governor's office said the designation is to focus public support for the preservation of open space and river-based recreation. The area designated extends from the Meramec State Park to the Mississippi River. The MRRA is planned as a cooperative effort by private organizations, local, state, and federal government for coordinated park development along the lower Meramec River.

The area is below the site of a proposed dam now being constructed by the U.S. Army Crops of Engineers.

The governor's office said a coordinating committee will be asked to develop a master plan for the area to include campgroungds, picnic areas, boat launch areas and natural areas.

The committee is to be made up of representatives from three counties,nine communities, and two departments of state government.

According to the goveror's statement, the area is designed to provide the following benefits:

—Acquisition of lands bordering the river through donations, easements and acquisitions

—Restoration of the quality of the water and scenic properties of the river corridor

—Prevention of further degradation of the river

—Provision of access points and recreational opportunities

—Preservation of the outstandNg naieral and geologic areas

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Everyone sniggered some years ago when a cheeky radical named Andy Stapp tried to bring collective bargaining to the U.S. armed forces in the form of a feeble effort called the American Serviceman's Union. But the idea is no longer so preposterous.

The respected American Federation of Government Employes is "positively and energetically" exploring the feasibility of unionizing the military, spokesmen insisting that an Army rank of "shop steward" is more than a remote possibility.

Not surprisingly, the Pentagon is unhappy with the prospect. Seldom people to reveal their emotions, especially not their fears, Defense Department soldiers are nonetheless openly worried about the AFGE probe. "Pure insanity," says the chorus. Already the services have begun a campaign to discredit the idea that, as a marine puts it, "national defense can be left up to organized grievance committees."

Thus far the campaign has consisted mostly of comparison finger pointing. "Look at the Dutch," the officials suggest. That nation's military force has in recent years been semi-unionized and, many feel, at the great peril of its people and its allies. Knowing Pentagon veterans believe even a little unionization has poisoned Holland's forces fatally; "I was in the Netherlands last month," says a colonel charged with NATO responsibilities, "and my impression was their Army is now made up mostly of ding-dong buffoons."

Dutch officers stationed in Washington do not agree with the harsh assessment, but they are concerned to the extreme about the effects of unionization on their forces. Admiral H. Van Mastrigt, a 30-year veteran, now his nation's military attache in America, says bluntly that while he still has faith in the ability of Holland's troops, "I admit I am damned scared about unionization. It has gone too far. I think it is definitely hurting our defenses."

Van Mastrigt, an impeccable officer, quick of step and handsomely tailored, makes it clear that he does not personally object to the concept of organized representation in the Netherlands forces. Unlike the more affluent U.S. system, where government has usually provided a full range of soldiering benefits, Van Mastrigt says Holland servicemen have traditionally relied on associations to lobby for their fringe rewards. The associations have since early in this century held regular meetings with the ministers of defense, "often winning concessions which we otherwise wouldn't enjoy."

In recent years, however, a new association, the Association of Draftees (VDM), has tilted the military lobby effort increasingly towards militancy. The only association connected to a trade union, VDM has enlisted one of four Dutch servicemen (fully 40 per cent of the Army) in a democratization plunge that, in Admiral Van Mastrigt's words, has "made us look rather silly in some eyes."
